Cover. School spirit has made a major comeback and you don't have to look hard to find it! The student body has finally discovered that spirit is not something you can have without first acquiring an overall feeling of pride and love for one's school. This feeling has come from within each individual and it has been expressed in many exciting ways: the addition of a new mascot, the overall participation of students and teachers, the craziness of the Rowdy Crowd, and, of course, the Honor Guard parading their beloved, big, brown beauty, "Spirit." This year, we did indeed, "go for it!"

BRONCO 1984

Color us Purple!

Keeping the spirit
alive with colors galore!

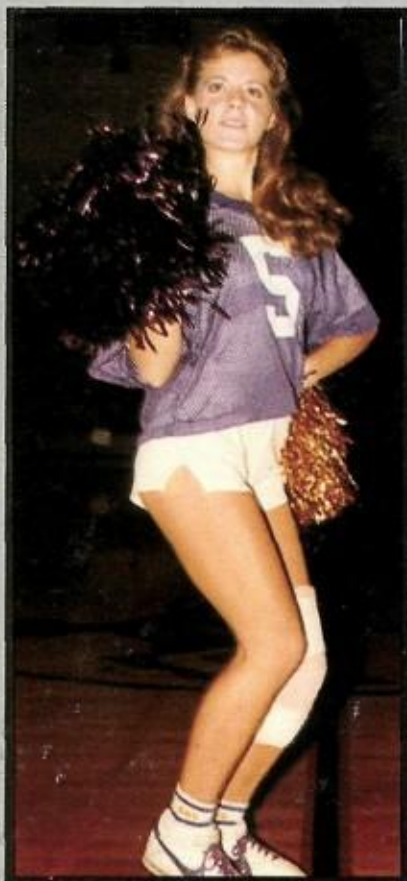

Color surrounds us in every aspect of our lives and because of this, we tend to take it for granted. But can you imagine life without colors? For that matter, can you imagine a school without colors to represent it?

DHS has always been depicted by the unique combination of purple and gold. Throughout the years, purple has been symbolic of high rank, royalty, and importance and gold has been symbolic of honor, loyalty, and respect. These meanings aren't hard to believe considering how important DHS is to every student and the respect that our school receives from everyone else.

For this reason, students and teachers alike displayed the school colors with pride. A brief observance of the parking lot will disclose the majority of bumpers decked out with purple and gold stickers. On Fridays, the school's colors were expressed with matching club and faculty shirts, ribbons, girls' make-up, and individuals who just got into the spirit of things!

1. The football locker room gets decorated before the Homecoming game by Donna Young. 2. Preparing for another pep rally Brooke Bowie colors a poster. 3. Performing enthusiastically is Donna Young. 4. Lynn Steinman impatiently waits on the sidelines. 5. A beautiful, fall day allows Felicia Jackson, Lena Young, Pam Richard, and Mechelle Clark to really enjoy an outdoor pep rally.

Artistically, Mike Sharp decorates the French float for the Homecoming Parade. 8. A half-time performance seems to have left Matt Rodda confused. 9. Varsity player Ray Richard takes a well-deserved break from the action. 10. "Man's best friend" proves that you don't have to be a student to support the Broncos.

1. Seniors Tony Vidal, Kenny Koontz, Charles Peckham, and Jim Pior perform the "Senior 84" cheer at a pep rally. 2. Brian Tomlin and Todd Brown, in a special visit to a football game during his stay in the hospital, cheer on their team from the sidelines. 3. Band members Josh Ellis, Les Smith, and Diana Roberson show how they can make a lot of noise without their instruments. 4. David Herr shouts encouragement to his teammates. 5. Carl Aasletten uses a megaphone to amplify his rousing cheers.

You don't have to shout, but it helps!

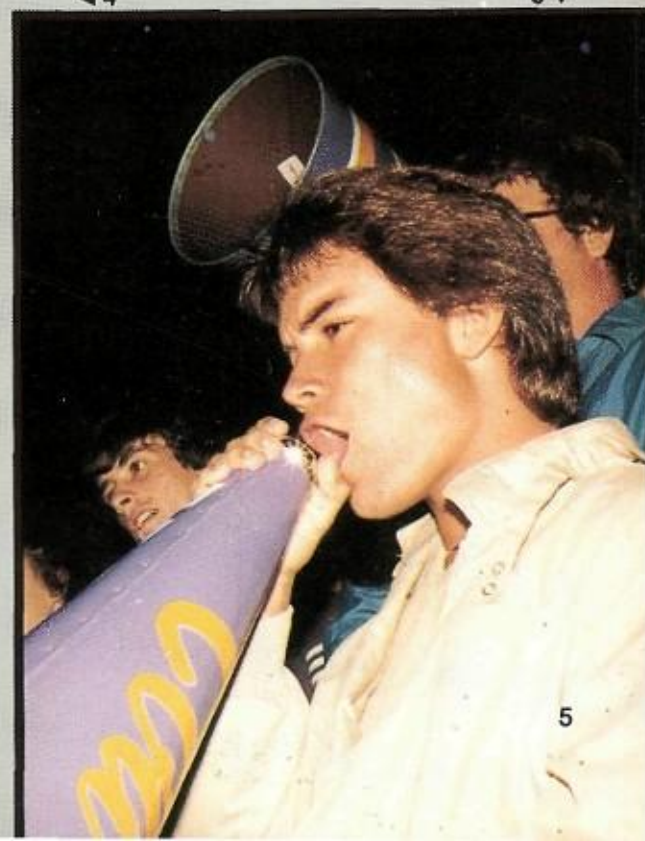

One of the greatest human needs is the need to express ourselves. We make music, create art, and campaign for our causes.

But when we really want to let it out of our system and let everyone else know, we SHOUT! We yell, holler, scream, shriek, howl, roar, bellow, clamour, whoop, hoot, yelp, cheer, cry, screech, hurrah, yowl, squall, and just plain make noise. It relieves our frustrations and tensions, and clearly emphasizes our point.

We do it for an hour on Friday mornings at pep rallies to raise spirit. We do it at ball games to support our teams. We use it as an outlet for our emotions, and as a means of communication to that person at the other end of the hall. Shouting helps us to be recognized; maybe not always appreciated, but definitely recognized.

I think I'm cracking up!

There's a little bit of crazy in all of us. Occasionally that compulsive little urge deep inside of us makes us long to toilet-paper a house. There's a little voice inside our heads that tempts us to shoe-polish someone's car. At some time or another we feel that craving to wear Bermuda shorts and sunglasses to school in December. Most of us experience a longing to, just once, start a food fight in the cafeteria.

Blame it on stress, the weather, a full moon, lack of sleep, or junk food, but it's there in all of us — that invisible force that leads us to do giddy things not unlike those our little brothers and sisters do.

It usually lies dormant inside, just waiting for a dull moment to break loose and let us have a little fun. And when it does, the result is a broad mixture of different personalities and individuality, making each day something new and special. That's what doing our own thing is all about.

1. Greg Andrews makes school a bit more interesting by doing his own thing. 2. Jason Butler gets into the Christmas spirit by dressing up like a Christmas tree. 3. Jimmy Godfrey drags Mark Edwards off to the Jail booth at the Homecoming carnival. 4. Craig Doyle gives Anne Halpenny and Sheri Martin his "Hey, wanna buy some air?" sales pitch. 5. Lane Boozier watches the world from behind a motorcycle mask. 6. Laura Burr displays her favorite outfit. 7. Dennie Kelley attends a pep rally as a Mouseketeer. 8. Shelley Fanning tries to grin and bear it.

Behind the lines: making it happen

Into every event, performance, or presentation go many hours of preparation and support from the people behind the lines. The endless planning, scheduling, and practice all work toward the final finished product.

Whether it's a choir, debate, drama, cheerleader, Band or Fillie performance; a Student Council dance, assembly, project, or sales campaign; an athletic event, game or competition; a Math Club or Whiz Quiz contest; the production of the school newspaper; or any other special effort, it involves plenty of work on the part of those dedicated people who often don't even get recognized for their work. A salute, a pat on the back, and three cheers to all the folks who work so hard and make it all happen at DHS.

1. Susie Aschenbrenner makes a last-minute check in the mirror to get ready for the Fillie performance, as Michelle Deal adjusts her gloves. 2. Band Director Don Hanna gives instructions to Marnie Cole before the band goes out on the field. 3. Assistant Principal Durwood Tonn turns artist to help paint the Distributive Ed. float. 4. Suzy Sharp and Stuart Fischbeck fix the decorations for the Homecoming dance at the Civic Center. 5. Kelly Short tries to fill a balloon with helium as Chris Page supervises. 6. DECA alumni member Ian Iabell shoe polishes the DECA Homecoming float. 7. Glenn Tanner and Edie Hickman put the finishing touches on their Homecoming float. 8.

POBC: a Pretty Odd Bunch of Crazies

Maybe it's the early morning rehearsals. Maybe it's the funny hats with the feathers. Maybe it's the continual rebleaching of muddy white shoes. Maybe it's the White Glove inspections for dust on the shoelace eyelets.

What is it that makes the Pride of Bronco Country such an unusual group? What makes them regress to childish craziness?

Maybe it's the endless succession of practices, inspections, demerits, new routines, sectionals, tape tests, music memorization, competitions, and uniform changes.

Maybe it's because they keep on playing despite muddy fields, broken instruments, sprained ankles, braces, flat hair, head colds, blood, sweat, and tears. In winter the rain pours, and in summer the sweat pours, yet the music keeps on coming. Without fail, someone's uniform gets lost between the house and the cleaners. Inevitably, something has got to crack.

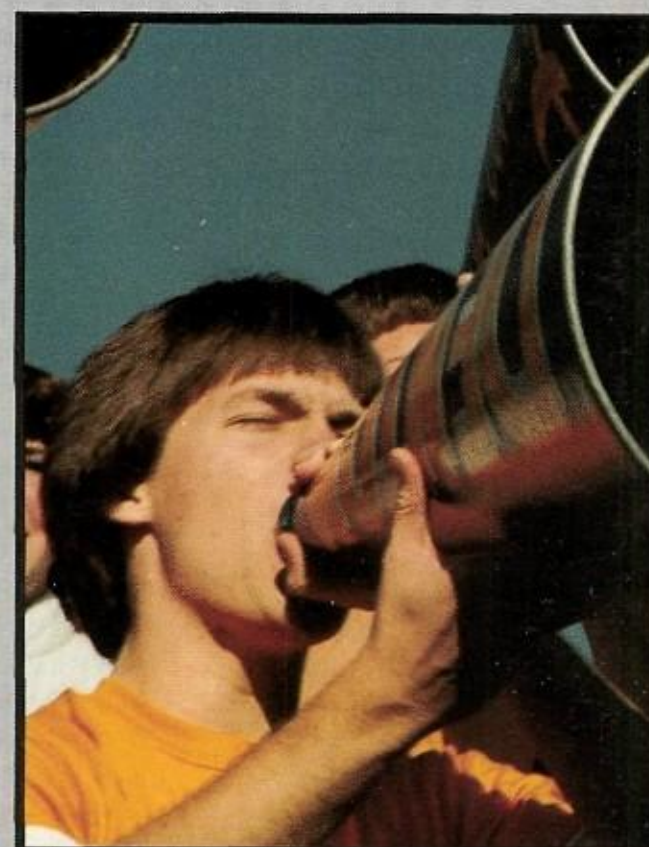

Sooner or later, the burden becomes impossible to bear for another moment, and the Pride of Bronco Country lets it all hang loose.

1. Kimberly Landreth and Tammy Payne hide behind their warm blanket at a football game. 2. Nigel Hiley, John Smith, and Ralph Treitch reveal their true personalities at a pep rally. 3. David Fruth doesn't seem to have any trouble playing his instrument despite his unusual outfit. 4. Charlie Norton may never make it as a Mary Kay representative, but his version of a makeover catches a lot of attention at a pep rally. 5. Alan Fisher finds a perfect place to keep his extra drumstick. 6. Marti Cudd and Lane Boozer dance to music at a football game. 7. Drum Major Libba Stream salutes gives the official salute.

Rowdy Crowd, awesome and then some!

For the initial year of a new club, the Rowdy Crowd got off to a dynamic start! It seems as though, in previous years, it was uncool to really cheer and support your team. There was an overall sense of apathy. Hardly anyone yelled at games, attendance was low at pep rallies, and there was no need felt to get involved. But the class of 84 changed all that!

Some seniors that were mainly responsible for inspiring the Rowdy Crowd were Mark Joslin, Johnny Douthitt, Pam Nunez, Sharon Long, Lori Smith, Staley Faulkner, Craig Doyle, Amanda Alderson, Shelby Baze, Joel Hayes, Todd Kesterson, and

Scott Stephens, just to name a few. They were proud to show that they backed the Broncos 100%. Following their precedent, juniors, sophomores, and more seniors began to join . . . and the crowd grew. Qualifications to be a part of the Rowdy Crowd were few. In fact, membership was not denied to anyone. If you're willing to spend some hard-earned cash on a shirt, be brave enough to chant new cheers that have come to be known and loved by the student body and teachers alike, attend all pep rallies and games, scream until you're hoarse, and generally, make a fool out of yourself in public, you can consider yourself an "official" member.

Thanks to this energetic, crazy, fun-loving group, spirit has seeped back into the student body. The pep rallies are jam-packed, the football team has been backed by a lot of extremely vocal fans, and the Rowdy Crowd has proven that to have a great time, all you've got to do is go for it!

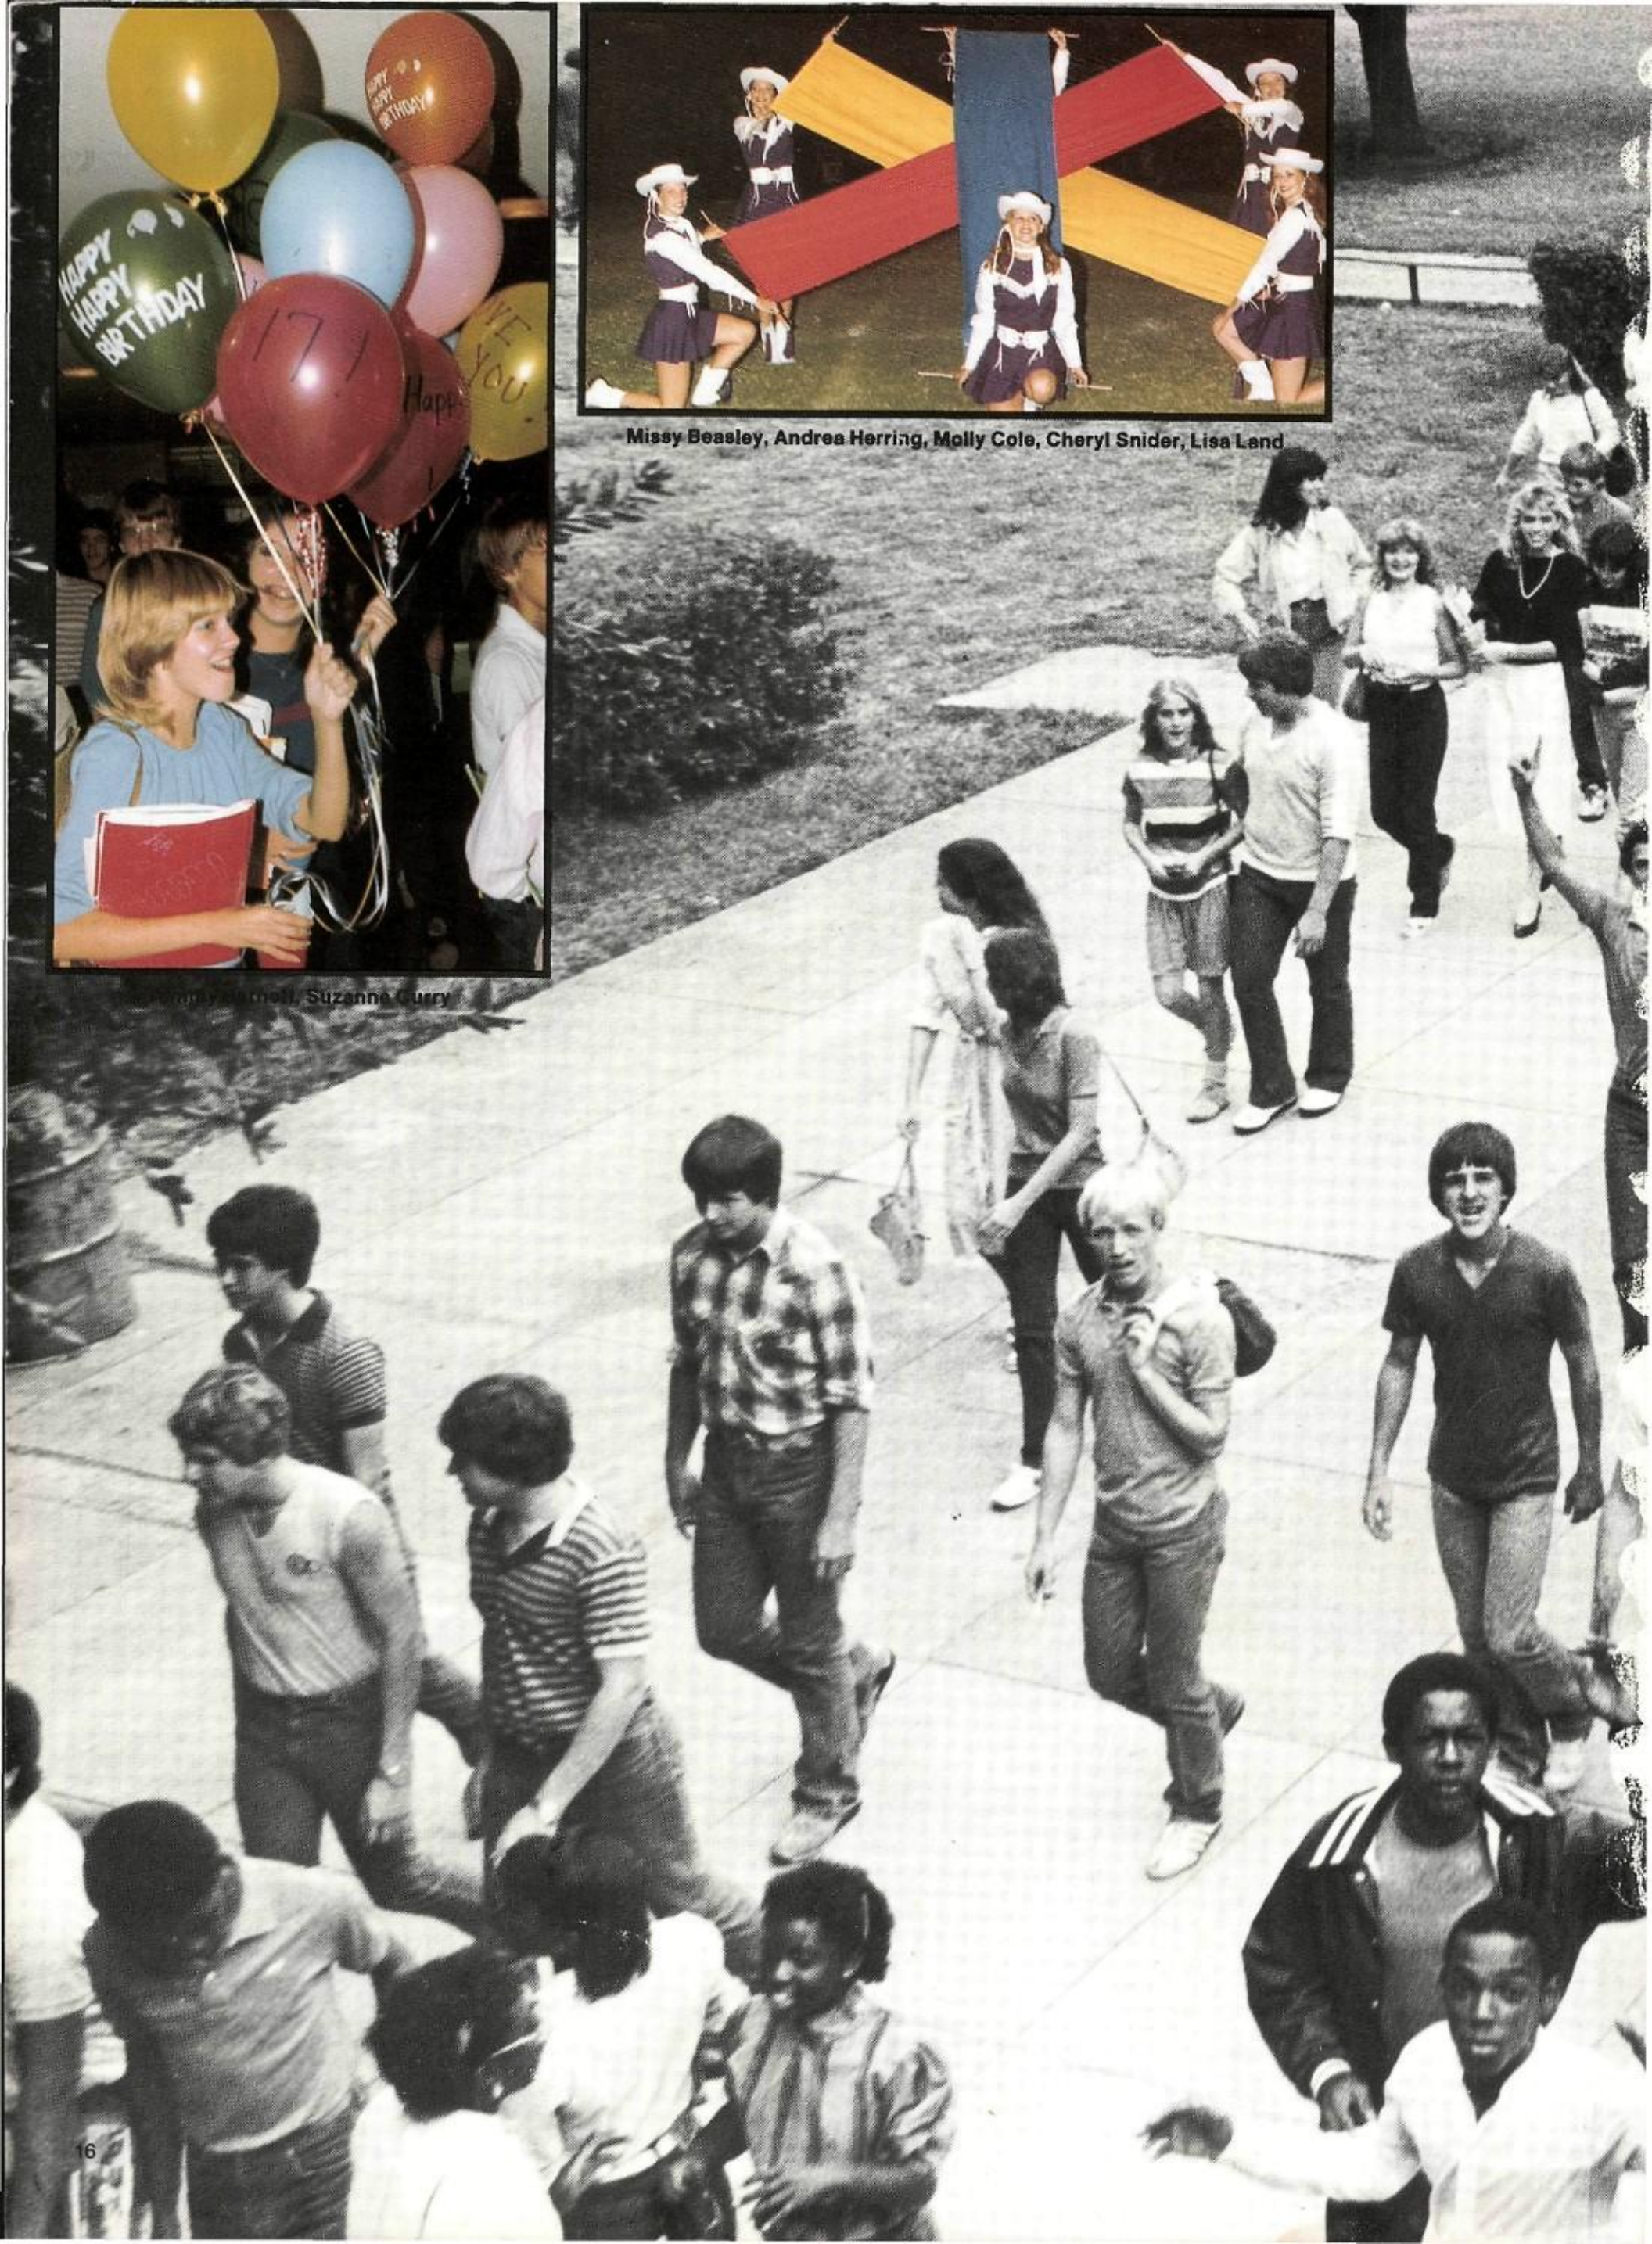

1. Kyle Puckett, Dennis Atkins, Joey Pruett, and Steve Grambling signal that the Broncos are #1 in their hearts. 2. Scott Stephens gets radical as he cheers the Broncos on to win their Homecoming game. 3. Unique "designer" shirts play a big part in helping to distinguish this crowd from the rest, as modelled by Michael Lawrence and Kyle Puckett. 4. A booming megaphone helps Jodi Hays demonstrate his enthusiasm at an outdoor pep rally. 5. Jamming down to the P.O.B.C. play their favorite tune, is Mark Joslin, Michael Lawrence, Johnny Douthitt, and their megaphone buddies. 6. Dynamic duo, Pam Nunez and Lori Smith, along with the rest of the Senior class, congregate during a pep rally to sing the Alma Mater.

Registration Gets School Off to a Good Start

Registration took place on August 24-25. Five hundred and sixty-seven seniors were enrolled, 626 juniors, and 611 sophomores.

As compared with last year, there is an increase in the number of seniors, but there is a decrease in the number of juniors and sophomores.

This year there were eighteen new staff members: Cynthia Ammons, Debbie Bateman, Bob Dees, Steve Forney, Beki Garcia, Sandra Geisler, Cathy Gregory, Julie Hakimoglu, Pat Harberson, Youvonne Matzinger, Janet Melton, Adela

Nunez, Bobby Vaughn, Sharon Veazey, Maria Wagnon, Donna Ware, Jane Welborn, and Debbie Wilson.

Last year there were two sections in the introduction to computers classes, but this year there are a total of seven sections.

Grammar, composition, literature make up English curriculum

Students are required to take three years of English for graduation, but four years are recommended for college.

There are 15 English teachers with Willie Mae Burlage serving as the department chairperson. Three new teachers, Jane Welborn, Debbie Wilson, and Cathy Gregory, were added this year.

The classes offered in the English department are as follows: English I-B, which is a course for those students who failed to receive credit for ninth grade English; English II-B, a course designed to meet the language needs of those students who desire to enter the work force immediately after graduation; English II stresses the genre approach to literature and begins a broadened approach to literature; English II-H is a course geared to the academically oriented student; English III-B is offered as a follow-up course for those juniors who feel the need for a slower pace; English III is a fused program of literature, composition, and language; English III-H is a course covering American literature from the Colonial period through contemporary literature; Advanced Grammar and Composition is a course designed for college bound students who desire to improve their knowledge of grammar and to polish their writing techniques; Creative Writing is a course designed for students who enjoy expressing themselves in writing; English IV introduces great English authors, English IV, Advanced Placement, develops the students' awareness of language and skills in critical reading and effective writing.

Computers and math: A winning combination

Approximately 250 students are involved in the 10 introductory and 2 advanced computer courses offered. The computer lab, containing 20 Apple II computers, is used continuously from 7:30 A.M. to 4:30 p.m. each day.

In the introductory courses, students learn BASIC programming fundamentals and word processing. The advanced courses offer a higher level language, PASCAL. The courses prepare students for higher level courses in college or for entry level opportunities for on-the-job training in business. All classes are challenged daily by activities such as problem solving, programming, word processing, and graphics.

The advanced classes went to the IBM offices in Las Colinas in December. The students saw the high speed laser printer, and telecommunication linkup systems. They were also shown the large mainframe computers with tremendously large storage and computing capabilities. The introductory class saw a demonstration of computer applications here at DHS including the robot in metal trades class, the flight simulator in AFROTC, the graphics printer in commercial art, and the word processor on Vocational Office Education.

The computer lab is open every day from 3:30-4:30 for individual use. Students come in regularly to work on assignments, subjects other than programming, and individual projects. Another popular use is that of using the PSAT and SAT tutor disks. The student need not be a programmer to use these disks and help is available.

The Math Team consisting of 25 members; the Varsity Computer Team, made up of Bryan Patrick, Scott Iverson, and Heath Gulden; and the Junior Varsity Computer Team made up of Jason Weinstein, David Croley, and Chris Pearce, compete in many local and regional competitions. One goal of the Math Team was to win an invitational competition which they did at Plano and South Grand Prairie.

Science department offers variety of courses

The science department offers a wide range of courses. Courses offered include Applied, Biology, Cell Structure and Function, Zoology/Botany, Genetics/Microbiology, Human Development, Geology, Oceanography/Atmospheric Science, Chemistry, Physics and Advanced Science.

Advanced Science is taught as a laboratory course with student discovery as the emphasis. During the course, students conduct their own basic research project. A student, however, may take the course "by invitation only."

The 7 member Junior Engineering and Technical Society (JETS) may have been small, but they were active. In September, they had a beginning of the year swimming party. They also attended Career Day at Texas A&M University, and the annual JETS Conference.

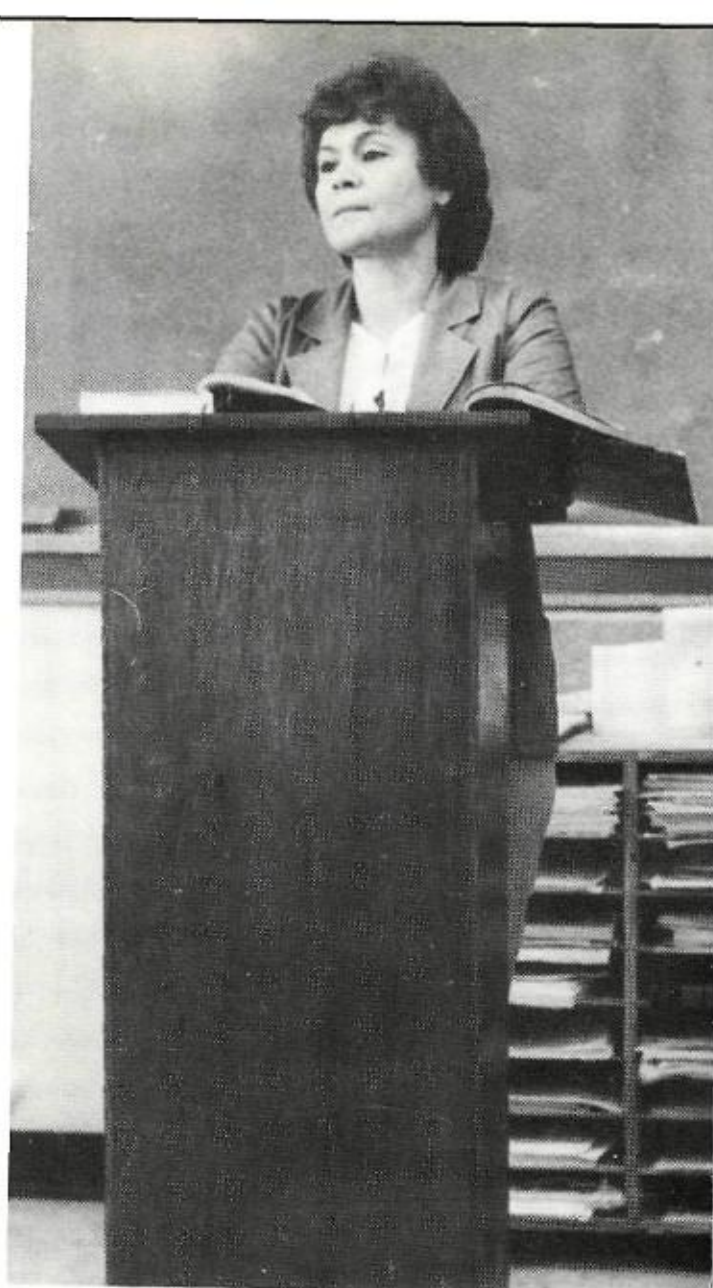

Although it did not win, their pumpkin entry with the theme of Women in Engineering, made a strong statement.

1. Scott Blackwell heats a substance in chemistry. 2. Kerrie Nelson and Jennifer Mooney contemplate what to do next for an experiment. 3. Barbara Neel, science teacher, tests the temperature of a liquid. 4. Bob Clark and Tina Conley look at a temperature for a lab. 5. Christi Carnes and Craig Doyle measure chemicals for their lab experiments. 6. Jeff Culp and Alan Hanna heat tubes with a heat lamp. 7. Social Studies offers opportunities

All students are required to take at least 1 year of world history and 1 semester of government in order to graduate. Psychology is a one-semester course offered to juniors and seniors that helps the student to better understand and deal with human behavior. Sociology is also a one-semester course offered to juniors and seniors, but it deals with the problems of living in groups. Free Enterprise System is a course designed to give an understanding of the characteristics, the organization, and the operations of the American free enterprise system. All of the above courses prepare students for further studies in higher education or for applications to life in general.

Youth get involved in government

Students participated in 2 branches of Youth in Government, legislative and judicial. In the judicial branch, students presented cases at mock trials. In the legislative branch, students wrote mock bills and participated in hearing committees and full House or Senate sessions.

Both branches go to a District meet where they compete against other high school students. The legislators may go on to the state conference in Austin if their bill is selected by a committee to go.

1. JoAnn Hughes, Paige Garner, Sherri Vitro, Andy Ingram, and John Purvis are absorbed in their note-taking. 2. Mrs. White pauses for a moment during her lesson. 3. Mark Carubia debates his bill at District. 4. Holly Hogan, Cheri Nooning, Tamera Beck, Linda Stevens, Les Smith, and Jackie Williams all have different thoughts on the day's lesson. 5. Congressman Tom Vandergriff speaks to government classes. 6. Bryan Curran and Bob Clark take notes in history. 7. Jill Jester and Angie Jester approach the bench along with the opposing attorney team. 8. Mark Carubia and Charles Peckham cast their ballots for Governor.

Business classes help students in needed skills

Can you type forty words a minute? Can you take notes faster than the speed of light? Could you balance a checkbook?

The business classes consist of Typing I and II, Business Law, Record Keeping, Accounting I and II, and shorthand.

They help students develop skills they will need in school and even after graduation. Over a hundred students are enrolled in a business class and every year the number increases.

French classes play creative learning games

There's more to French classes than fried potatoes. They entered a float in the homecoming parade, participated in the International dinner, sang French songs, learned a French dance, and played French learning games.

The float entry was a paper mache L'arc de Triophe, which is a monument that glorifies Napoleon, the Emperor of France 1804-1815. The monument is one of the main tourist attractions of Paris.

Many appetizing dishes were at the French table during the International dinner. A few dishes brought by students were chocolate mousse, cherry tarts, and rice pudding.

Fritz Desir taught the song Somme-nous Tristes? to the classes, which means are we sad when translated. Cathy Kerr of Texas Womans University taught a French dance for contest. Susan Jones of North Texas State University showed a Notre Dame slide presentation.

The French classes also did learning games used to expand the vocabulary. The games consisted of daily tasks such as setting the table, going shopping, and getting dressed. It sounds easy but saying each object in French as you set the table can be difficult. Going shopping and writing down what you bought and where you bought it at in French can take up quite a bit of time. But putting on as many clothes as possible and naming them correctly as you take them off, while being timed, takes the cake.

Root-beer chugging marathons part of German club

German Club did an outstanding job at the German competition. Other events they were in this year included the pumpkin contest, Homecoming parade, the international dinner, and a picnic.

At the International dinner the German food table offered traditional foods such as apple strudel, sauerkraut, and sausage.

At the German festival held in Dallas, students competed in rootbeer chugging, bike racing, a marathon, and dictation speech. Stephanie Maher placed second in the marathon, while Frankie Cansler and Mark Delashaw did dictation.

Saturnalia proves to be Latin's main event

Junior Classical League is a scholastic and social organization for Latin students. Members compete in individual and team levels in aspects of Latin language and culture.

Events in which JCL participated included the pumpkin contest, homecoming parade, international dinner, elves' workshop, and Saturnalia.

This was the first year Latin won an award in the homecoming parade. The float, an orange Corvette with a giant Ritz cracker on top, won the best decorated car prize.

Grapes, cheese, soldier bread, pork roast with fruit glaze, pear pudding, and Oxyporium were a few of many items on the Latin table at the International dinner.

At the elves workshop members prepared

Christmas gifts for the Denton State School.

Saturnalia, the Roman winter festival, was definitely one of the most interesting and exciting events for JCL. Alicia Leath won the best costume for girls. She was dressed as a Roman lady. Freshmen Tim Hartsburg and Mike Garvey, dressed as Latin skirmishers, tied for the boys best costume. Tim Newman received a special award for his Roman numeral costume.

1. Alicia Leath feeds her master, Matt Mailman, grapes at Saturnalia. 2. Mark Sprinkle waits atop the JCL float for the homecoming parade to start. 4. Darren Brock makes Christmas gifts for the Denton State School.

Spanish Club gets involved in school events

Spanish had several interesting activities this year. They had a Mexican Fiesta, homecoming float entry, carnival booth, participated in the International dinner, attended the Texas Woman's University Mexican celebration, and had a Christmas party.

At the homecoming carnival, Spanish students had a balloon board up for a dart throw game. Their homecoming float entry consisted of club members dining at a table being serenaded by a violinist and singer.

At the International dinner the Spanish table offered dishes of tortilla chips and spicy dip, apple crisps, and Paella. Paella is a chicken, fish, fried rice, and vegetable dish. It was the dish closest to the actual dish of Spain at the dinner.

All the outside of class work from students paid off when Spanish received the first place sweepstakes award in the great pumpkin contest.

A funfilled evening at Mardi Gras ball

The annual Mardi Gras was a fun-filled evening. Approximately 150 people attended the event, which has been a foreign language activity for four years. The contest, refreshments, and dancing made Mardi Gras a night to remember.

Anne Bresnahan was crowned Mardi Gras Queen with Peter Boatright as King. The court consisted of Jessica Allen, Jeff Culp, Toni Provenza, Matt Mailman, Katie Boyd, and Roger Taylor. Both students maintain an "A" average and plan to attend college. Anne, a junior, plans to continue her education after high school graduation. Fitness stressed in P.E., health

A student is required to take one semester of health and three semesters of P.E.

The health classes study many different units such as Understanding Yourself, Human Sexuality, and Social Drugs: Your Decision.

In October, health students had to make a collage of their many likes and dislikes. This project helped students because they had to talk in front of a group, and it allowed them to get to know each other better.

Each student in P.E. class is given the opportunity to achieve complete physical fitness. The goal in each class is to develop skills in the activity; a stronger, more flexible body; and a more efficient cardiovascular system.

At least two times each semester the Texas Governor's Commission on Physical Fitness Tests are given. The test includes the following: two minutes to do as many situps as the student can, which tests the student's abdominal strength and endurance; an arm hang for girls and chin ups for boys, which examines the upper body, shoulder, and arm strengths and measures endurance; and a timed one and one-half mile run, which determines one's cardiovascular strength and one's endurance.

The courses offered are dance-n-fit, team sports, and individual sports. Dance-n-fit is entirely a fitness class. This class includes floor exercises, which promote flexibility, muscle tone, and aerobic activities such as aerobic dance and a running program. Basketball, softball, and volleyball are the team sports that are offered. Badminton, tennis, archery, and bowling are the individual sports that are offered.

For the first time ever, this year one of the boys' classes was involved in a musical exercise program which was quite a success.

1. Lisa Harris discusses a collage of her likes and dislikes in health class. 2. Jana Bezdek tightens stomach muscles with leg lift exercises. 3. Eric Sardina lets other students get to know him better by discussing his likes and dislikes. 4. Lisa Racina "bicycles" during P.E. 5. Carmen Alexander entertains the health class with her collage presentation. 6. Tonya Buchanan, Alina Young and Amy Williams workout. 7. Shelly Jones works on toning her muscles in the weight lifting room.

Pride, Stride, and the American Way!

Early one August morning, the Pride of Bronco Country began once again. While other students slept, the band drilled for hours in the hot sun. While others watched T.V., band students memorized music. While others enjoyed a full three months of summer, the band gave up an entire month of theirs.

As school began, summer band was over, but practice was not. Every morning at 7:30, the band drilled on the practice field. Every Thursday afternoon from 4-5, the band played for the Fillies' practice and practiced more themselves. All this practice and dedication paid off at the first half-time.

At the Plano Marching Festival, the Pride of Bronco Country received a First Division Rating, and Drum Major, Libba Stream, was rated Outstanding Drum Major.

The University Interscholastic League Marching Contest at the University of Texas at Arlington, which followed Plano, also proved to be very successful for the band. There, the band also received a First Division and was rated to be one of the top two bands in the region. The top two bands in the UIL competition advanced to the State Competition in Austin.

So off to Austin the band went. The night the band arrived, they were given a special tour of the Capitol by DHS government teacher Kay Norman.

At the State Contest, the band placed sixth, as compared to last year's eighth.

After marching season, the band moved from the marching field to the concert stage. The marching band was divided into the Symphonic Band and the Concert Band after tryouts. White marching uniforms were traded in for black tuxedos and long black dresses. A mid-winter and spring concert are held each year.

During the concert season, the band participated in Solo-Ensemble Contests and the UIL Concert and Sightreading competition. Throughout the year, the band sold pizza kits to raise money for the spring trip to Nashville, Tennessee. There the band performed in the Opryland Music Festival.

More than just a band director

According to band director Don Hanna, "everyone is important." According to the band, though, the most important person is the band director himself. Spending 55-70 hours a week at the school, Mr. Hanna is truly dedicated to his job.

As his fifth year at Denton High, he said that "competitions reflected that this was the best band we have ever had. We came out in the top two marching bands at regional competition and placed sixth in the State Competition. The Concert bands reflected the same improvement."

Assisting Mr. Hanna this year were Assistant Band Director Cody Birdwell and Calhoun's Assistant Band Director Richard Kleine. Also assisting with the flags and rifles were Mr. and Mrs. Mar Harman.

With all of the recent controversy about the value of extracurricular activities, Mr. Hanna had much to say about the importance of band and extracurricular activities in general. "One only has to look to our great philosophers to realize the importance of music and all the fine arts. Plato felt that a person's personality and character were determined by the music he listened to.

"Besides the philosophical implications of music playing an important role in the well being of a person, band in particular teaches discipline, responsibility, and the important ingredient of team work which are all so vitally important to an individual in the society he will live in. I feel that all extracurricular activities add to the enrichment of students and in many cases keep them interested in the basics. They should be coupled together, because they enhance each other.

"Without good fundamentals in the basics, a musician will suffer. The successful music student needs the organization of mathematics to yield an understanding of rhythm, the knowledge of literature and history to give insight into the society music depicts, the organization of sentences and phrases which are apparent in all music, and the reasoning powers and the experimentation of the sciences that help the musician understand and organize the music being performed. Art is a reflection of our society, and band being our medium, we need all the basics we can avail ourselves to properly reflect our art; and our basics need art as a vehicle for that expression.

"Yes! I am proud of my students!" exclaimed Mr. Hanna. "Competitions reflect how well they perform, but the thing I am most proud of is their effort, giving their best in preparing the music, working hard in rehearsals, and being devoted to the Pride of Bronco Country!"

"I feel that we have many good musicians, but my greatest rewards and satisfactions come from seeing the kids set goals, working hard to achieve those goals, and performing at their optimum! The biggest thrill I receive from teaching band after a musically palatable performance is the satisfaction and elation I see in the students."

1. Band director Don Hanna gives the band one last pep talk outside the Capitol in Austin. 2. Clark Thompson, David Williams, and Rex Jennings march 8 to 5 in summer band. 3. Orchestra proves to be an every day challenge

Orchestra is an enrichment program that provides a musical background for students that are interested in all kinds of music. It offers serious music students an opportunity to excel if they desire to do so.

Orchestra offers a challenge on a daily basis. The music played by the orchestra is within the students ability level, yet demanding.

The usual orchestra rehearsals consist of tuning, warm up drills, sight reading, rehearsing future program music, and sometimes playing a piece that students enjoy.

Orchestra students may try out for All Region and All State Orchestra. Seven students made All State while fourteen students made All Region Orchestra. Other competitions students may participate in are solo and ensemble contest, UIL concert and sight reading contest, and area festivals.

Orchestra students must structure their activities in order to maintain good academic grades and still have time to practice. Students, through their orchestra activities, add another dimension to their lives which will be a source of enjoyment and interest all their adult lives.

Debate class produces well-rounded speakers

Debate is a specialized course which trains the student to analyze current social, political and economic problems. Students develop analytical skill, quick thinking, ability to defend worthy ideas, develop research techniques, strategy, logic and reasoning, refutation with persuasive delivery through classroom debates and competition with other schools in this area. Debate competitive events offered in forensic tournaments in-

“Horseshoe” staff, journalism students learn mass communications

An interview with Journalism teacher Carol Narsutis;

Q: Why do you think Journalism is so important?

A: Journalism involves the very basics of written and oral communication. Students are taught to write clearly and concisely, which is an art they can use in almost any profession.

Q: What is the most important thing about good journalism that you try to teach your students?

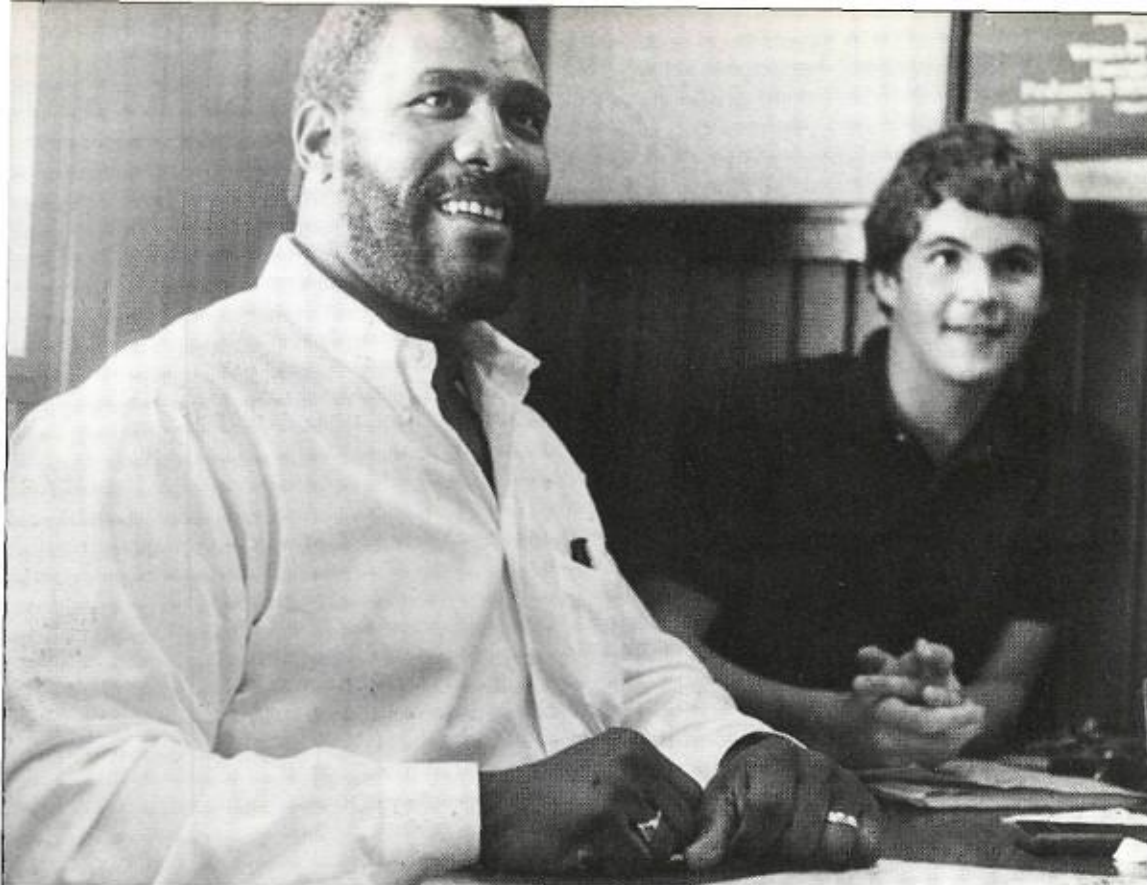

A: Accuracy and meeting deadlines. It makes no difference how good of a writer a student is; if he cannot get it written on time, it is of very little value to a publication.

Q: Is there a certain trend, a particular type of person, whom you find to be interested in Journalism? What do you find in common with most of your students?

A: Usually journalism students have above average grades, are highly motivated, and enthusiastic. They are interested in what is happening around school and are usually involved in many school activities.

Q: What do you think about the new policy, in some places, to accept Journalism for English credit?

A: Absolutely! A good journalism course should receive an English credit, especially if other subjects such as creative writing, technical writing, business writing, etc.

ceive English credit. As it stands now, Journalism will be a substitute for English next year on the general track.

Q: What do you think motivates you and your students to be interested in journalism, publications, and communications?

A: I think the appeal of the journalism field is the excitement of it. You get to meet such a wide variety of people that you would otherwise have no reason to even talk to. You also get to create, not only with writing skills, but with the graphics of a page.

Q: You have been involved with Journalism for 15 years. Do you see a change in methods, ethics, or styles in today's Journalism as compared to that of 15 years ago?

A: There is more of a trend toward the visual media; also more in depth stories rather than short straight news. The reason being that newspapers find it very difficult to be first with the news due to television and radio. Therefore, newspapers and magazines are being used to go more in depth, providing additional information that television does not have time for.

Q: So many reporters and other journalists today are put down by the public, and given a bad reputation as being nosey, prying into people's private lives, getting information by dishonest means, (misrepresentation), and exaggeration in stories, and other things. How do you feel about this? Do you see it happening? Do you believe that one must get a story at all costs?

A: It is true that a few journalists thrive on the sensational aspects of stories. This is poor journalism and one should try not to succumb to exaggeration, or, in some cases, complete fabrication. Journalists have an ethical creed and should abide by it. As in any profession, a few who misuse their power can give everyone a bad reputation, but as a whole, I believe good journalists are highly respected. They have a very tough job to do, but also an extremely rewarding one.

Yearbook Staff: Creating a masterpiece

Imagine it.

It is fifth period, in a roomful of crazed students all wearing loud purple shirts. They are scattered around the room at various tables, occupied with large layout sheets and piles of black and white pictures.

At a table, sports editor Tim Trotter has just told a joke to a group of staff members, who are all roaring with delight. At the other end of the table, Parvaneh Moran and Christiane Barteel fight over who borrowed whose grease pencil.

"Club pictures; get 'em while they're hot!" announces Mike Farlow as he emerges from the darkroom, squinting and holding handfuls of photos.

"What am I gonna do?!" wails Sotella Smith. "No one showed up at the club meeting I'm supposed to have pictures of, except the sponsor and the president!"

"Who assigned me to take pictures on Friday night? I can't do it, I have a date," John Smith grumbles.

"Where is Anne Iverson?" someone asks.

"She's in the hospital; she had her appendix taken out," Laura Maxson explains. "I guess we get to do her pages now — we're so lucky!"

"Gosh, some people will do anything to get out of Band tryouts!" Doug Yeager complains. "Trey, do you have a car? I need you to take pictures at a club meeting," asks a staff member.

"No, man, I wrecked it last night. Oh, it was great. This lady just rammed right into me. Totalled my Camaro. Oh, man, it was really massive!" He proceeds to give the gory details as Mrs. Carol Narsutis rolls her eyes and adds Trey to the list of Photographers with Wrecked Cars.

"Wait a minute, there's something wrong here," Steve Yeager insists. "This paper says I have to be in full costume to take pictures at this party ... It's a toga party!" The whole room explodes with laughter. Mrs. Narsutis gives him a sympathetic glance.

The telephone rings. Editor Kerin Smith answers. "Journalism room, Zookeeper speaking."

Students get creative in art classes

In the art classes there are approximately 200 students.

The art classes learn about: line, texture, form, color theory, color mixing, color harmonics, principles of design, charcoal drawing, water coloring, plaster sculptures, oil painting, acrylic painting, graphics, portrait painting, and many other things.

In the beginning art classes, the students learn to appreciate their surroundings. They learn that art enriches and exposes beauty.

There are several students in art class that desire to become artists, particularly some of the students in Art III and IV. A teachers are Mary LaJean Sherrill and Billy Jack Normile.

1. Terry Reedy and Ann Bonner work on oil paintings. 2. Tracy Poeschl paints an oil painting. Mary LaJean Sherrill's art class. 3. Commercial Art prepares students for careers

In the commercial art classes this year, there was a total of 33 students. VICA is a club in which 95% of the commercial art students are involved. Through the club, students are able to enter many contests. Within the last ten years, the students have made the national finals three times.

In addition to doing projects similar to those done in a regular art class, commercial art students also perform applied art. Advertisements, book covers, and illustrations are just a few of the things these students do. The more advanced students accept jobs from the public.

Upon graduation from high school, a commercial art student should be able to go out and find a job in this field, but commercial art teacher George Cadell encourages his students to go to college and get degrees in this field.

Woodshop provides students with the knowledge of the methods and materials of the industry. This includes safety and proper use of hand and power tools, with actual shop project emphasis.

Drafting is set up as four courses: General Drafting I, General Drafting II, General Drafting III, and General Drafting IV. General Drafting I explores the fundamentals of mechanical drawing.

General Drafting II covers the needed information which enables a student to draw a complete set of house plans.

General Drafting III teaches the fundamentals of engineering drafting.

General Drafting IV covers advanced information in drawing complete house plans, model house construction, and the art of rendition.

Crafts consists of two courses: Crafts I and Advanced Crafts. In Crafts I a student learns about such crafts as leather crafts, wood-working, thermo-plastics, and metal arts.

Building Trades provides learning experiences in carpentry and masonry. This year Building Trades built drafting tables for the Journalism department and remodeled homes in Denton.

Industrial Cooperative Training (ICT) provides learning experiences toward skilled industrial occupations.

Air conditioning students learn to "keep cool"

In the Air Conditioning/Refrigeration classes there are 24 students.

Air conditioning students spend much time doing repair work for customers and working on service calls. They received a new bus from the school district for this purpose.

This year these students worked on the installation of the heating and cooling systems in a new house.

Annually, students from the air conditioning classes compete in contests through the VICA. These contests are based on U.S. Olympic Standards.

The career field of air conditioning open to men and women equally. Upon graduation, an Air Conditioning/Refrigeration student should be able to get a job at an air conditioning or refrigeration company.

2. Ricky Taylor and Dale Driskill wrap duct in a new house. 3. Tony Karkhoff, Chris Melton, Dale LaCaze, Lenny Perkins, Larry Gilmore, Rod Juarez, Henry Galindo, Air conditioning teacher Bob Ryan, and Russell Kerlee ride in the new conditioning bus to go on a service call. 4. Jim Byers, Vice President of air conditioning, staples and wraps duct.

Auto Mechanics, Auto Body keep cars running smoothly, looking good

Following an hour of classroom activities, auto mechanics students work in groups of two or three on job assignments for the public. The students have six stalls in which to work.

Because of the rapid changes that are taking place in cars, these students are continually challenged. The compactness of the new cars gives the students the challenge of inaccessibility.

Annually the students can enter contests through the VICA. These contests are judged in the areas of Projects and Skill.

After an auto mechanics student graduates, he should be able to get into a beginning or entry level mechanical trade.

In the auto body classes there was a total of 31 students. In November these students got together for a barbeque at the Round-up club.

A challenge that the auto body students participate in every year is the putting together of two cars sawed in half that have been salvaged from wrecks.

Through the VICA, students are able to enter competition judged in two areas: Show competition, and Speed and Skill. These contests allow students to compete on an equal basis with other students from different schools.

FFA — Growing Strong

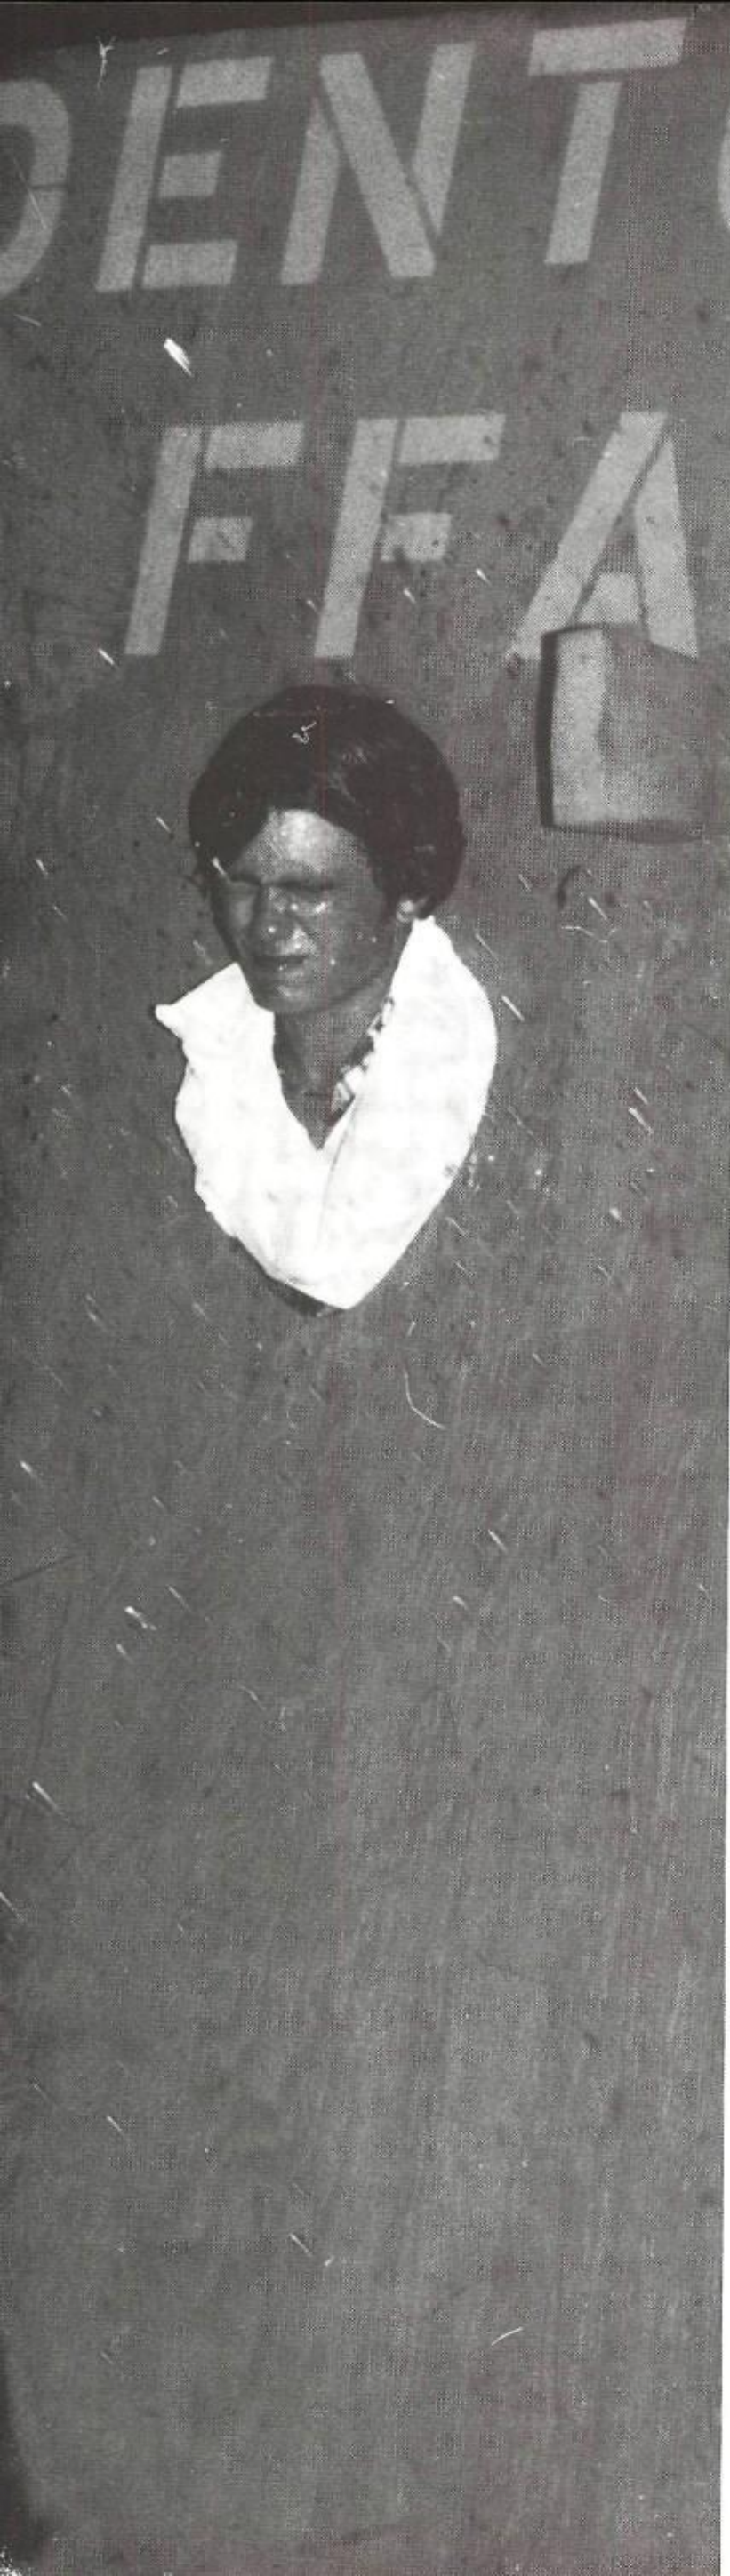

As you walk into the vocational building and take a left at the junction of the halls, you will find yourself in the Agriculture department, home of Future Farmers of America (FFA). The FFA is one of the largest groups in Denton High School, consisting of about 125 members.

A very active group, they have competed in many different contests, including the North Texas contest, which is held about a week before school starts. They have held many different parties including a Halloween party and a hayride and Bar B-Q. In December, they started their annual tradition of selling different types of fruit, which is their major source of revenue.

They have participated in many school sponsored events including the Homecoming parade and carnival.

Metal Trades learns new production techniques

Every spring, metal trade students take a field trip to a plant such as Victor Equipment Co. or Andrew Corp.

Daily the students have assignments which are graded. These students are evaluated and treated as employees. This prepares them for later employment.

Through the VICA, metal trade students are able to enter competition. Five student machinists and five student welders are permitted to enter, and they are judged in skill-speed contests.

Due to the growth of robotics in industry, the availability of jobs in the metal trades field is limited, and the type of work is ever changing.

Health Occupations Students of America is an organization that trains students in various health careers. The students spend their first year in a Medical Careers training class. Then the students get part-time jobs at doctors' offices, hospitals, pharmacies, and medical laboratories.

In December HOSA held a Parent Appreciation banquet. During the spring HOSA goes to contest, and at the end of the year, an Employer Appreciation banquet is held. HOSA offers an opportunity to meet new people and to become involved in health occupations.

Students are sold on DECA

Students who participate in the DECA program are preparing for careers in marketing and distribution including the retail, wholesale, service, selling, and management aspects.

In class they do activities related to buying, selling, profit, competition, and financial statements. The students have found learning to buy and sell to make a profit, thriving with competition, and being aware of community activities particularly challenging. The DECA program is designed so that a student may go directly into the work force or into management through higher education.

Cosmetology teaches the fine art of looking good

Cosmetology provided learning experiences to satisfy requirements as a fully licensed hairdresser. This class met for three hours per day for three credits per year.

Every Monday Cosmetology was open to the public in the evening from 3:30 to 6:30. On the second Monday of every month from 6:30 to 9:30 at night, the cosmetology students' models modeled their hairstyles.

In October all the officers of Cosmetology went to district competition.

In December the Cosmetology department held a VICA banquet for students and parents.

Also, during the month of December, Cosmetology provided needy families with food baskets.

OEA gets down to work

The Office Education Association was very busy with their many activities. Their Thanksgiving activities included taking the Denton Christian Pre-school stuffed animals and producing a food basket for a needy family. During December members made a mitten tree and made ornaments for the pre-school. They also gave gifts to the Denton State School and wrote letters from Santa to area school children. OEA also did such service projects as typing the school directory and selling jewelry to benefit the Special Olympics.

year's agenda*

Future Homemakers of America and Home Economics and Related Occupations out did themselves this year. The smokeout, candy sales, a dinner and the Christmas boutique item sale were the main projects.

The Clark crispy candy bars benefit them just as much as the successful Christmas item sales. In the Christmas boutique many useful gifts were sold.

Christmas wreaths were made and delivered to Beaumont Nursing Center along with other class made items. At dinner the winners of the Christmas fun iser and their cash prizes were announced. Dana Poe won $50 for selling $650 worth of items, Debbie Hillard won $40 for selling $350 worth; Jeannie Farine won $30 for selling $349 worth and Nancy Savell won $20 for selling $340 worth. They also sponsored the Smokeout, which is part of a national campaign to get people to stop smoking. There was even a student dressed like a turkey collecting cigarettes, the slogan being "Don't be a head duck; quit cold turkey."

HERO differs from FHA in that students also have a job relating to the skills learned in class. Both organizations act on a three level volunteer scale called "encounter." The first level works as a group by involving themselves in school projects, such as the homecoming parade, in which they won the Most Spirited Award. The second level consists of community awareness projects. The third level is the career level which includes the student writing an essay on their career goal including things such as college major and cost.

Social studies students help teachers

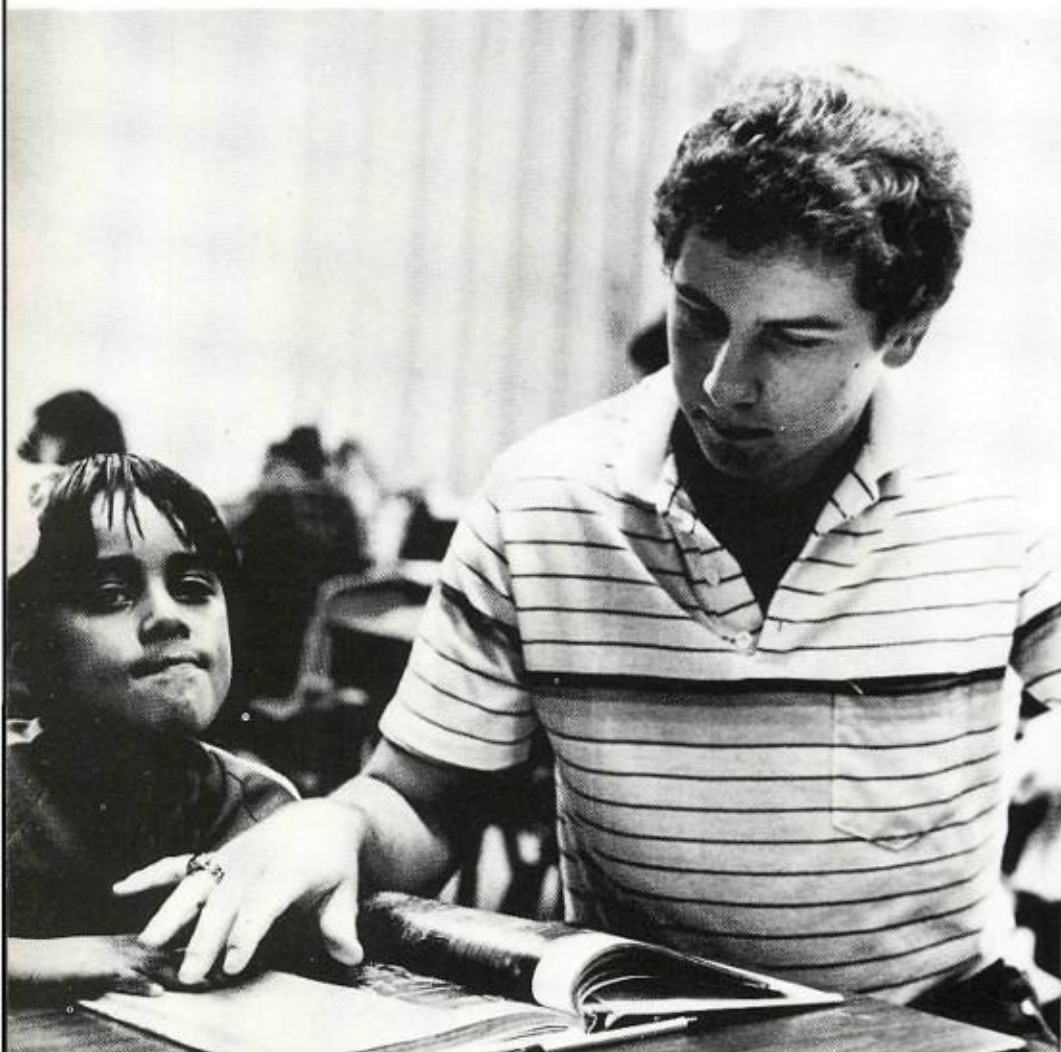

After an orientation program, social studies laboratory students work with students in grades one through six for one semester or two. They assist the teacher rather than taking over the class. Social studies lab students help the teachers on a daily basis. The type of environment the students want to work in is their choice.

Some students chose to work in a regular classroom. Others work with an individual on something they are behind in such as writing skills. Bilingual lab students may choose to work with a non-

English speaking student. Another student may find it fulfilling to work with a resource education class.

No matter what environment the student is working, social studies lab prepares students for a job that involves children.

PELE students study children in the early developmental stage

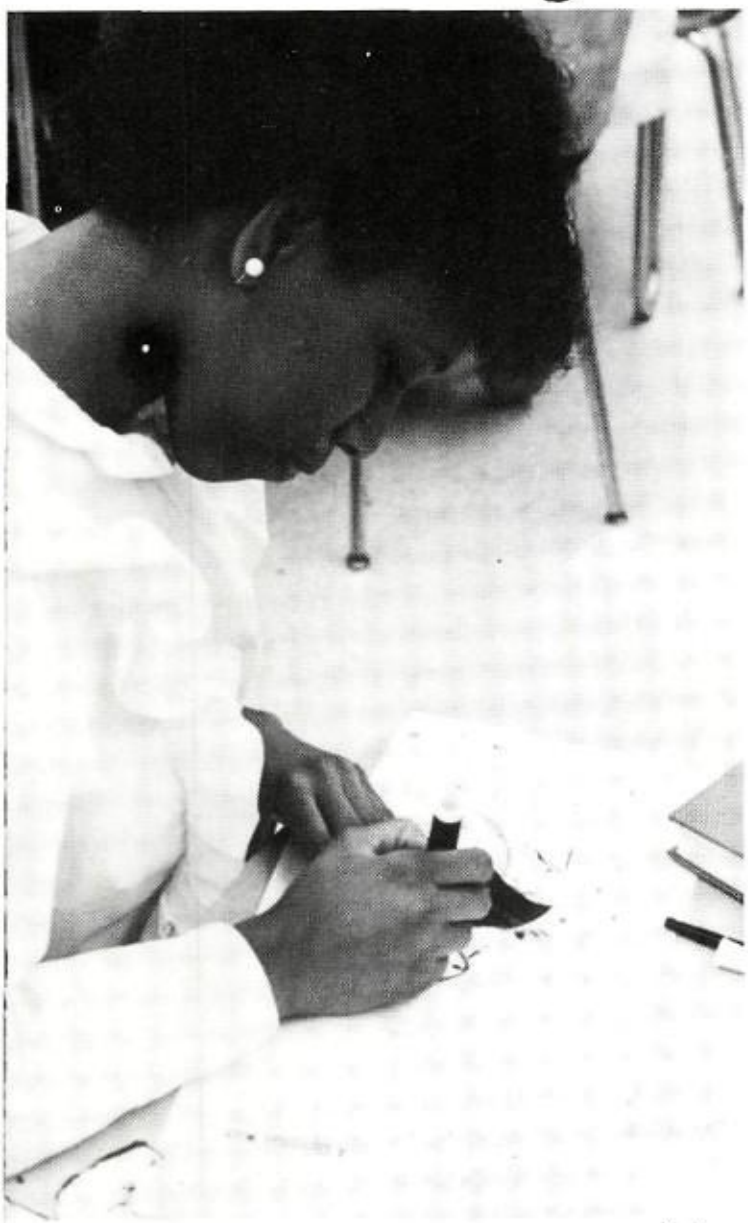

Pre-Employment Laboratory Education is a fairly new course at DHS, yet it is very successful. The students in PELE study early childhood development and reactions. The children the students work with are between three and five years of age and attend nursery school or public kindergarten in Denton.

When a PELE student goes to the school, where he or she is working he goes prepared. They do not teach until they've had the six week training course. After the training course, more child development is learned from the book twice a week.

Many students are enthusiastic about PELE because of the training course and teaching experiences are excellent references when they are applying to work in a day care center.

Honor Society making points with the community

The National Honor Society, one to the largest organizations at Denton High School, consists of students who are some of the most academically outstanding students at DHS. Members must raise funds for the scholarships, maintain a high scholastic rating, be a model citizen, exhibit leadership, and earn a certain number of points to stay in the organization. Members earn these points by participating in a certain number of group activities sponsored by the Honor Society.

Members also sponsor birthday parties at Denton Nursing Center on the last Friday of every month. NHS sponsors many parties including a Halloween party at Denton State School and at the Civic Center.

They help at many concerts and presentations including orchestra's Christmas concert. In addition to all of their other activities, the students also find time to work with the Hobbit Service, the Futorial Service, the Denton Benefit League, UNICEF, The Arts Guild, and the Blook.

Key Club brightens Christmas for State School residents

The Key Club participated in a car park and skeet shoots. Eight people attended a Christmas party that was given for those at the State School.

For a fund-raiser, hats were sold.

The Key Club owns "Spirit," the school mascot. The Honor Guard consists of eight people who are chosen on the basis of active participation in the Key Club and regular attendance, and they are in charge of "Spirit."

The Key Club has slightly over 35 members.

"The Christmas party at the State School was a neat and rewarding experience."

Student Council sponsors numerous events

Sophomore orientation was held the first week of school and many clubs and school rules were explained.

The weather did not cooperate for Homecoming week, but Student Council organized a carnival at which clubs could have a booth for fun and profit. The Homecoming Court and sophomore office election are sponsored by Student Council. The pre-game ceremony to introduce the court is a cooperative project under Mr. Don Hanna's direction.

I.D. cards are made in room 233 all year. The cards have discounts, and they are probably used most often by students who do not have a driver's license as an identification to cash checks.

Mugs of the Southwest Conference and Denton High were sold as a fund raiser.

Camfel Productions brought their multi-media show which was funded from the sale of the mugs.

The Student Council bought a button machine several years ago, and anyone can have a button made from an original design or a photograph for 50¢. Clubs who want a large number of buttons are given a discount.

The favorites skits and elections are held by Student Council members. The Christmas dance was held as a means of introducing the class favorites.

Secret Pals, between teachers and students, are coordinated by SC members. At the conclusion, a coffee is held before school to introduce teachers to their secret pals.

Teachers' birthdays are remembered with a tray of brownies and a birthday card. Every other month a coffee is given for the teachers in honor of the "birthday teachers" for that month.

Student Council also conducts a Foster Grandparent program, sells Balloon-O-Grams and runs the concession stand. The biggest project and the one which takes the most time is Project Adoption. Certain elementary students are selected to receive gifts at Christmas from high school classes. The weather interfered this year, causing school to be cancelled for the same day the students were to come.

at school including practicing twice a day the week before school. After school begins they practice after school several days a week as well as sixth period. They also paint and hang signs for pep rallies Friday mornings.

They teach cheers at a special "Rowdy Crowd" practice, in addition to all of their regular duties. But all their hard work is rewarded with each Bronco victory.

Excellence Shown by Fillies

At the SMU summer camp in July, the Fillies were Sweepstakes winners. A choreography award was also won for outstanding choreography. Nine people were honored all-American candidates, and Karen Herrick and Valinda Cheatham were honored all-American Drill Team Members. Kim Allen received the honor of Who's Who Among American High School Drill Teams.

The Fillies marched in the NTSU Fair Parade in August. The Fillies also hosted their first annual Junior Drill Team Clinic which was very successful. In November the Fillies hosted a High School Drill Team Clinic for the American Drill Team School. In March they will host a Spring Junior Drill Team Clinic.

The Fillies spend much time practicing. On the average they practice from 2:45 until 5:30 p.m. every day.

Each Fillie has to pay approximately $500 which is used to buy different accessories.

The Fillies learn twelve routines, featuring a new routine each week of football season and at some pep rallies. All of the routines are learned in August before school starts. Routines are repeated for basketball season because at the same time they are choreographing and learning new ones for Fillies Follies.

The Fillies participated in many different fund-raisers. Popcorn and Homecoming t-shirts were sold. The Junior Drill Team Clinic, High School Clinic, Fillies Follies, and working at Six Flags helped raise money.

Reserve Officer Training Corp soars to new heights

The AF ROTC program is designed to acquaint school students with the aerospace age, develop informed citizens, strengthen character, promote patriotism, develop an understanding of the role of the citizen airman in a democratic society, and motivate students for careers in aerospace and the United States Air Force.

Benefits from the program are enlistment in a higher rank in the services, college scholarships, service academy nominations and waiver of up to one year of college ROTC.

The ROTC also sponsored a moon rock show which was attended by many elementary as well as high school students. The ROTC also has a rocket club which meets on Saturdays for rocket shoots. They also have a land navigation club.

The ROTC has a new U-Fly-It program where students test their skills by flying and landing a radio-controlled airplane.

The advanced cadets visited the Federal Emergency Management Agency during December. After this they went to the Denton airport. The first year cadets took a field trip to Hensley Field where they observed many types of aeronautic machinery.

Concerts, retreat highlight FCA's year

Fellowship of Christian Anybodies promotes friendship and fun through weekly meetings and special projects. FCA meets on week nights to sing, have fun and discuss upcoming plans.

They can also have lunch on Wednesday at Anita McAlister's house. Mrs. McAlister is the sponsor of FCA. Since she assumed sponsorship of FCA, membership has drastically increased. "She is always there if you need someone to talk to," said senior Lori Smith. "Her door is always open."

Mrs. McAlister also helped coin a new motto "FCA — We're looking up and reaching out at DHS."

Whiz Quiz — Name ring a bell?

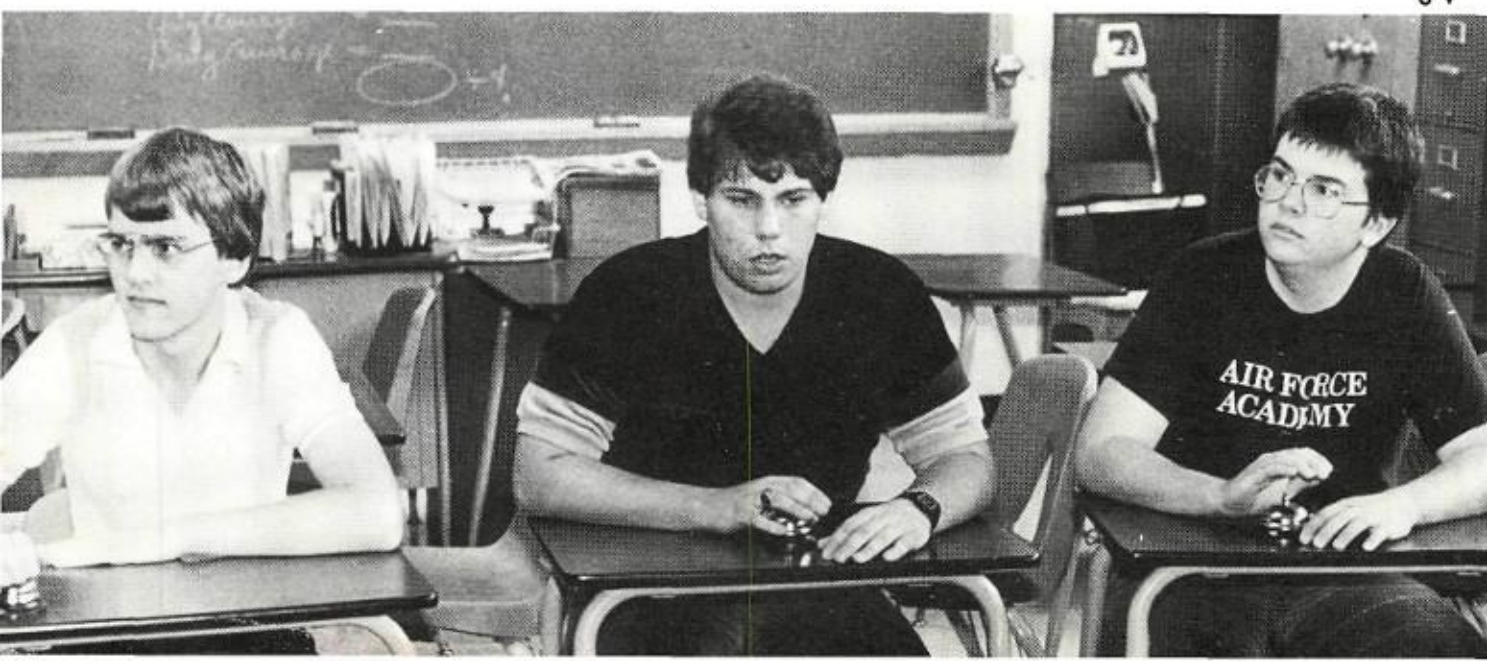

Do you have an ability for quick recall? Are you knowledgeable in many areas of trivia? Well then, you would be just perfect for the Denton High School Whiz Quiz team.

Twenty-four members participated in the organization this year. During each competition, four members participated in each of the rounds. The four were chosen on the number of practice sessions each attended, which were held at least twice a week during the last half of each lunch period, their ability for quick recall, and their knowledge over many different subjects. The North Texas Area Whiz Quiz League (NTAWQL) is the league that the Denton High School Whiz Quiz belongs, along with the Selwyn School, Newman Smith High School, and Lewisville High School.

Achievement, Contact, Equality (ACE)

Achievement, Contact, Equality wanted to do something different this year. They wanted to have an event that was more interesting and exciting than ever before. But as the thirty member organization waited for an awesome idea, time flew by.

Although last year's half Greek show proved to be a unique performance, there wasn't one this year. President Toni Johnson said, "ACE members felt as if we were intruding on a college tradition."

Coordinated Vocational Academic Education (CVAE) stresses skills

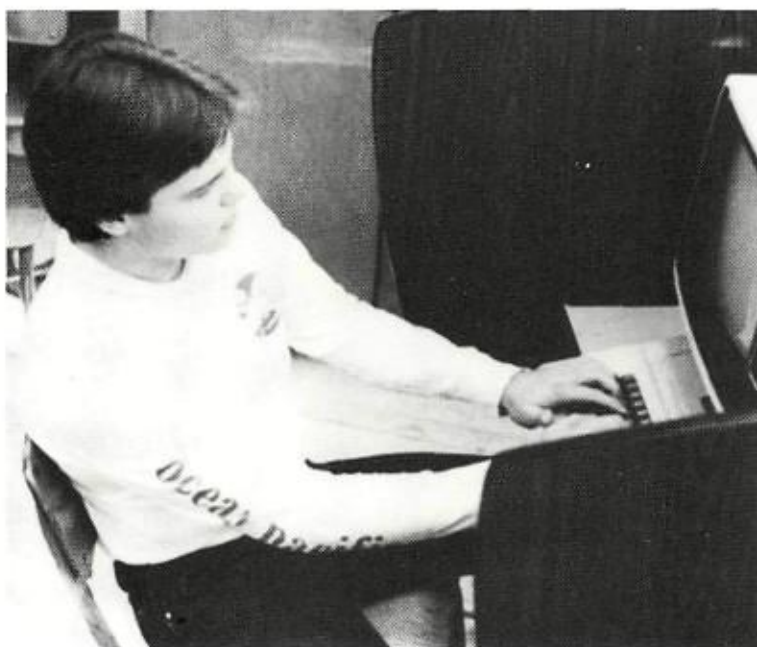

Coordinated Vocational Academic Education is a specially structured set of courses. It consists of two phases that work closely together, the academic classes and the vocational classes. There are three branches of CVAE.

CVAE farm and ranch repair provides learning experiences in a variety of skills which have a broad use in many occupations such as welding and small engine repair.

CVAE horticulture provides learning experiences dealing with plant propagation nursery and greenhouse maintenance and operation.

CVAE cooperative education provides learning experiences in a one hour per day class and at least fifteen hours on-the-day-job employment per week. Emphasis is placed on employability skills. Close coordination is maintained both with the academic teachers and the employer.

1. Bill Thomas improves his skills by working on a CVAE computer program. 2. Sheila Stanley works on a program during academic CVAE. 3. Tina Juarez does an assignment in CVAE English.

Library Aides — The new club on the block

The Library Aides Club, a new club, is an organization in which membership is open to all students who work in or have worked in a public or school library. There are twenty members in the club including officers.

The group has sponsored many parties this year. They held a Get Acquainted party at sponsor Kay McCallon's house. At this party officers were elected and everyone got to know everyone else. They participated in the Halloween Pumpkin Contests, and they made a float for the Homecoming Parade. In February they attended the State Teenage Library Association Meeting in Houston.

There is more to school than just academics. Students' energy and SPIRIT branch out into their various extracurricular activities. In addition to homework, lectures, and tests, students are involved in other activities going on around them. The entertainment media, including movies, TV, music, concerts, and video, are important facets of student life. Holidays bring parties, gift-giving, and special projects. Dating, dance, physical fitness, hobbies, and jobs fill extra hours. These activities gain the devotion and SPIRIT of their participants and keep them active in their school.

Boo!

It seems as though there's a little bit of a child in all of us; and what better opportunity for us to resort to our childhood behaviour than October 31st.

The word Halloween brings back many memories. Among these are bobbing for apples, chilly hayrides, black cats, full moons, funny little costumes, and, of course, bags full of candy. Trick or treating gave us a chance, when we were little, to be independent and out on the streets without our parents. We got to dress up and best of all, we got tons of unhealthy candy. It still sounds like a lot of fun, but when we entered high school, we were told that all that good stuff was "immature."

Peers told us how ridiculous someone in high school would look trick or treating and so we, reluctantly, packed our costumes away and fought the urge when October rolled around. But, mingled in with all the spineless, unimaginative creatures were a few daring, creative individuals who decided that they were going to enjoy Halloween if it killed them.

Clubs and organizations did a variety of things to celebrate Halloween. They had hayrides, parties, and Spook Houses, just to name a few. Many of our fellow classmates were able to get into the spirit of things at their place of employment. Finally, some students dared to be different and wore their costumes to school.

However the holiday was celebrated, Halloween always brings back fun childhood memories and proved to be an exciting night to celebrate!

The Christmas that never was

The Christmas of 1983 was very unusual at Denton High School. The Thursday night before the Christmas holidays, it snowed. On Friday morning all the students awoke bright and eager to go to school. The roads were icy from the snow, therefore the schools were closed.

Much careful planning went into making Friday, December 16, 1983, a memorable day. All the classes that were interested participated in Project Adoption. Each class was given the name of an elementary student that would qualify for Project Adoption. The students of the classes collected money to be able to buy the child Christmas presents that he or she needed and desired.

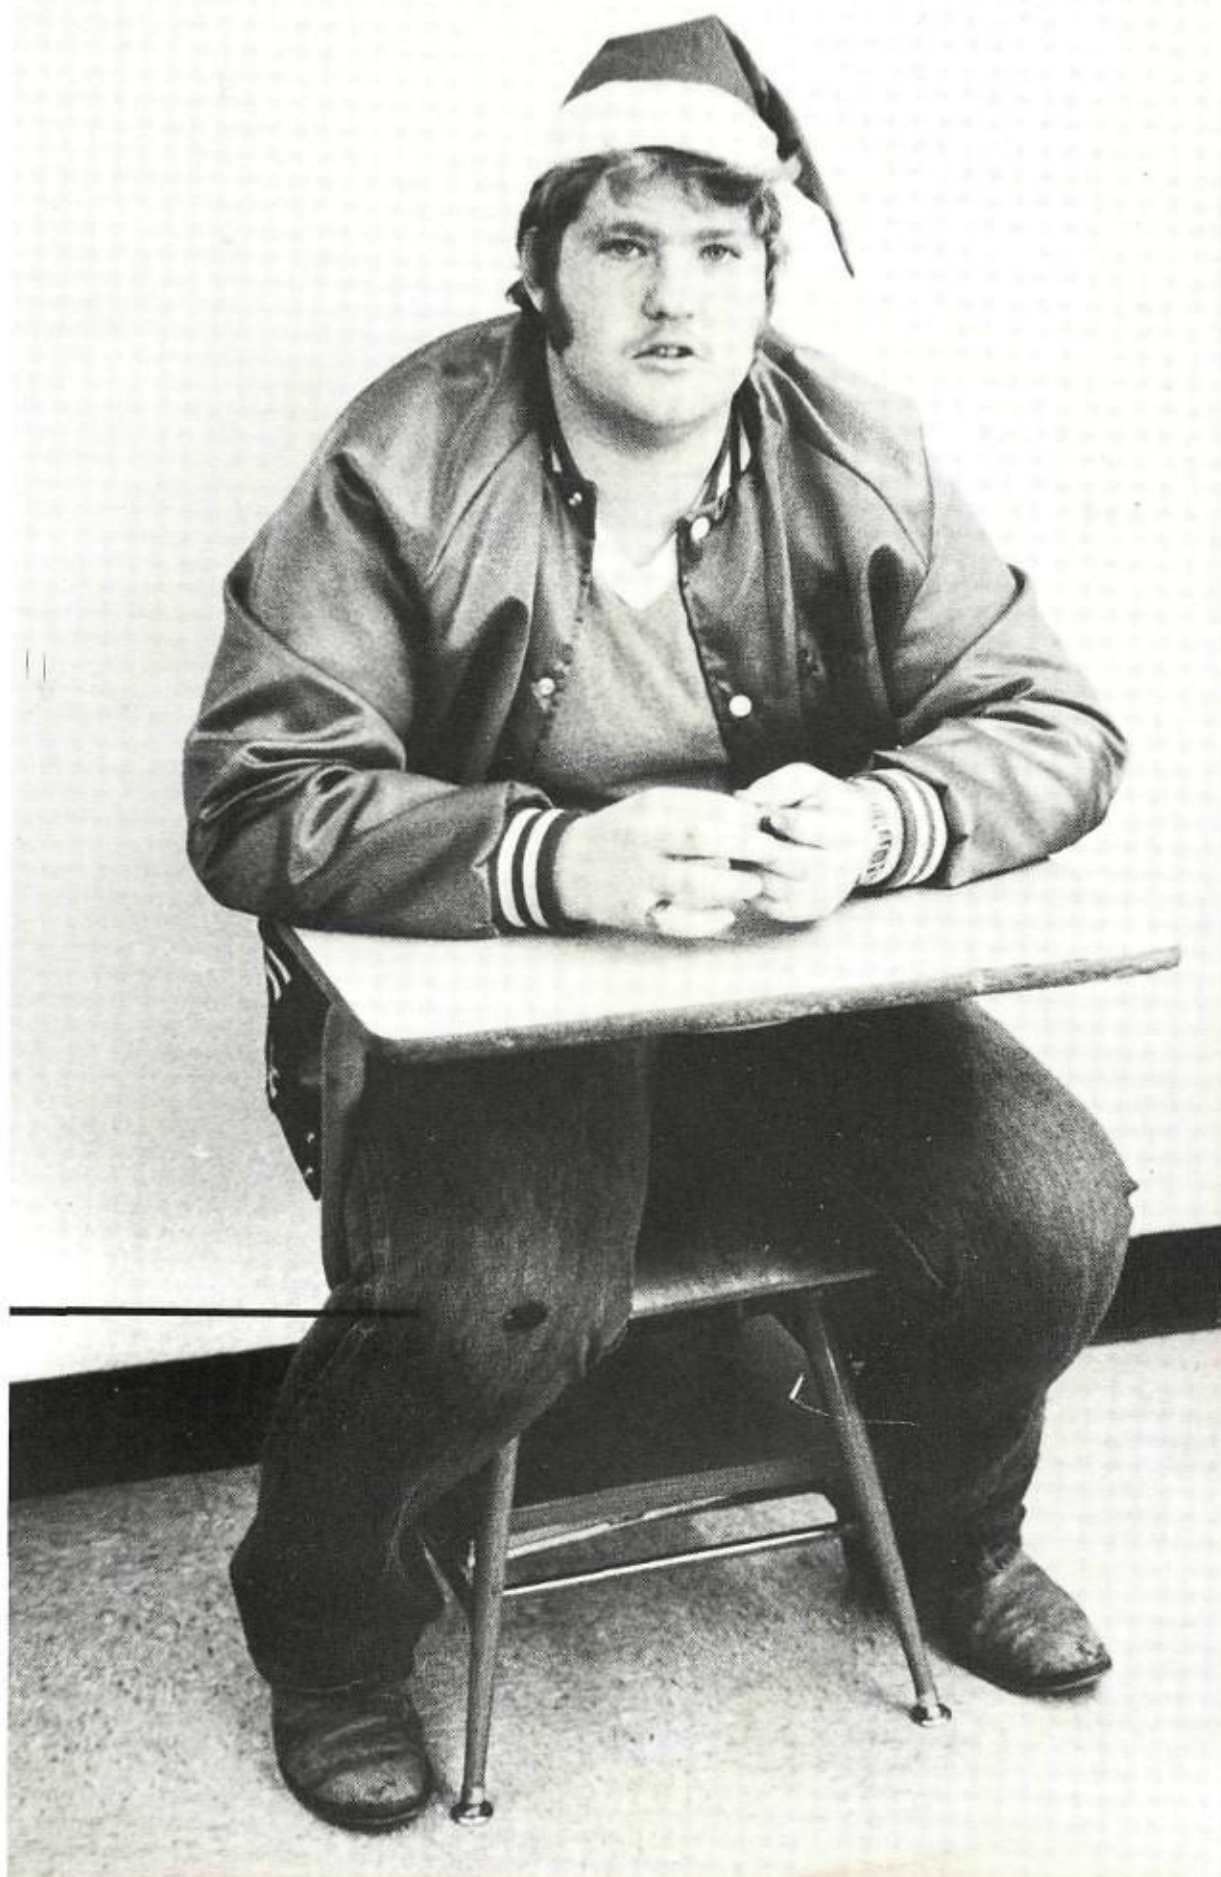

On Friday these children were to come to the high school and meet the students and receive their gifts. Much disappointment was felt because of the cancellation of the parties, not being able to give friends Christmas presents or wish them a happy holiday, and not being able to get books needed for homework.

1. Doug Ingram and Andy Ingram made it to school to get some books. 2. Eric Laird looks jovial in his Christmas hat. 3. Alicia Leath tries to get typing teacher Elizabeth Horsley's son to smile for the camera at the Secret Pal breakfast held during the pre-holidays week. 4. The Student Council marquee represents the feelings of many students before the break. 5. HOSA vice-president Jamie Bell presents a poinsettia plant to Michelle Odum for Christmas. Seated are Kim McDade and Becky Cizites. 6. Merri Eddy reads a Christmas message to a little boy at the OEA party. 7. Asst. band director Cody Birdwell reads his Christmas card and looks at his gift from his secret pal. 8. Look what I got from Santa!

It's December 25, 6:05 a.m., you wander down the hall just wondering "What did I get for Christmas!" Well, by the time you finish trying to peek through the wrapping paper of the packages sitting under the tree, Mom and Dad come shuffling down the hall in a half-awake, half-asleep state.

"Dad, let's open presents now," you say.

"Not until we eat breakfast," states Dad matter-of-factly.

"Until breakfast," you exclaim.

So you sit down and impatiently wait for that full hour to pass while everyone eats breakfast. Finally, you are able to get your hands on the presents sitting under the tree. The first present contains a pair of keys. "Keys, what do I need keys for, I don't even have . . . A Car. I got a Car, oh, my gosh. Where is it, what year is it, how did you get it without my knowing . . ."

The next huge package contains clothes. Hey, now I don't have to wear the same outfit twice a week. The second and third packages contain a Cabbage Patch Doll and stuffed animals. Oh well, little sister, eat your heart out. The fourth package is really small — what could fit in there.

"Money! Oh man, do you know what I could buy with this. But, I guess you'll want me to put it into the bank."

Now for the last present, jewelry, how pretty. Oh, but only if my boyfriend would give me a ring (maybe with diamonds). Those lucky girls who received one. But, I guess I did well this year in the way of gifts. OK, Mom, next year I want . . .

Oh my gosh — Finals!

Well, here it is January 3, 1984; and I'm back from Christmas vacation, all refreshed, rested, and sitting here in first period waiting for school to start all over again. The bell rings at 8:35, and the teacher walks through the door and says, "Class, I think we should start reviewing so that you will be prepared for the finals." Finals! Oh my gosh, I forgot all about those. There's no way that I can study everything for every class. OK, now calm down. I'm going into a mild panic. I'll listen to the teacher again.

"Now," continues the teacher, "it is required that every student take a final in every class. We are now required to give an essay question on each of our tests."

An essay question! Oh my gosh, do you know how long it will take me to write an essay?

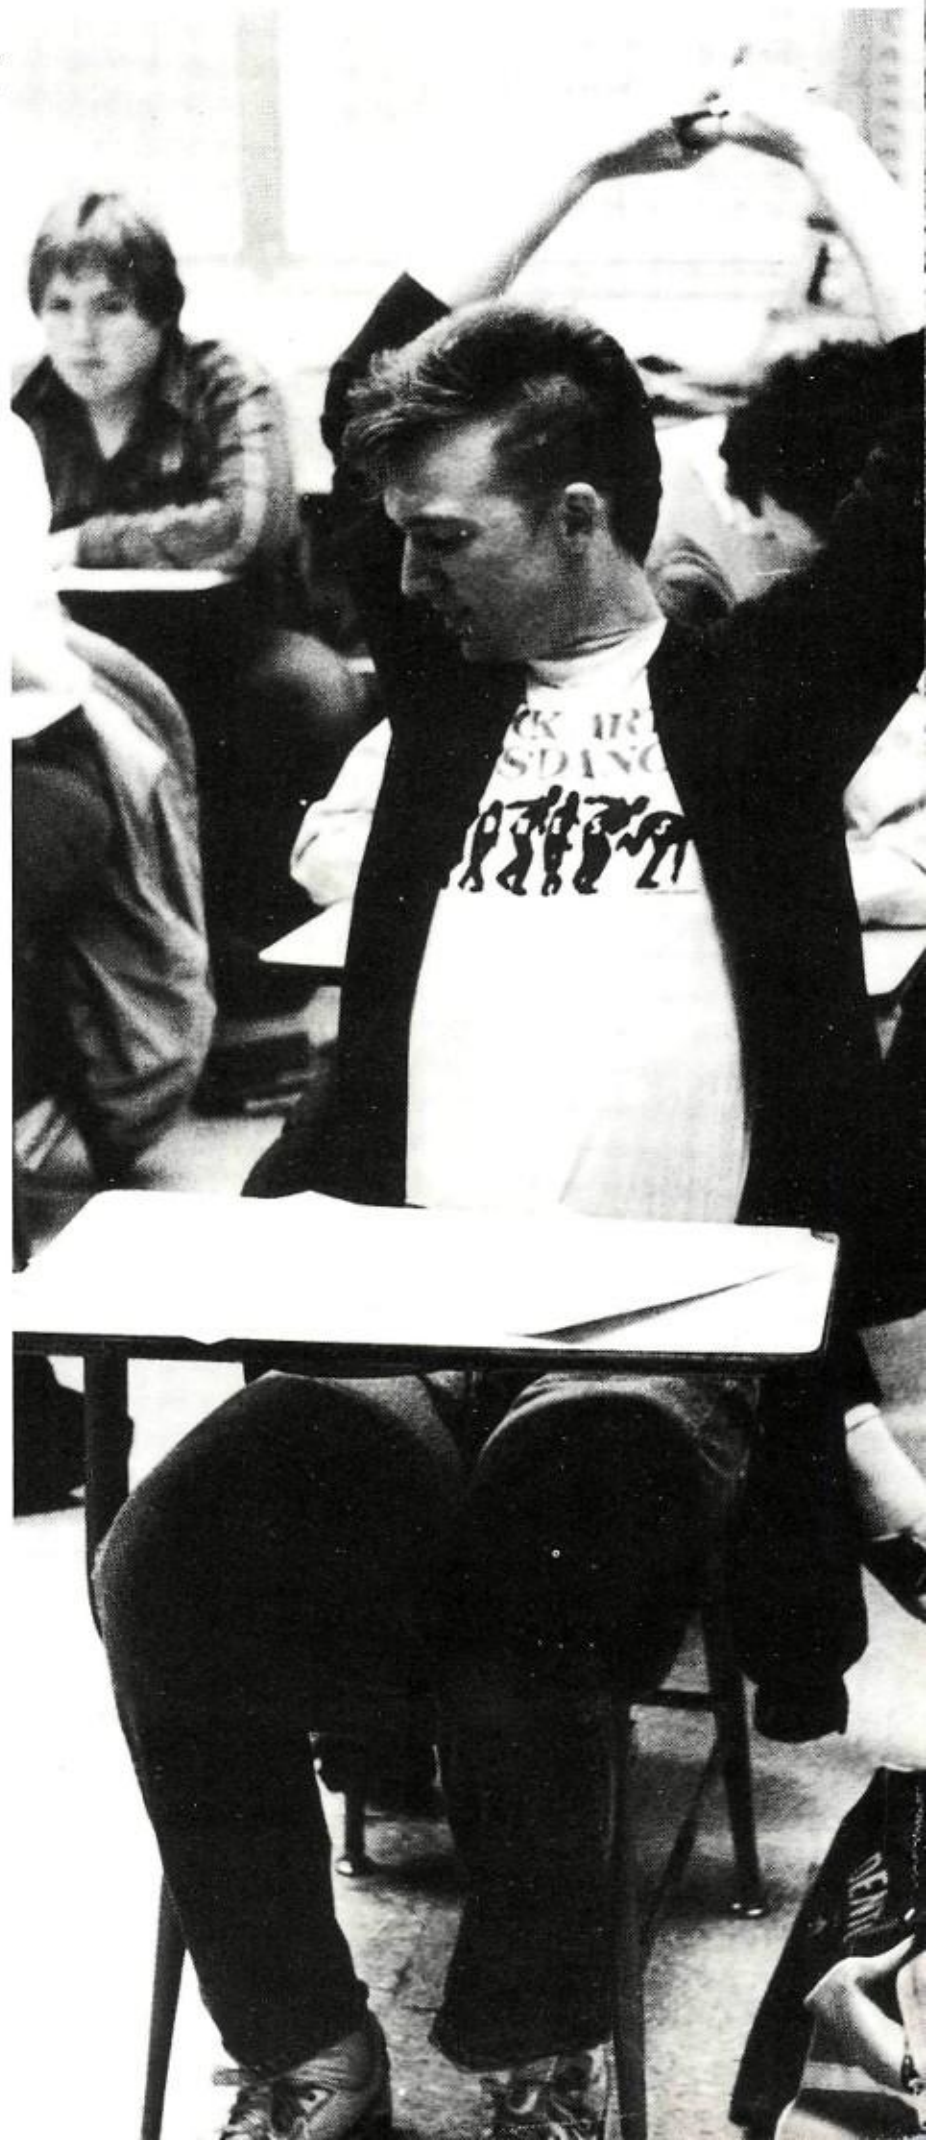

The teacher slowly continues, "And the final counts 20% of your semester grade."

Well, that does it. I'm dead. There is absolutely no possible way that I can pass any of these tests.

(Note: It is now two weeks later, 12:30 a.m., and our nervous student is sitting patiently

Well, it's Valentine's Day, and the item up for sale that's at the top of everyone's list is carnations. The carnation sales are carried through by a group of junior class volunteers. Attending the meeting I was pretty confident that I could do everything that was required for us volunteers. Then Mrs. Ingram hit us with the big stuff. "The carnations will have to be wrapped and sorted, so we'll need you up at school at 6:30 a.m. on Valentine's Day."

6:30 a.m.! That means in the morning. How am I ever going to get to school by 6:30 in the morning. way, José!

(Tuesday, February 14, 6:30 a.m.) Well, here I am (yawn), at 6:30 the morning all ready to wrap a sort carnations. I wonder how we can wrap these things — I've never done it before.

buckets for each class. Uh oh, there's the bell for second period. Well, here I go with all these buckets of flowers. If I can just get them down the stairs without ending up with wall-to-wall carnations.

The week of September 19-23 was Homecoming Week. The carnival, which was originally planned for Tuesday, was postponed until Thursday night because of bad weather conditions. There were twelve to fifteen booths from the different organizations and clubs providing fun and profit.

Friday afternoon was the parade. The theme this year was "Puttin' on the Ritz." Forty-one floats were entered, and they were judged in five categories. Sweepstakes went to Commercial Art. First in Originality went to FFA. First in Theme was awarded to DECA I and II. First in Beauty went to cosmetology, and First in Spirit was awarded to FHA.

Friday night at the football game, the Broncos defeated Dallas Samuell with a score of 28-14. After the game, approximately 750 people attended the dance which was held at the Civic Center Building until 1:00 A.M. A disc-jockey from KEGl was present. All in all, Homecoming week really turned out to be a success.

1. David Massey and Elizabeth Parr root for their team at the Homecoming game. 2. Angie Lynch gets creamed at the carnival. 3. A large crowd shows up at the Homecoming dance. 4. At the parade Billy Westbrook, Terrance Murphy, Bill Coberly, David Lumpkin, and Richard Prather ride on the float of DECA I and II which won First in Theme. 5. Lane Boozer and Patricia Wittmis enjoy a slow dance at the Homecoming dance. 6. Kelly Short becomes emotional as she is named Homecoming Queen.

High School Dating

Major source of headaches and happiness

Not everyone enters high school with the same objective. Some devote all their time to learning. They ignore everything but reading, writing, and arithmetic. These are the students who can't wait to get home so they can start their homework. This group, needless to say, is very minor in size.

Another type of students are the ones who damage their bodies and brains hour after hour, day after day, week after week, to excell in a sport. These individuals sacrifice social and academic obligations for the mere thrill of a victory or the agony of a defeat.

Then there are the partiers. These weekend warriors don't necessarily sacrifice, but mostly forget any responsibilities and instead, just live for a good time.

Then there are those who get involved in every group, club, or organization possible. These dedicated souls spend their time attending meetings, supporting their particular cause, and paying dues.

However, the majority of all these students and all of the types not even mentioned always seem to find time for one thing: dating.

1. At the Homecoming game, Dawnae Hook and Landon Campbell look lovingly into each others eyes. 2. Paul Kimble and Sonya Blew have fun at the park. 3. Bob Clark dishes out the money for one of his lunch dates. Sheila Cozby. 4. David Herr and Carrie Moss snuggle together in the parking lot during lunch. 5. Hanging Out

"What do you want to do?"
 "I don't know, what do you want to do?"
 "It doesn't matter to me, what do you want to do?"
 "I don't care, whatever you want to do."
 "Well, give me an idea."
 "Beats me, what's your idea?"

Sound familiar? These words echo through the streets of Denton every weekend as teenagers try to find the best way to wind down after a long week of putting up with homework, teachers, tests, studying, and the general monotony of school. Weekends are when it all happens.

Christy McFarling buys a coke from Wilfred McQueen, on duty at McDonald's. 9. Kenneth Stanley, Mark Shol, and David Wilton practice their stunt driving on the strip.

A favorite past time, of course, is eating. There are some 20 restaurants on University Drive alone frequented by students who make up much of their weekend business.

Pizza, Mexican food, hamburgers, seafood, steak, chicken fried steak, and sandwiches are just a few of the many items available to ravenous teenagers.

There are four movie theaters, with a total of five screens from which to choose. One can suit his taste with anything from Walt Disney cartoons to the Rocky Horror Picture Show.

Another favorite night spot is the Golden Triangle Mall. It offers a wide variety of stores to shop, as well as eating establishments, a movie theater, and a bowling alley.

Many students enjoy the challenge of video games, foosball, electronic football, and other table games at various arcade and game locations in town. Other entertaining activities include miniature golf and bowling. Usually there are sports events, dances, concerts, or parties going on, too, and even a few house-wrappings.

And, of course, there's always the old standby — cruising. Although the student body seems to see a decline in this classic tradition, it continues to keep students occupied for long hours.

Oh What a Feeling

In the past, school sponsored and social functions were the few places people were able to dance. Even at these events, males rarely stepped out on the dance floor unless they were bribed, pushed, or threatened. Time changed things; however, and dancing became not only more socially acceptable, but, for many males and females alike, it became a way of life.

Many popular movies have been responsible for this change of attitude. "Stayin' Alive", starring John Travolta and "Flashdance", starring Jennifer Beals, set fire to a whole new style of dance. They introduced new steps and techniques and gave dancing some well-deserved respect.

This new interest was an inspiration for many hidden talents. Organizations, such as the Denton Black Ballet Troupe, were formed to encourage local talent. Many students took private lessons and spent countless hours rehearsing after school. For those who were not so serious, there were still the good old reliable school dances.

Concerts: screams, yells, and crazy people!

Thousands of fans congest the sold out Reunion Arena concert. After listening to the opening band's numbers, the stage crew enters to set up for the main attraction. Suddenly the lights dim as smoke starts drifting from beyond the curtain. A single chord is strummed and shrill screams pierce the silence. Impetuously, a performer clad in skin-tight blue jeans, a vest, and mid-calf length boots leaps out from the haze.

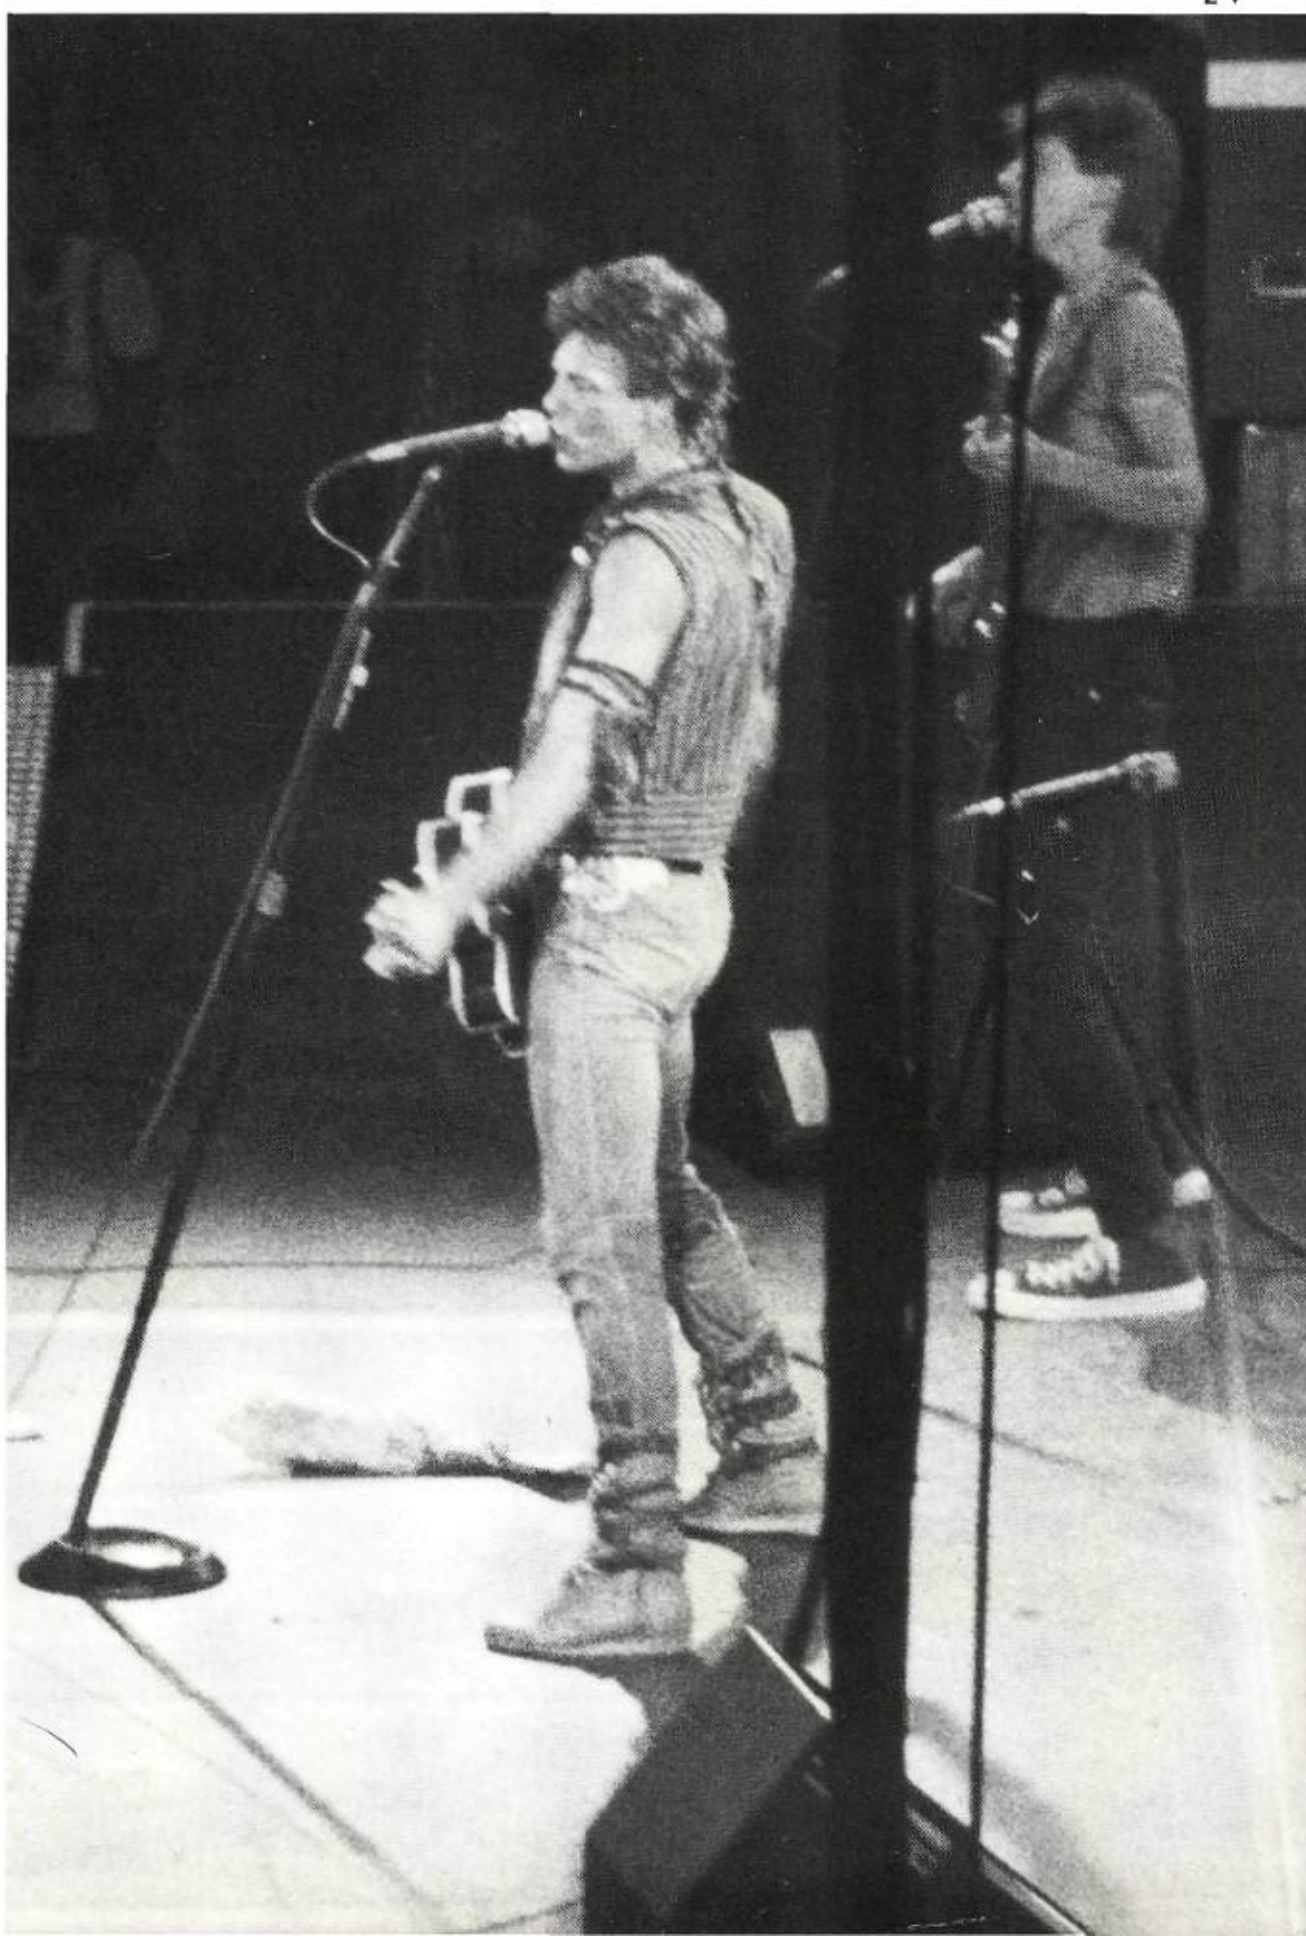

Students who attend concerts will usually do so because they like the group or performer, they like the live music, or they like seeing the performers live. No matter what the reason for attending concerts, students all agree that they are exciting: the screams, yells, and crazy people.

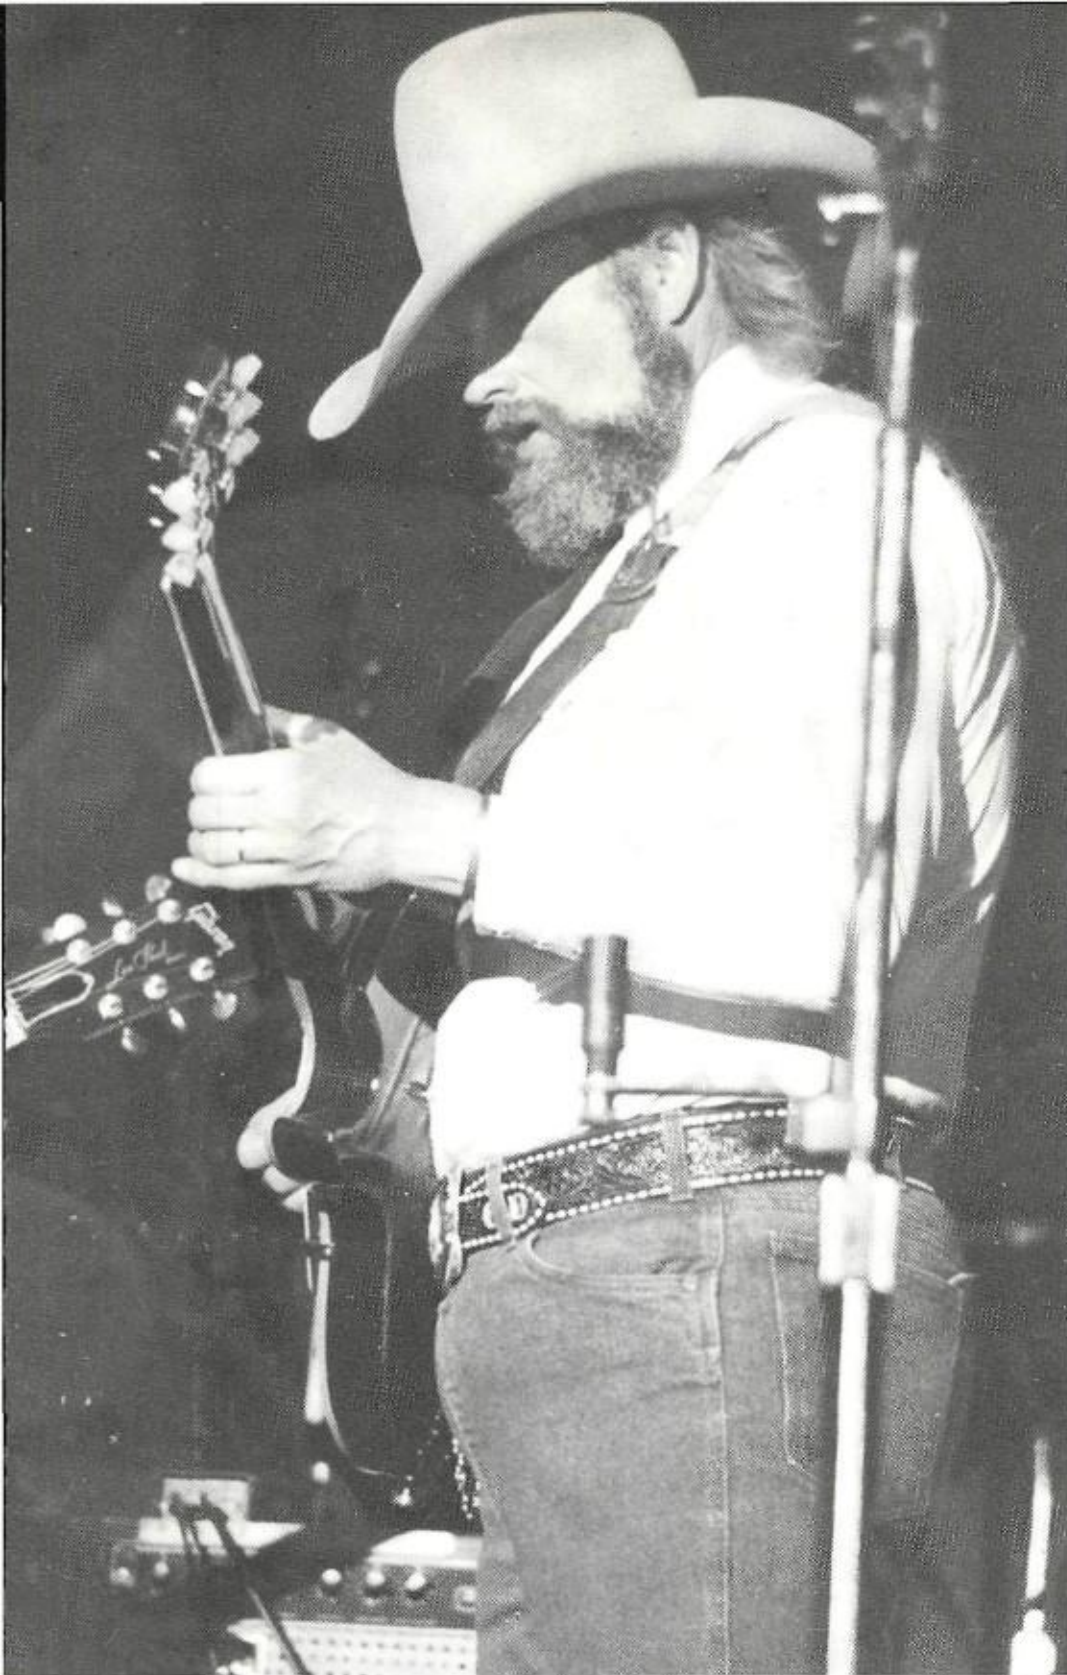

1. Denton High has a concert of its own in the school auditorium. 2. Rick Springfield was one of the many people to perform at Reunion Arena. 3. Charles Daniels gets into his music. 4. Phil Collins of "Genesis" asks which drum to use. 5. Molly Maguires sings his heart out while in Dallas. 6. Eddie Rabbitt, a job well done.

The 1938-84 year was a revolution in the world of fashion. Older styles were revised and revived, such as the saddle shoes, anklets, leather motorcycle jackets, and penny loafers of the 50's. Skirt lengths went to both extremes; the miniskirt made a comeback, while the below-the-knee length stayed strong, too.

Ocean Pacific shirts were popular, with surfing or sailing scenes on the front and back, and writing extended down the sleeves. Patterned sweaters, short tee-shirts, cut-up sweatshirts inspired by the movie "Flashdance," stand-up collars, and polos were also favorites.

Shoes came in a wide variety of styles. Velcro-fastened tennis shoes, waterproof duck shoes, high-top tennis shoes, ankle boots, exotic skin boots, and checkered "Vans" went on over patterned or colored hose, argyle socks, and leg warmers.

Of course, the old standbys — blue jeans — were still around, although they were updated. They evolved into baggies, often with colored pinstripes.

Accessories completed the look, with the popular twist-a-bead necklaces, neckties for girls, reflective mirrored shades, chintz jackets with snapped shoulders and collar tabs. Bandannas in every color of the rainbow were folded, twisted, or knotted around heads, necks, arms, waists, and legs.

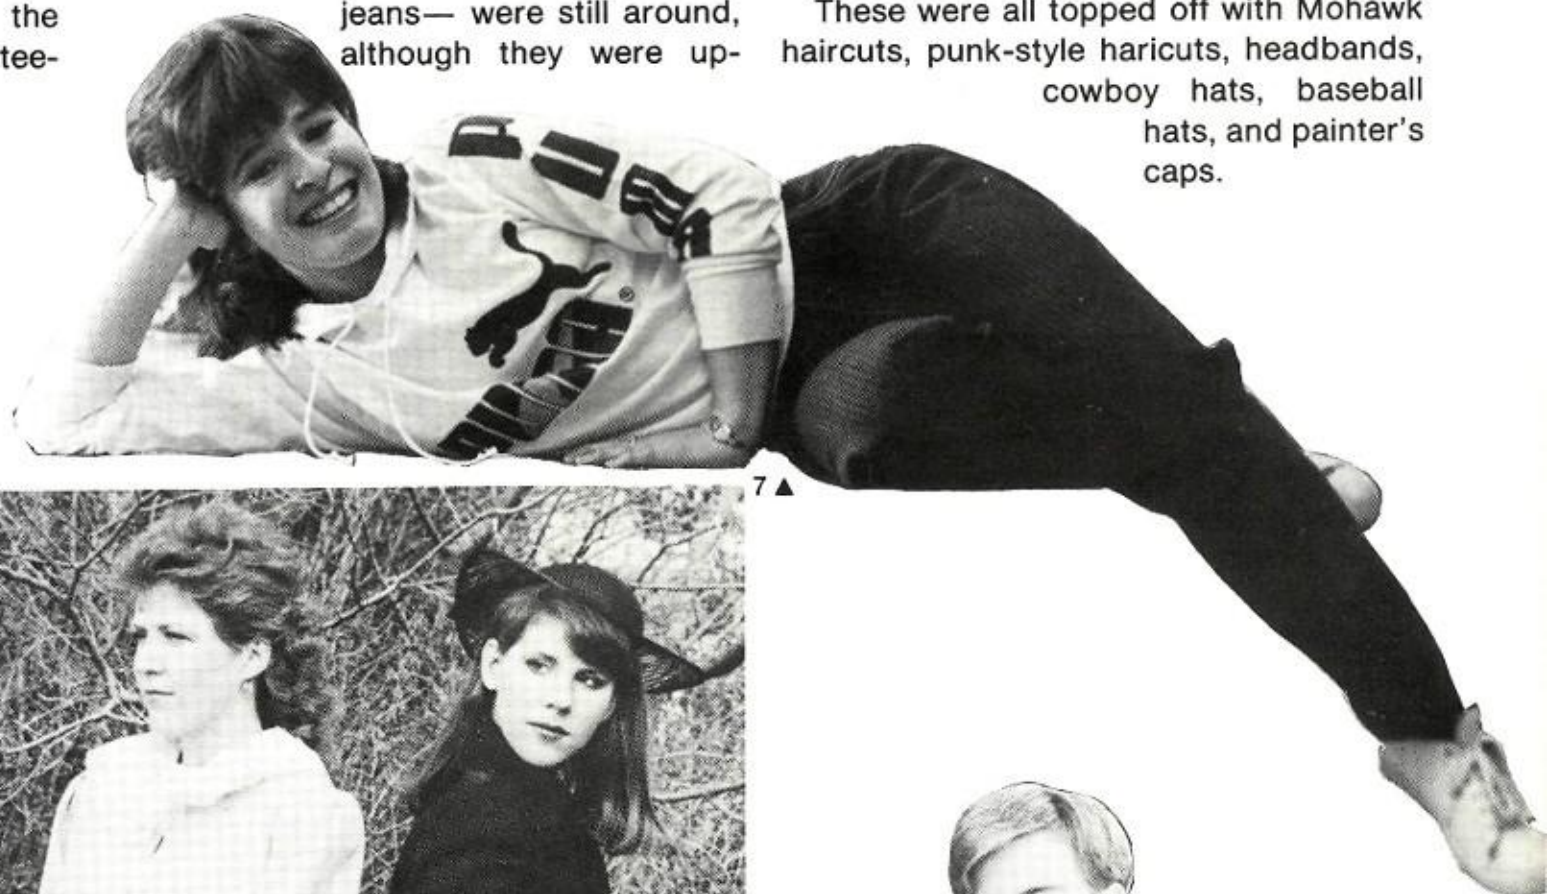

These were all topped off with Mohawk haircuts, punk-style haircuts, headbands, cowboy hats, baseball hats, and painter's caps.

Seniors favorite music group: "Alvin and the Chipmunks?"

What do Tom Selleck, Michael Jackson, and Christy Brinkley have in common? How can a Porsche and a pizza be mentioned in the same breath? What could link Lionel Richie and ZZ Top? Where could one find Quiet Riot and Alabama together? What could be similar about "An Officer and a Gentleman" and "The A-Team?"

The answer to all of these questions is "The Senior Favorites Survey." This survey was given to seniors in the fall, asking them to vote for their favorite album, video, song, group, single artist, male and female celebrity, movie, TV show, food, and car. Over 25 surveys were collected.

A few decided to use their "Blow if off - You're a senior!" privilege, and listed such things as "Favorite group; Alvin and the Chipmunks" and "Favorite video; Pac-man." Due to limited support, these and other creative favorites did not win a landslide victory. But when the last survey came in, and the last vote was counted, these were the results.

A Day in the Life of a Bronco

The 8:25 bell rings. With books clutched tightly and sharpened pencils in hand, hundreds of anxious students shove through the narrow front doors. Smells of fresh soap and perfume inundate the stale air. Shuffling feet hurry down the hall in all directions. Sounds of slamming lockers and clanging padlocks resound throughout the echoing halls. Another day at Denton High has begun.

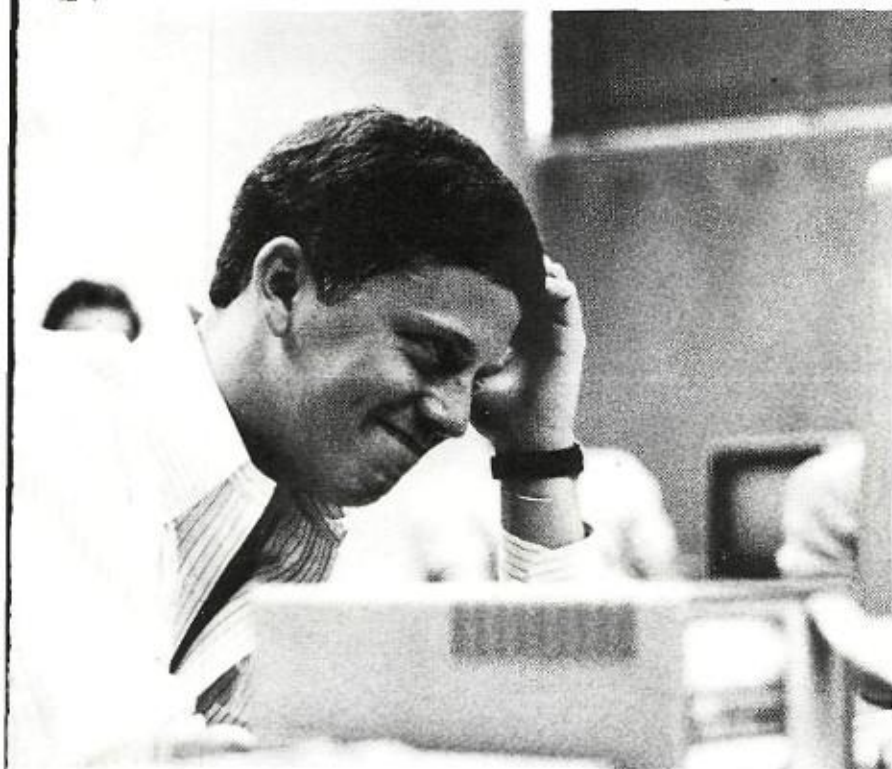

As the bell rings, the corridors become as deserted as the fairgrounds the day after a fair. The booming voice of one teacher rises above the hushed silence of the now vacant halls. A lone student's footsteps echo as he nervously runs to class. Murmurings of the previous night deluge the room while roll is checked. Third period's homework takes priority over first period's concentration. The realization now comes that today is a day like any other.

Second period starts off with a tardy student entering the room just in time for announcements. The voice of the announcer permeates every corner of the building. "Fresh apple-ripened fruit will be sold today only . . . A reward is being offered for the return of a gold necklace." Other than the announcements, the schedule of second is much like that of first. By third period, one has so much homework that there is no way the social plans for the evening can be carried forth. The heavy odors of the cafeteria begin to saturate the once clean and odors of the school. The smells are always the same, but the menu is always different.

When lunch arrives, students form ant-like lines in the cafeteria. The selections one has are many, but the choices are few. University Drive beckons to those who anchored to the cafeteria. Every day the decision is made to do something different for lunch the next day, but the next day the same old routine continues.

Fifth period continues with the excitement of lunch. The end of the day is drawing nearer. Thoughts of end-of-school activities dwell in minds throughout the rooms.

Teachers and students alike are ready for the last bell. Squirming students mark the countdown of the clock. Surreptitiously glancing at their watches, numerous students try to stifle their yawns. The anticipated bell finally makes its debut. Just moments after the bell rings, the students burst out of the doors into the fresh air and sunshine. Once out of the building, tomorrow is the farthest thing from their minds.

Now the halls are once again quiet. No longer is there the sound of hundreds of students fighting their way through the crowded hallways. The only sounds are those of a lone custodian sweeping the old gray tile. The last evidence of the crowds are their broken pencils and crumpled papers being pushed by the slow-moving broom. Thus ends another day at Denton High.

Hi Ho Hi Ho, It's Off to Work We Go

There comes a time in life when everybody realizes the importance of the dollar in relationship to one's needs and desires.

Cecil Dennison helps find jobs for high school students. He says that of the four hundred students that go through him, about half get a job. Most of the jobs during the school year are part-time jobs at food stores or retail stores, such as ones at a mall.

It is not easy to find a job. January through April is the hardest time of the year to find a job. It also depends upon how hard a person tries as to how long it will take the person to find a job.

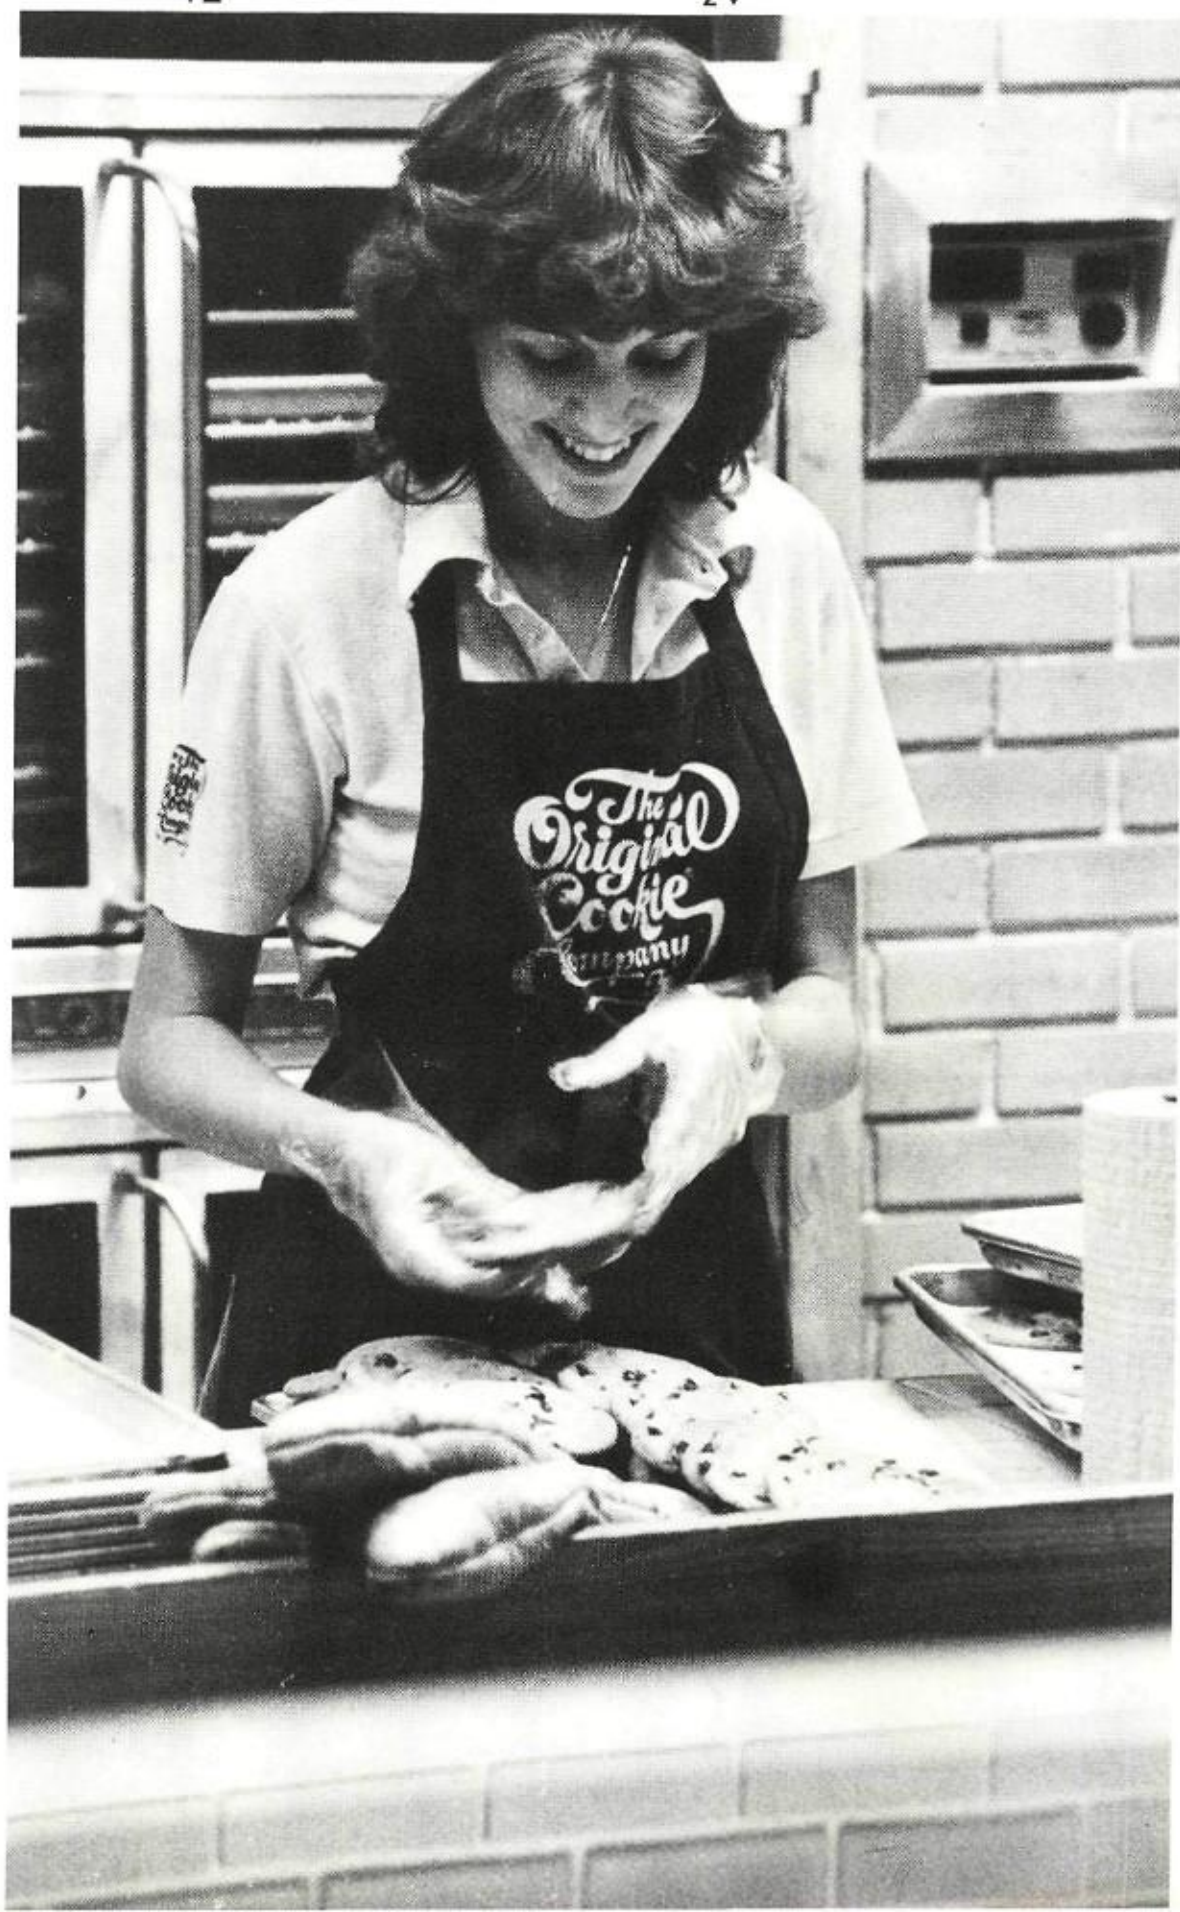

Everyone should take the opportunities that come to them. Whether the job is small or has more responsibility, it is self-gratifying and should be looked upon as so. No one starts out big.

1. Misti Morris helps a customer at Wilsons. 2. Vicki Morgan makes cookies at the Cookie Co. in the mall. 3. Toni Provinsa is one of many persons that work at Chick-Fil-A. 4. Lunch . . . Come and Get It

Lunch is everyone's favorite time of the day during school. One may do a variety of things in this hour.

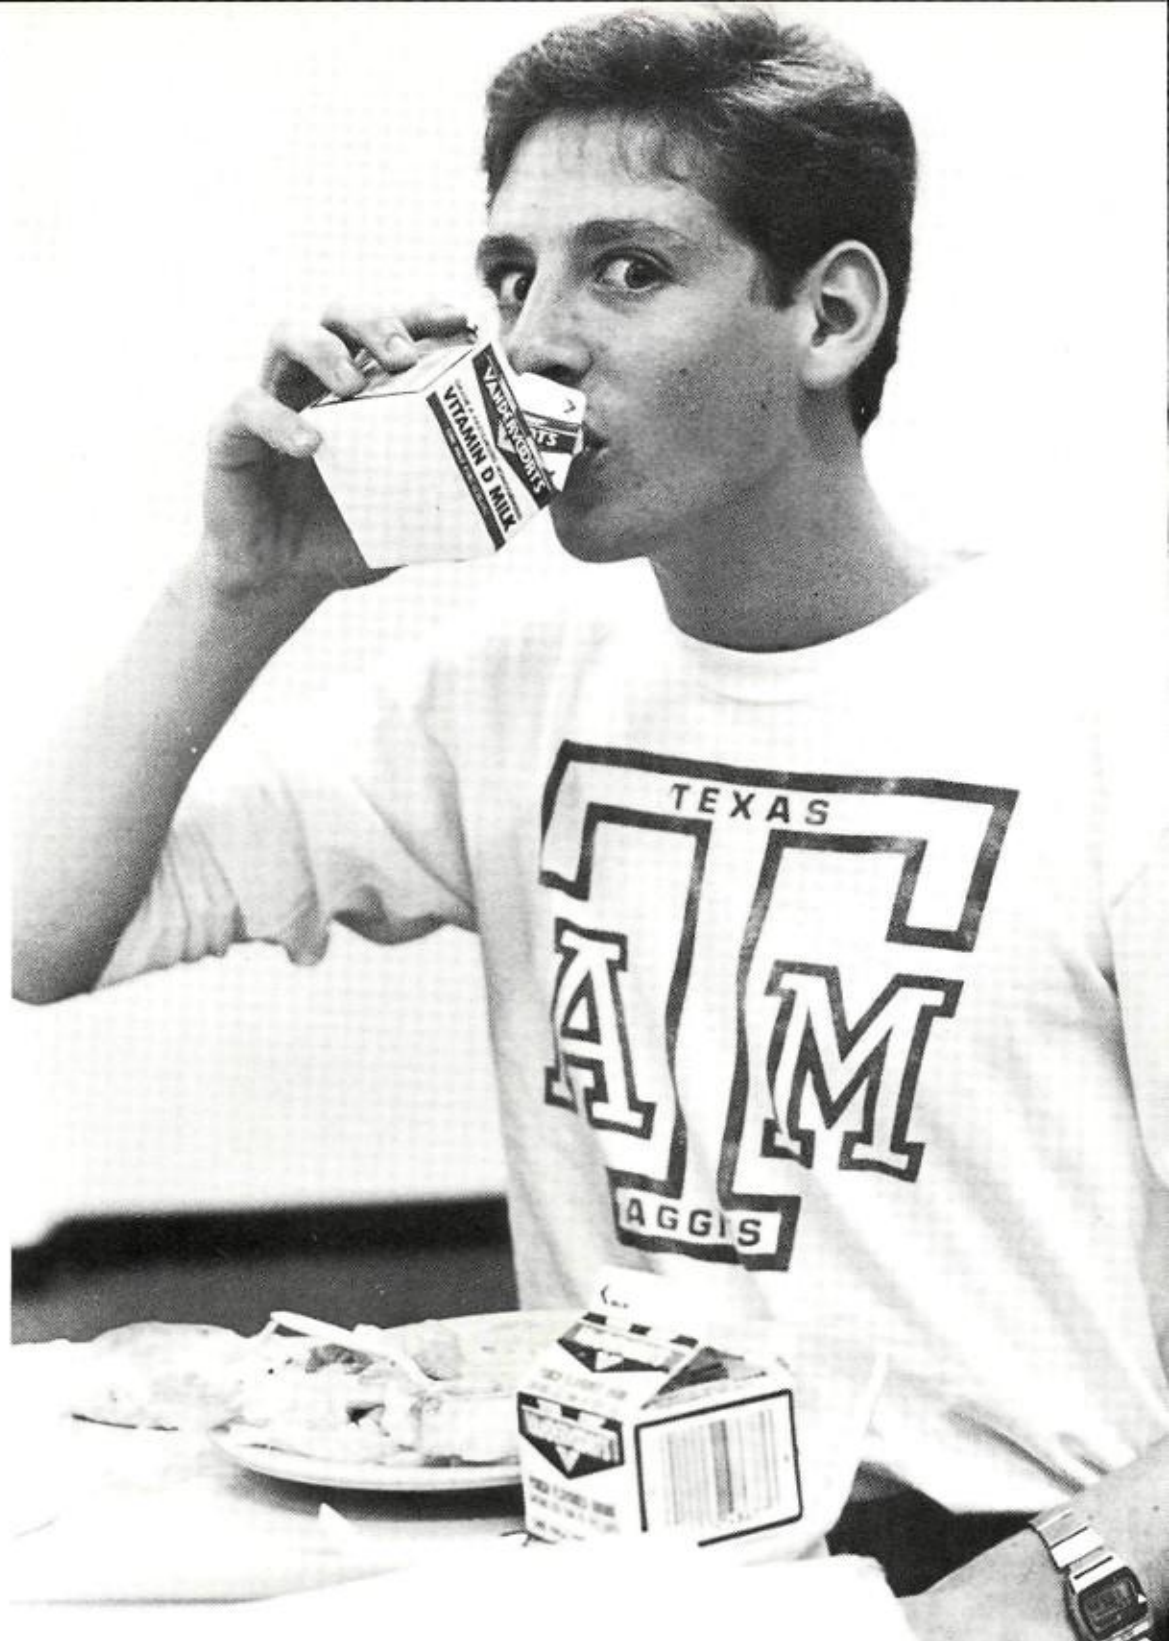

Some students like to go to one of the many fast-food places on University Drive. Others prefer to stay at the ever-present school cafeteria. Here one may talk with friends or do homework. At school there is also the Student Council concession stand. Where one may purchase candy, popcorn, and drinks.

Hackysack is a favorite pastime during lunch. The object of the game is to keep a leather ball from hitting the ground by kicking it with one's foot. Reflexes must be quick to keep up with this mind-boggling game.

Laughter is the best medicine

From the distant clamor of voices and noise one sound is heard above all, but what is it? As you struggle through the crowd, you hear a more distinctive noise, a high and low roaring. Yes laughter.

One of the most used noises in class, halls, and just about everywhere. In class, laughter is heard after somebody leaps out the window onto the ledge and starts running up and down or when a teacher gets a comeback on a student. Sometimes when somebody tells a really stupid joke, your stomach quakes with laughter because it's so dumb.

One of the best ways is when you say "what the heck" and just laugh your big and little hearts out.

In every group, there are a few people who stand out. They are noted for their school involvement, personality, friendliness, character, and SPIRIT. They are chosen and honored as representative of the school and as favorites of the student body. They are academic scholars, athletes, Fillies, Band members, student council members, or just students. But their SPIRIT for life, their school, its programs, and its people, puts them in the spotlight.

Nominees provide break from class with favorites performance

Once again the favorite skits provided welcome break from class.

The show opened with the sophomore very own version of Amateur Night. Mol Cole began the skit with a midget's version of "I Love a Rainy Night." The crowd then roared with delight when Debb Denmon and Leslie Wilborn sang "Telephone Man." Two lusciously clad fillies named Craig Irwin and William Adamson then did their dance routine until the Master of Ceremonies Greg Allison pushed them off the stage.

Junior nominees Bobby Blagg, Steve Bresnahan, Lynn Holley, Lisa Land, Anne Bresnahan, and Sheri Vitro did their own version of the opening scene from the "Brady Bunch."

The auditorium then grew silent in anticipation of the senior skit. The curtain opened and there were senior favorite nominees and Mr. and Miss DHS nominees sitting in a mock classroom. When their names were announced, they busily tried to make up a skit, meeting at various places.

Highlights of the senior skit were Matt Alford's rendition of the "Love Boat" theme; an impersonation of weight watcher Richard Simmons; and Todd Daggett, Jeff Williams, and Doug Hartman's Nair commercial.

1. Sophomore Leslie Wilborn sings and dances to "Telephone Man." 2. Seniors Todd Daggett, Jeff Williams, and Doug Hartman do a Nair commercial. 3. Tonya Collins, Stephanie Wilborn, Kelly Short, Matt Alford, and Coreen Campbell "crash." 4.

MR. AND MISS DHS

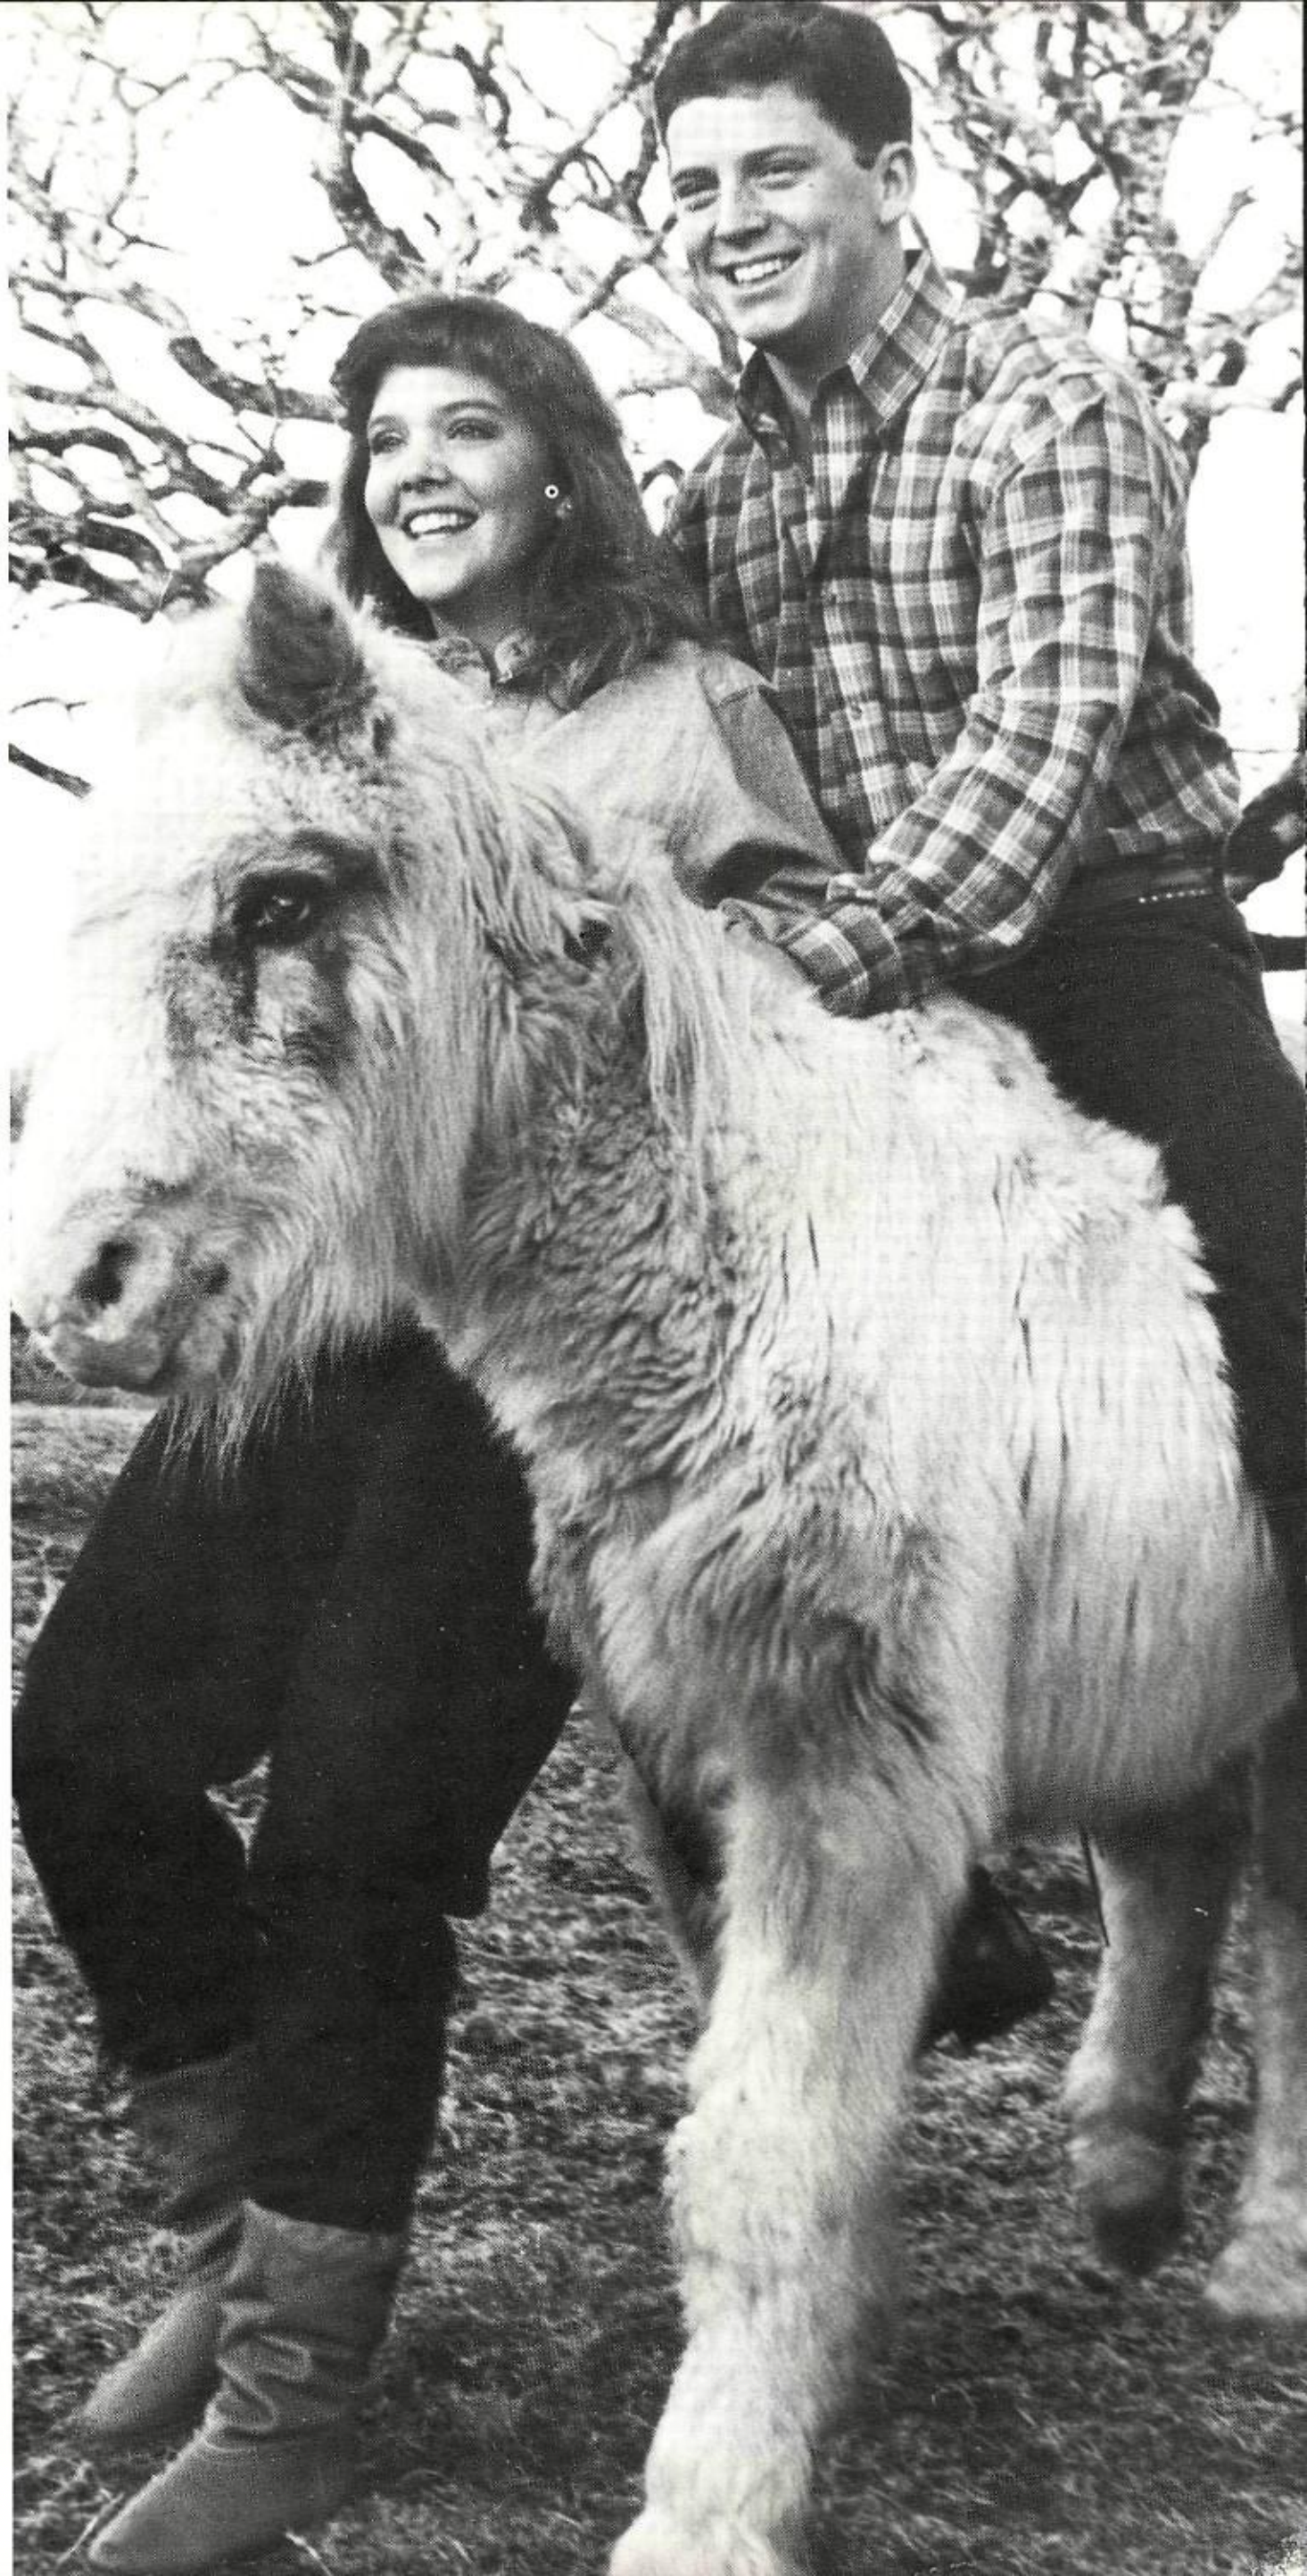

Matt Alford and Stephanie Wilborn

Both Matthew Alford and Stephanie Wilborn never expected to be elected Mr. and Miss DHS. Matthew said he was "surprised and excited and felt very honored" to be chosen Mr. DHS.

Matthew and Stephanie are members of the National Honor Society, but are involved in varied activities. Matthew is president of the Student Council and vice-president of the Key Club. Stephanie is a member of the Fillies and is active in the FCA.

Stephanie enjoys friends and teachers at Denton High School, and Matthew says "It's large, but it's small; there are new people to meet, but you know everyone." Stephanie's advice to new students is to "be out-going — never give up!" Matthew also believes that meeting new people is an important part of high school.

Matthew and Stephanie are both A students and plan to attend UT Austin and Abilene Christian, respectively.

SENIOR FAVORITES

Coreen Campbell and Todd Daggett

Todd Daggett was "shocked," even to be nominated for Senior favorite, and Coreen Campbell was "very surprised."

Todd is an officer in the Student Council and a Key Club officer and is involved in the Honor Guard. Coreen is a Fillie, an active member of the FCA, and an Honor Society member.

Todd's favorite teacher is Mr. Jim Dieb because he's "nice, understanding, and produces a good atmosphere in the classroom." Coreen's favorite teacher is Mrs. Wileen Trippe because "she cares not only about your studies but about you as a person."

Todd and Coreen enjoy the people at Denton High School the most and plan to go to college. Todd plans to be an engineer, and Coreen plans to major in Elementary Education at Abilene Christian University.

JUNIOR FAVORITES

and
Lynn Holley

Junior Class Favorites, Lisa Land and Lynn Holley, were excited and surprised to be nominated. Lisa was "very excited that people were nice enough to take the time to vote for me," while Lynn was "surprised to be nominated, much less win."

Both Lynn and Lisa are in the FCA, and Lisa is a Fillie, while Lynn is on the football team. Lynn and Lisa agree that they enjoy their friends at Denton High School. Lynn and Lisa also agree on their favorite teacher — Mr. Charles Beamer "because he really cares about everyone and knows how people really are."

Lynn plans to go into the computer business with his father. Lisa plans to attend college.

SOPHOMORE FAVORITES

Debbie Denmon and Craig Irwin

Craig Irwin was "kind of shocked, but very happy" to be Sophomore Class Favorite. Debbie Denmon was "elated and surprised."

Craig is involved in football and baseball, and Debbie enjoys cheerleading and band.

Although Debbie and Craig agree that open campus is a definite advantage at Denton High School, Debbie especially likes the freedom and responsibility that comes with it.

Debbie's favorite teacher is Mr. Dwain Bean, because "Coach Bean makes learning fun; I respect that."

Craig and Debbie are both good students, but have no concrete plans for the future.

Debbie tells new students at Denton High School to "take advantage of the privileges that you receive at DHS and to make the best of the great teachers!"

BASKETBALL KING AND QUEEN

Kelly
O'Keefe,
Andre
McDade

Basketball Queen Kelly O'Keefe is a "B" student who spends approximately 14 hours a week practicing basketball. She also finds time to be an active student council representative and participate in debate and drama. Andre McDade, Basketball King, is a "B" student involved in track and spends fifteen hours a week practicing basketball.

Kelly and Andre enjoy basketball very much, but Kelly also enjoys softball, volleyball, and horses; while Andre is interested in bicycle and motorcycle riding, and collecting music books.

Kelly, a senior, plans to further her education; and although she has had a few scholarship offers, she is still undecided on what college she will attend. She would like to be a high school basketball coach and teach biology. Andre, a sophomore, plans to attend college in Oklahoma; but he has not found a definite major.

When asked if she had any advice for other students, especially those in sports, Kelly said, "Dedication is the key to everything, whether it's athletics, school, or anything. If you apply yourself, you'll never be a loser." Andre's advice was to "work hard and don't give up."

Kelly O'Keefe and Andre McDade enjoy a cool morning at McKenna Park.

VALENTINE SWEETHEART

Anne Bresnahan

Anne Bresnahan said it was "neat" being elected Valentine Sweetheart, and it made her feel really good inside; but she gives her glory and thanks to God. Anne is active in Fillies, public relations, Fellowship of Christian Anybodies, and Spanish Club, yet still finds time to maintain an "A" average and enjoy her favorite pastimes: reading, tennis, and playing the flute.

Anne loves all animals, especially horses, because they're strong and fun to ride; and rabbits because they're cute and furry.

When asked about her future plans, Anne said she has plans to attend North Texas State University and is considering journalism as her major.

Mr. Dieb was the teacher Anne was most fond of because he relates to his students well. She said he taught in a "cool manner." She added that he was respected by all students and made chemistry interesting.

When asked why she felt she was elected, Anne said, "Because I'm generally a nice and caring person and involved in school activities, and God's love shines through me to people."

Anne's advice to fellow students is, "God is where it's at. There are lots of ups and downs and things that get you down, but the answer to your problems isn't drugs or alcohol: it's God."

HOMECOMING QUEEN

Kelly Short

Being the first time to be nominated for anything, senior Kelly Short was "surprised, happy, and shocked" when she was elected Homecoming Queen.

Kelly stays busy with such activities as Key Club, Leadership Class, and most of all, being varsity cheerleader. She loves to collect Madame Alexander dolls and has recently completed the set.

What Kelly enjoys about high school is its atmosphere, but most importantly, her friends. A "B" student, she likes all of her teachers in high school, but she was particularly fond of math teacher Gail Scott and Student Council sponsor Emma Jo Yarbrough.

Kelly's advice to new students at Denton High School is that they should get involved with something, no matter what it is. She thinks that they should get to know many people so that their years at Denton High will be extra fun and meaningful.

After high school, Kelly would love to go to Texas A&M University, but she has no definite plans yet.

The people that know Kelly describe her as being friendly, nice, and thoughtful of others. All of these qualities together make up a lovely Homecoming Queen.

Homecoming Queen Kelly Short plays with a calf at a friend's farm.

National Merit Finalists

National Merit Semi-finalists are chosen by rating at or above a minimum qualifying score on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test. The qualifying score is established independently by each state. The number of semi-finalists named in each state is proportionate to its percentage of the national total of graduating seniors and represents about half of one percent of the state's graduating class. Finalists are then chosen on the basis of their ratings on the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Students who did not rate high enough to become National Merit Semi-Finalists but were in the top five percent of the approximately one million students who took the PSAT, were chosen to be commended students.

The ten top-ranked juniors at the end of the 82-83 school year were recognized as being the top ten students.

One major area of school SPIRIT is the athletic programs. Pep rallies and sports events offer students a chance to dress funny, scream, and act crazy without getting in too much trouble for it. The creation of the Rowdy Crowd and the new mascot Victory, the crazy antics of A.P.E., and the Fillies Jazz and Kick companies encouraged enthusiasm and support for the teams, and even brought the varsity football team to District. These displays of SPIRIT proved the loyalty and devotion of the student body to the teams which represent their school.

Second year for Broncos to make playoffs

The Broncos had six players chosen to the All District Team this year. Outstanding offensive players Ray Richard, running back; David Andrews, guard; Jeff Williams, tight end. Defensive players Doug Hartman, defensive back; Jeff Mulkey, tackle; and Gary Pearson, linebacker.

The most outstanding players voted by the team were Trent Leggett — outstanding offensive player, Gary Pearson — outstanding defensive player, and Ray Richard — most valuable player. "An outstanding season — this was a very enjoyable group of young men to work with. They possessed a great desire to do their very best. They play well together as a team — no great individual stars just great team work," said Jim Bateman — head coach.

On the field of green they march toward their destiny with the crimson sun slowly descending. With their purple helmets shining, they face their foe to which one will come away with the joy of victory. The heavily laden men march to both sides of the field. Then with a sudden flash of light and sound the battle begins. Each side marching up and down the trench infested field towards each other's goals. With sweat running down their faces and bruises on their bodies, they play until the last symbol of victory shines on the scoreboard.

Then they march back towards the locker room with the spoils of victory. A clap on the back, a handshake, and maybe even a hug.

Varsity ends season with 8-3 record

The Broncos were expected to do well this year but not great. After losing their first game to Plano (20-0), they got their act together and went on a 4 game winning streak, beating Newman Smith, R. L. Turner, Dallas Samuell, and Dallas Carter, but lost to Sherman in the first district game.

After Sherman they went on a rampage on other district teams: W. F. High, W. F. Rider, Denison, and finally beating Weatherford. After beating Weatherford they were tied for first place with W. F. Rider, but since they beat them in regular season play, they went to the playoffs as district 5A Champs.

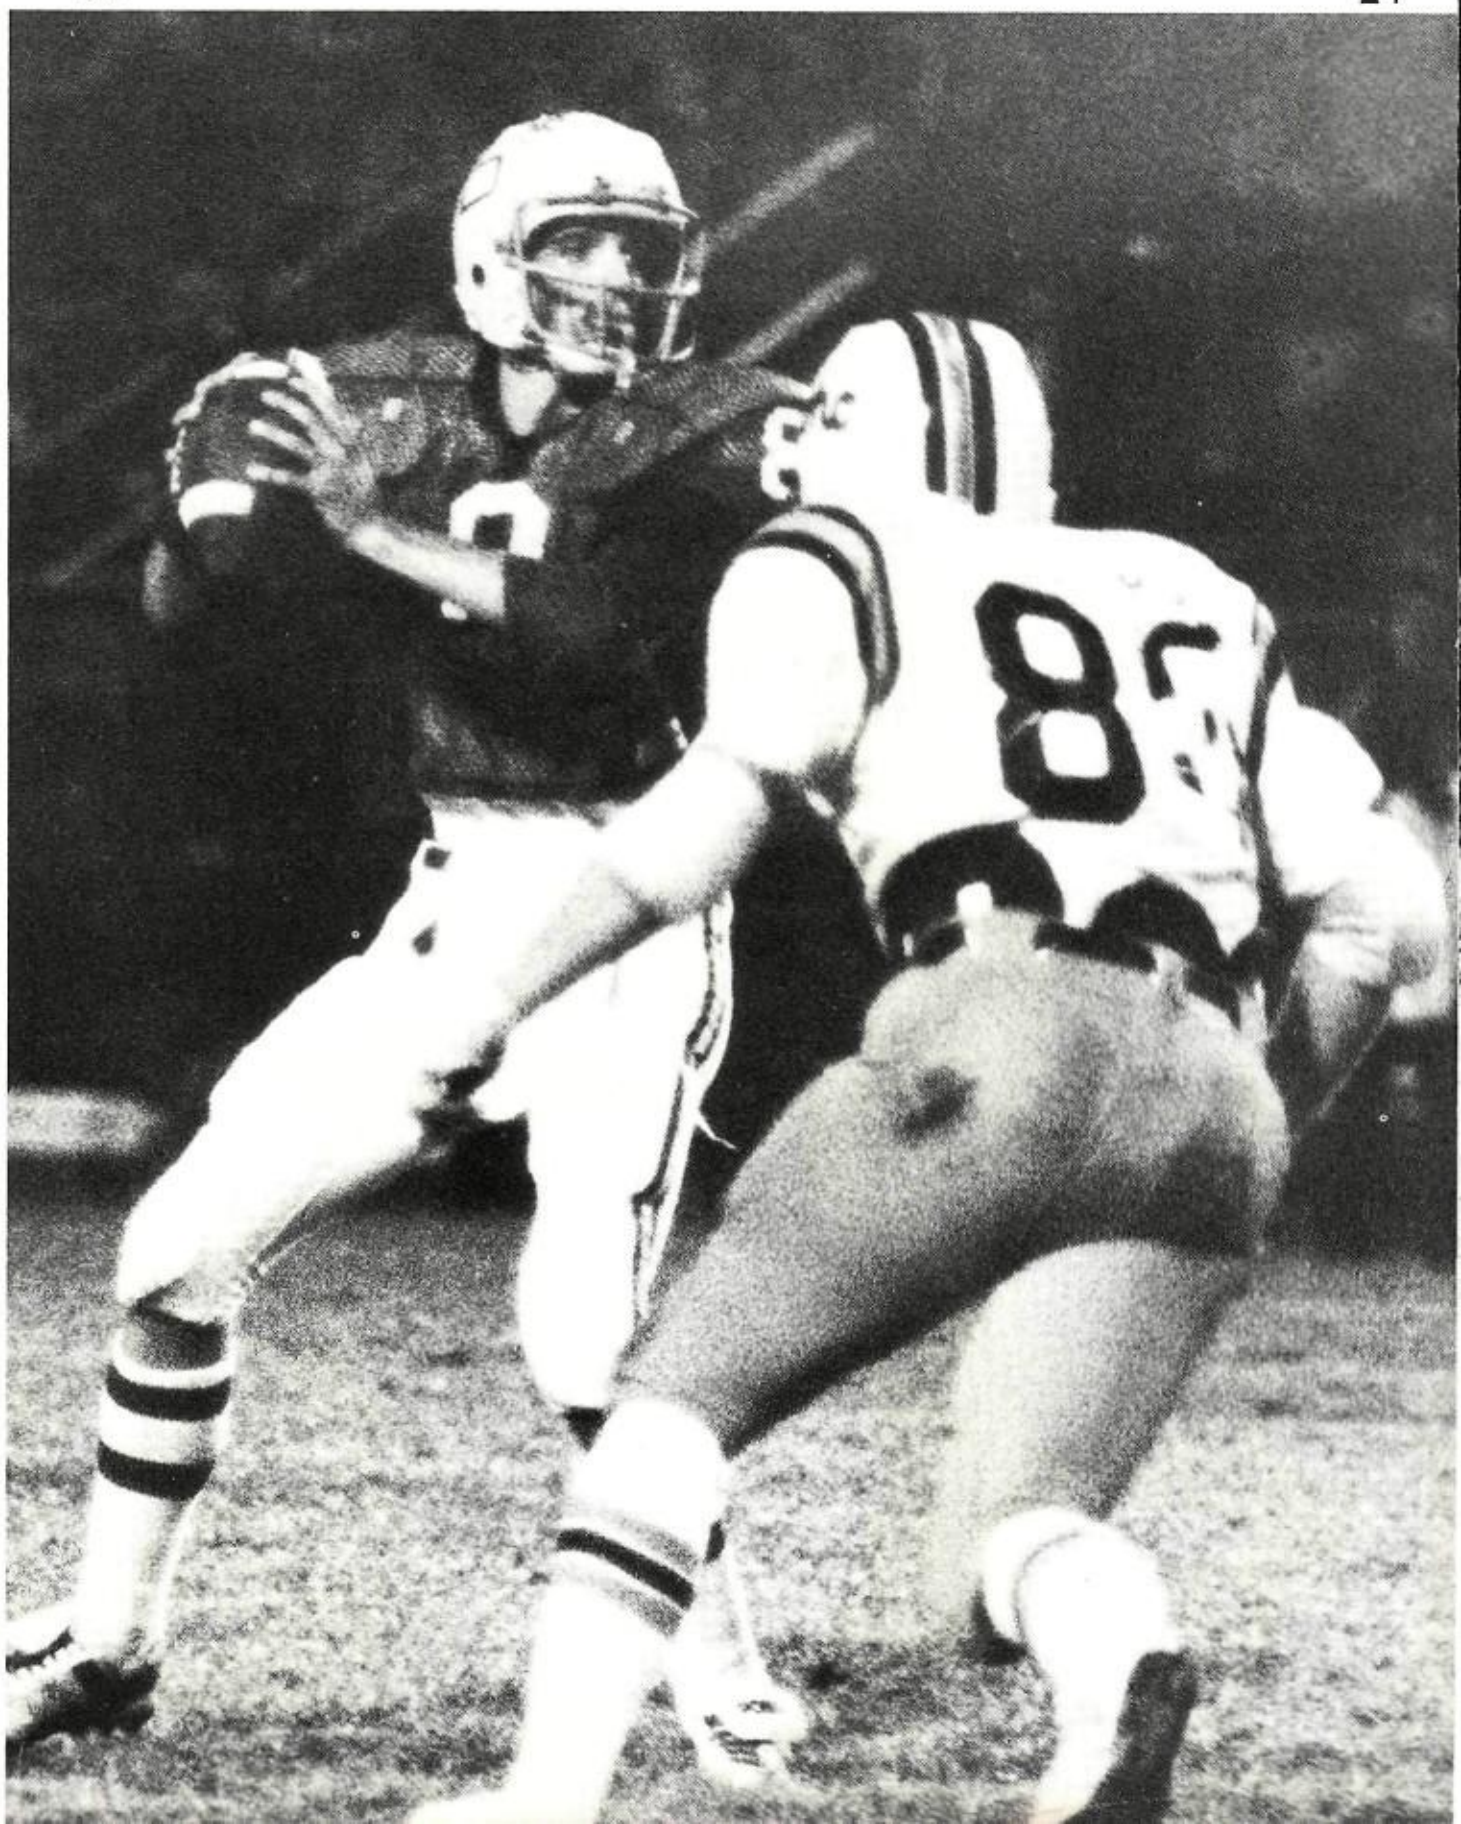

The Broncos lost to Trimble Tech (24-14) in the first round of the playoffs. This was the second consecutive year for the Broncos to be in the State playoffs.

Broncos win district crown

The varsity basketball team possessed a lot of skill but lacked in experience. They had a very tough pre-district schedule as Coach Maurice Evans said "With a tough pre-season schedule and a young team, I feel like that is what helped us through district play."

The Broncos had a little trouble in their pre-district season because of their inconsistent playing.

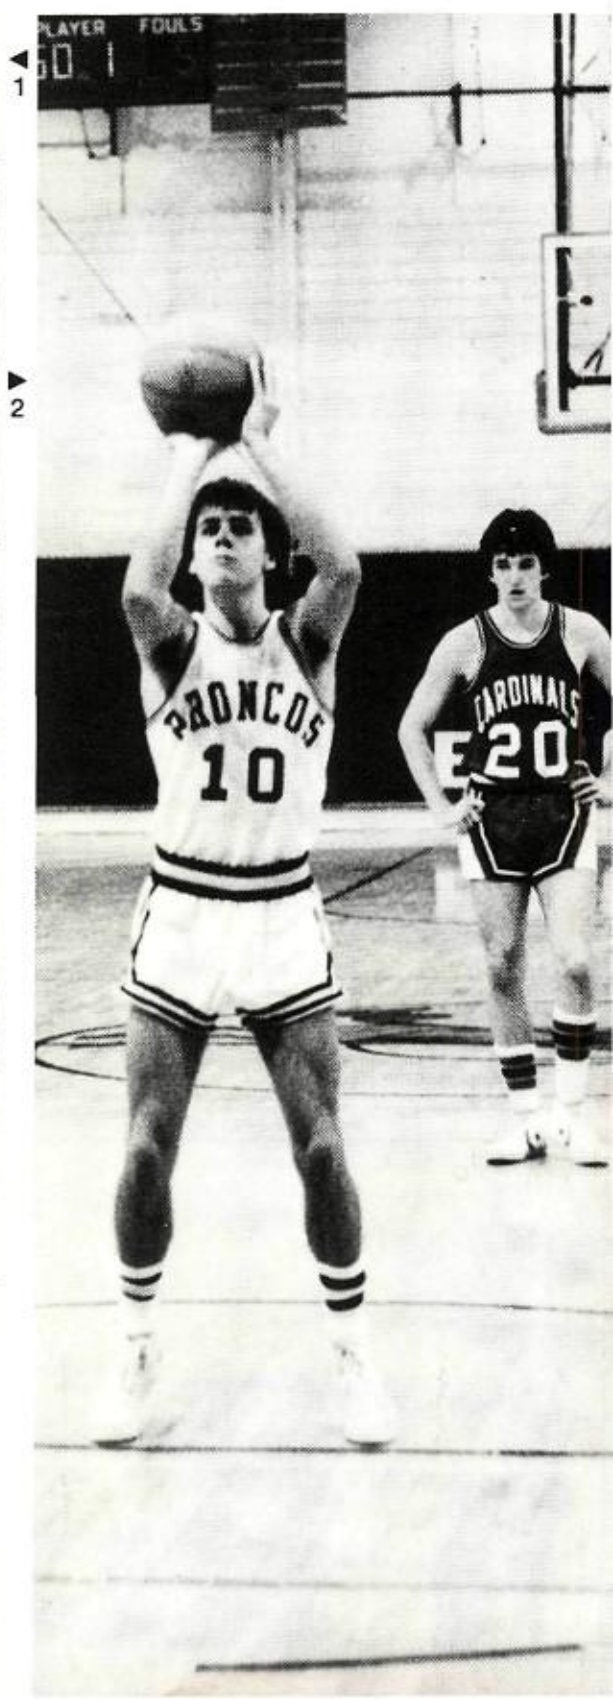

The Broncos went into the district like a tidal wave taking seven out of nine games. The Broncos easily captured the district crown from last year's district winners the Weatherford Kangaroos. The Broncos ended the year with a 17-9 record.

Led by the team captains, Marcie Twehous and Kelly O'Keefe, Varsity won their first District game against Sherman. O'Keefe contributed a career-high 30 points, while Twehous added 23 to down Sherman 66-46.

With only five return players, the Varsity team was a team of inexperience. According to Lori Smith, "the team was in the best shape it has ever been."

Swim team dives toward district

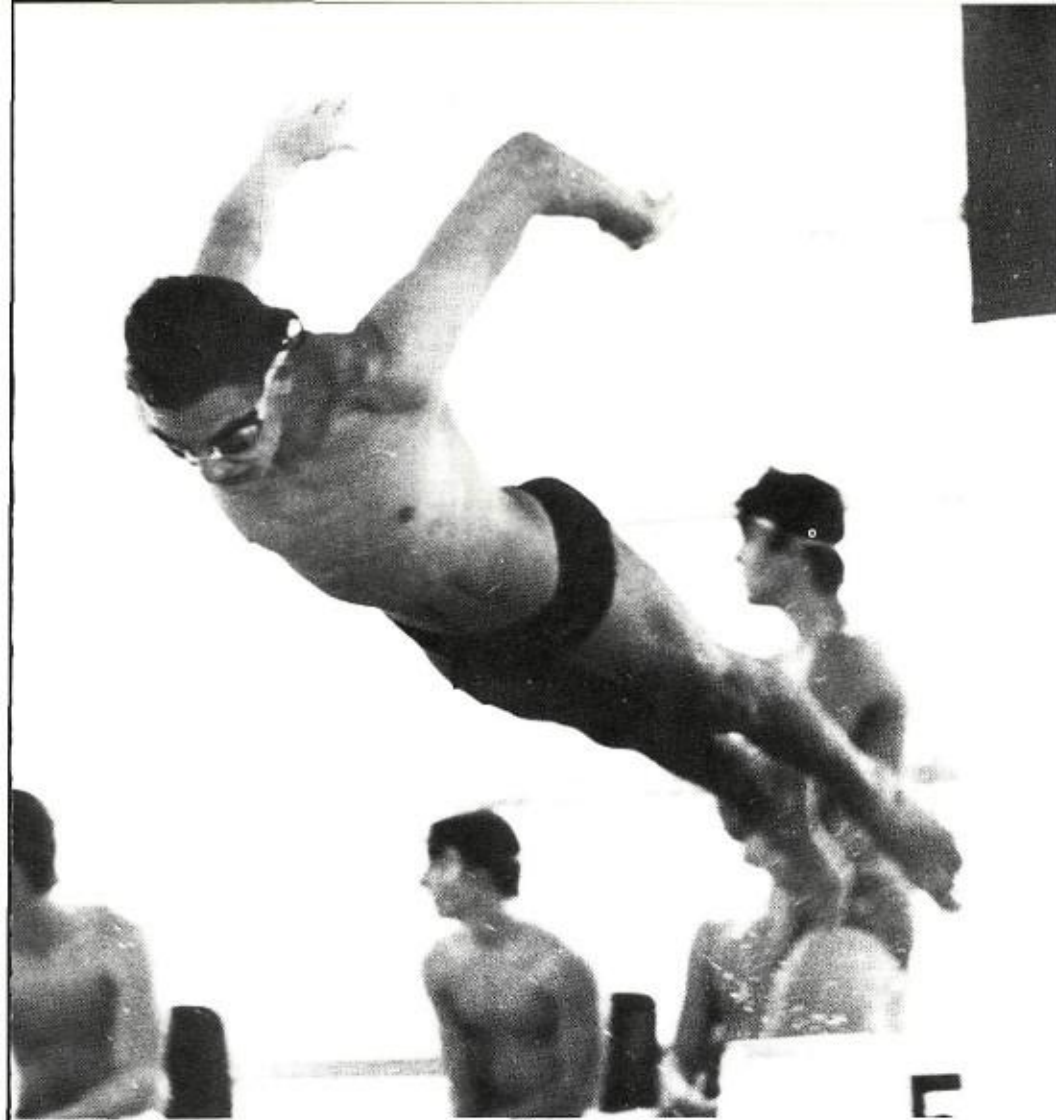

Many hours of hard practice have formed the swim team into a swimming and diving force which is tough to beat in competition. Under the leadership of the returning letter persons and coach Lisa Haslett, they won a tri meet against Arlington Lamar and Arlington Martin. They also placed second at the Lewisville Invitational. Cross country rated second-best in metroplex

According to coach Bill Durick, the cross country team was the "second-best" cross country team in the metroplex. DHS placed second most meets behind the region's best team, R. L. Turner.

At the Sherman Invitational Meet and the District Meet, the team received two perfect team scores of fifteen points. Tim Martin, Hank Beckman, Troy Downing, Todd Parton, David Ray, and Bill Westbrook were some of the team's outstanding runners.

Tim Martin ran 3.1 miles in 15:46 and 3 miles in 15:27. Coach Durick feels that he should have a strong team next year. Five of the top eight runners are returning."

Even though it was his first year to run cross country, Tim Martin was the team's strongest runner. Tim placed 1st, 2nd, or 3rd in all of his races this year and received numerous awards in other competitions. When asked what he received for all of his time and effort, he replied "Satisfaction; even when I didn't win that much, I still liked it a lot."

All competitors must set goals for themselves. Tim sets his pretty high. "I never say I'm gonna come in second. I always run to win."

Tim already has plans for after high school. He would like to attend Arkansas College, Texas Christian University, Brigham Young University, or North Texas. Tim said, "I want to go to college on a scholarship, hopefully, and I want to continue running after college. I've only been in this sport for a year and I hope to be in it another 10 or 20."

Tim is a winner and it is obvious in his attitude towards his sport and his competitions. He explained that effort is the only way to win, "The guys that do win put in a lot of work; they don't just go out and run on talent."

1. Kevin Clinton assists John Williams through the finishing chute at the District Meet. 2. On an early-morning run, Troy Downing and Brian Thompson get into shape for an upcoming meet. 3. Debbie Utesch sets a constant pace during the District Meet. 4. Larry Peterson, Troy Downing, David Ray, and Billy Westbrook lead the group around McKenna Park. 5. Tim Martin looks forward to the end of practice. 6. David Ray, Todd Parton, and Hank Beckman strain to reach the finish line.

Tennis, anyone?

"I think we are an improved team since last year," said coach Mack Dyer. "I hope we will be really competitive and do well in our matches."

The Junior Varsity tennis team is made up of 8 boys and 6 girls. They practice every day from 1:30 to 2:30. The top seeded male players are Doug Ingram and Ashley Gulden. The top female players are Lisa Harris and Gayla Corley. The main goal of the JV team is "to prepare these young players for varsity competition," said coach Ray "Doc" Braswell.

An artist shapes clay and teachers mold minds. DHS teachers are contributing to the construction of its students' knowledge. It is easier for this knowledge to be transmitted when the teacher and student can relate to each other.

One student said that having something in common with a teacher, besides the fact that they were in the same building seven hours a day, made her more willing to put forth an effort in a class. She said she was more enthused at pep rallies and in class when that teacher was showing spirit at the pep rally.

It is enjoyable to see teachers at football games, band concerts, and drama productions as well as other school sponsored extra-curricular activities. Teachers' attendance at these types of events show students that teachers are interested in them and what goes on at DHS.

"When I know that a teacher really cares about me and other students, I don't mind asking them for advice — whether it is on homework assignment or a personal problem," said junior Barbara Smith. Good teachers care."

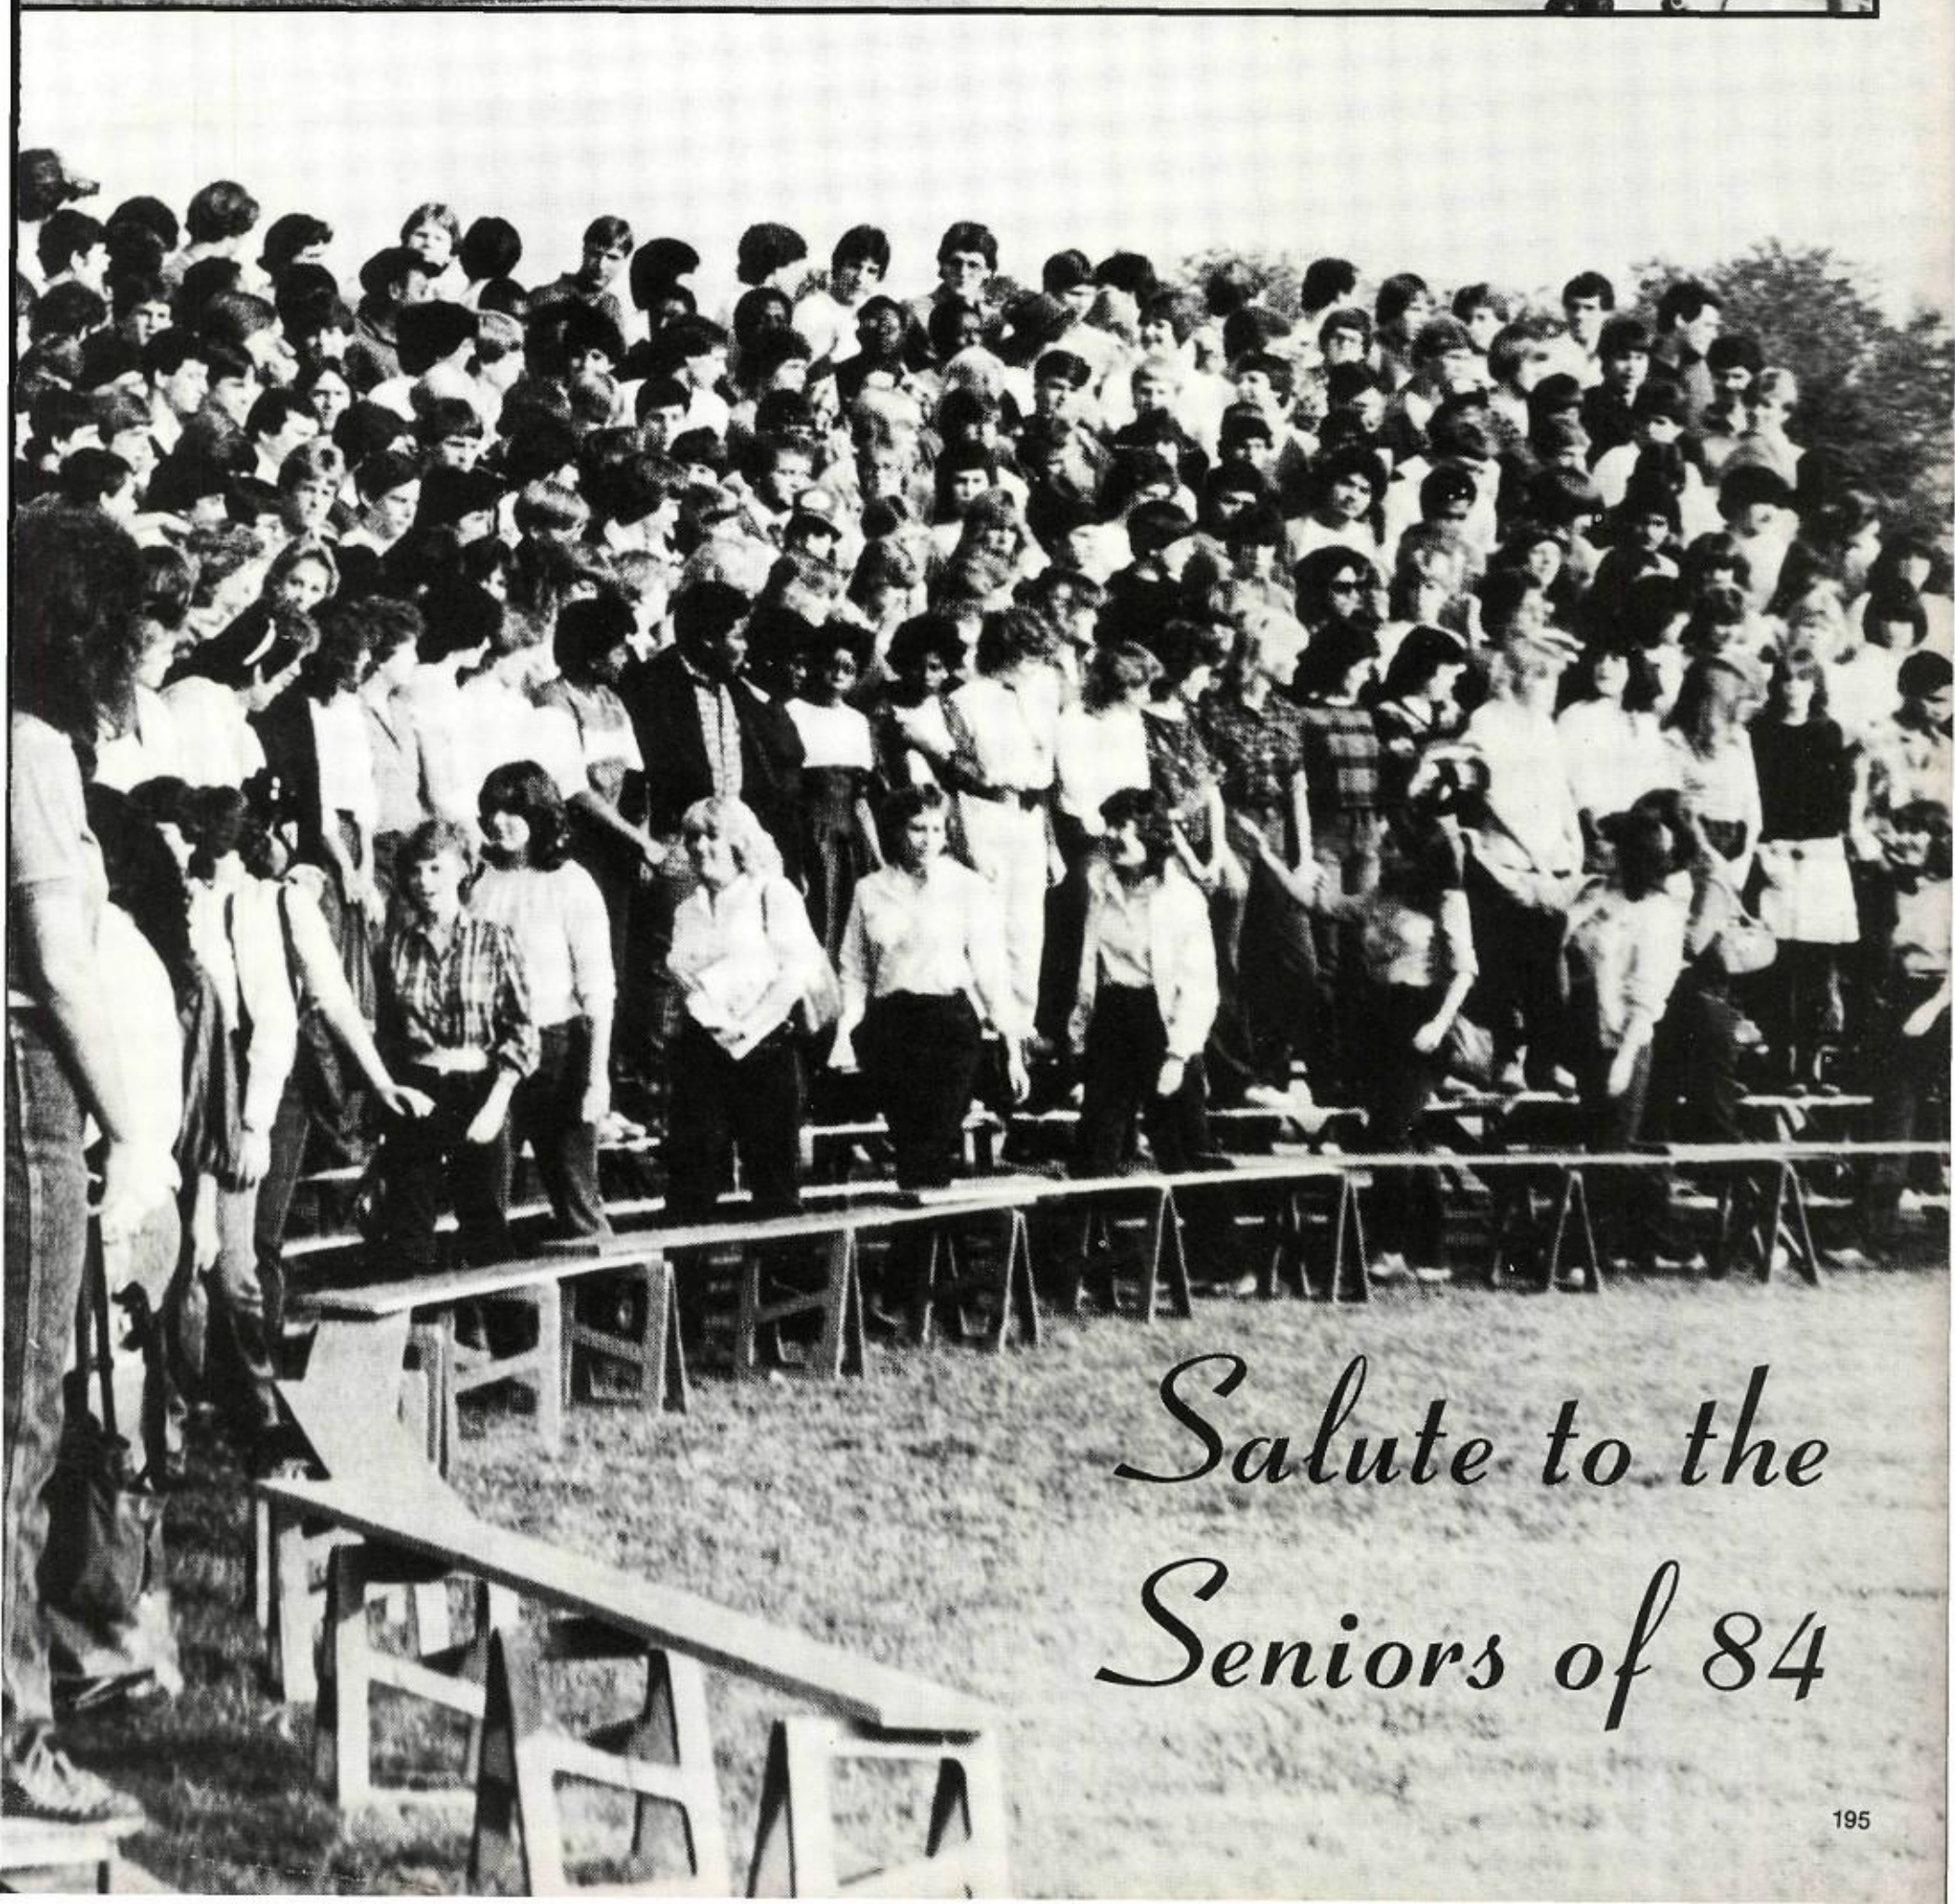

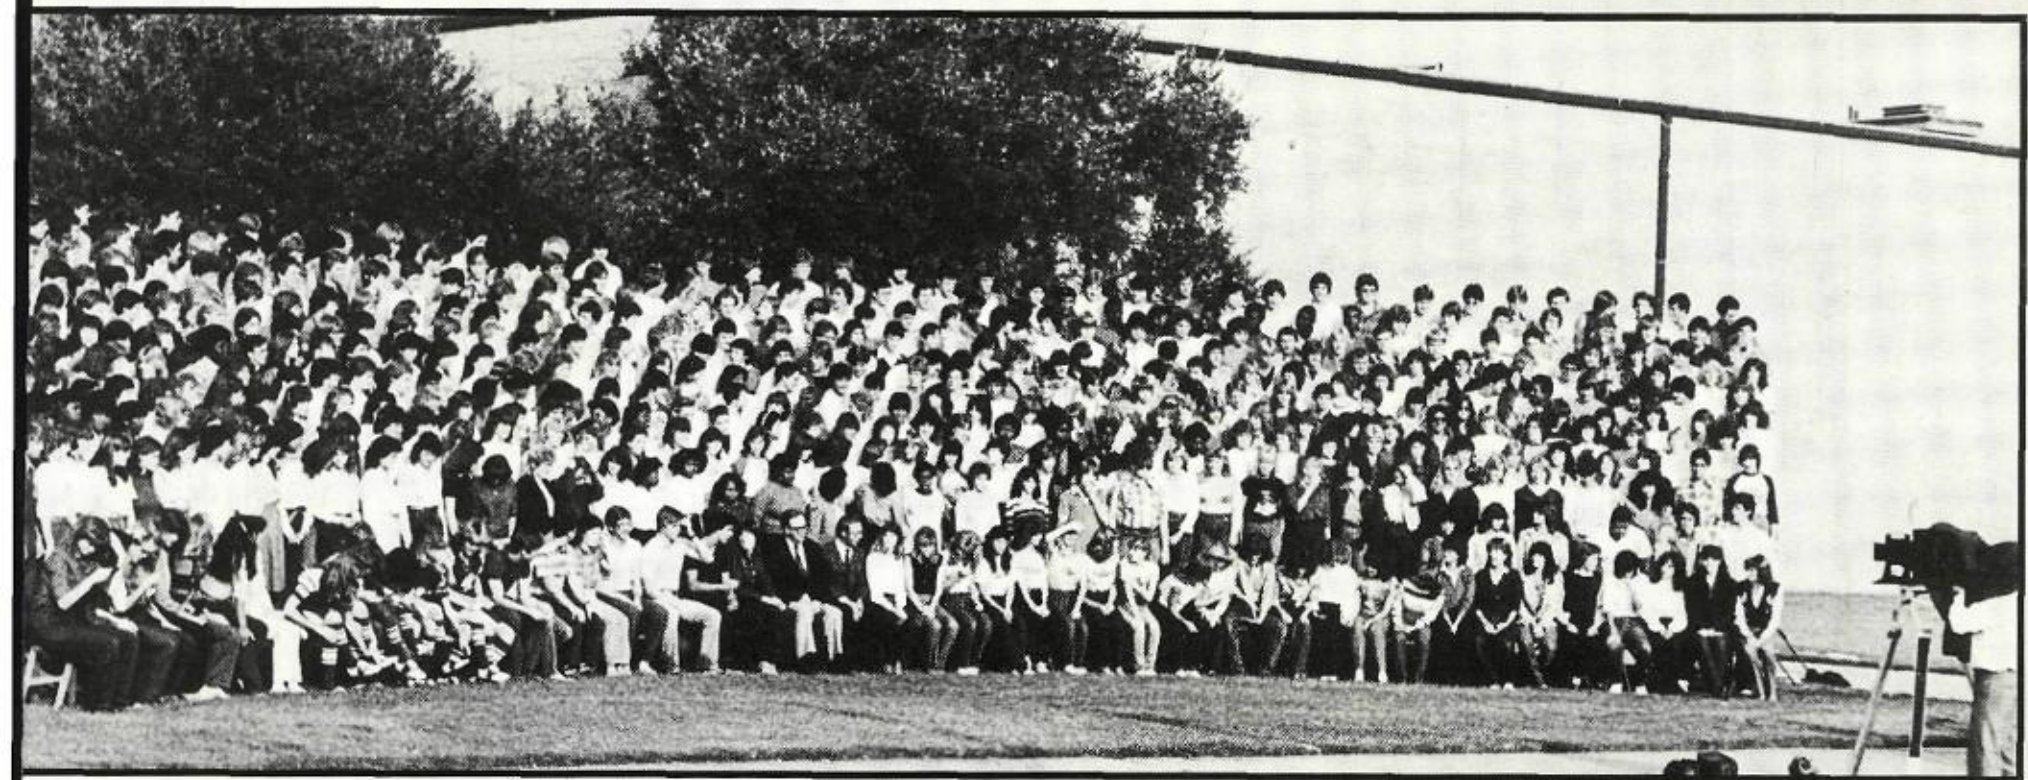

One can learn from a good teacher. When asked what she felt the qualifications of a good teacher were, sophomore Michelle Blackburn said, "A good teacher knows the subject he is teaching and knows how to help you understand it."

Activities that helped students and teachers relate to each other were "Turkey Teacher" day election, spirit coffees, secret pals, and the FFA picked a Teacher of the Week every week and awarded the winner with a plant from horticulture.

Seniors 84...

The class with more

As, leaving some great waterfall,
We, lingering, list its roar
So memory will hallow all
We've known but know
no more

Abe Lincoln

For each and every individual, high school means a variety of different things. Looking back we recall all the crazy, fun times and tend to let the sad times slip out of view. But, as memories fade, one thing that will stick with us is the relationships we had with other people.

Teachers taught us, not only synthetic division and the half-life of Uranium, but they took an hour out of our day and tried to help us become responsible, caring people. They imparted to us the importance of listening, doing things correctly the first time, and standing by what we believe.

We learned the importance of other people and the influence they have in our lives through our fellow classmates. In a classroom situation, we supported and tutored each other along. Our friends and sweethearts made us realize the importance of give and take as we shared troubles, homework, and happiness.

No matter what direction our lives may take, it has been directly influenced by our associations at DHS.

Farewell to a graduate

*The time has come to say good-bye,
To bid a fond farewell.
Commencement time is close at hand,
And so we wish you well.*

*Look forward to the days to come,
When you'll be far from home.
But do not lose what you have left,
Return, though you may roam.*

*Be careful on the road ahead,
Watch closely where you step.
Don't let others run your life,
For you know what is best.*

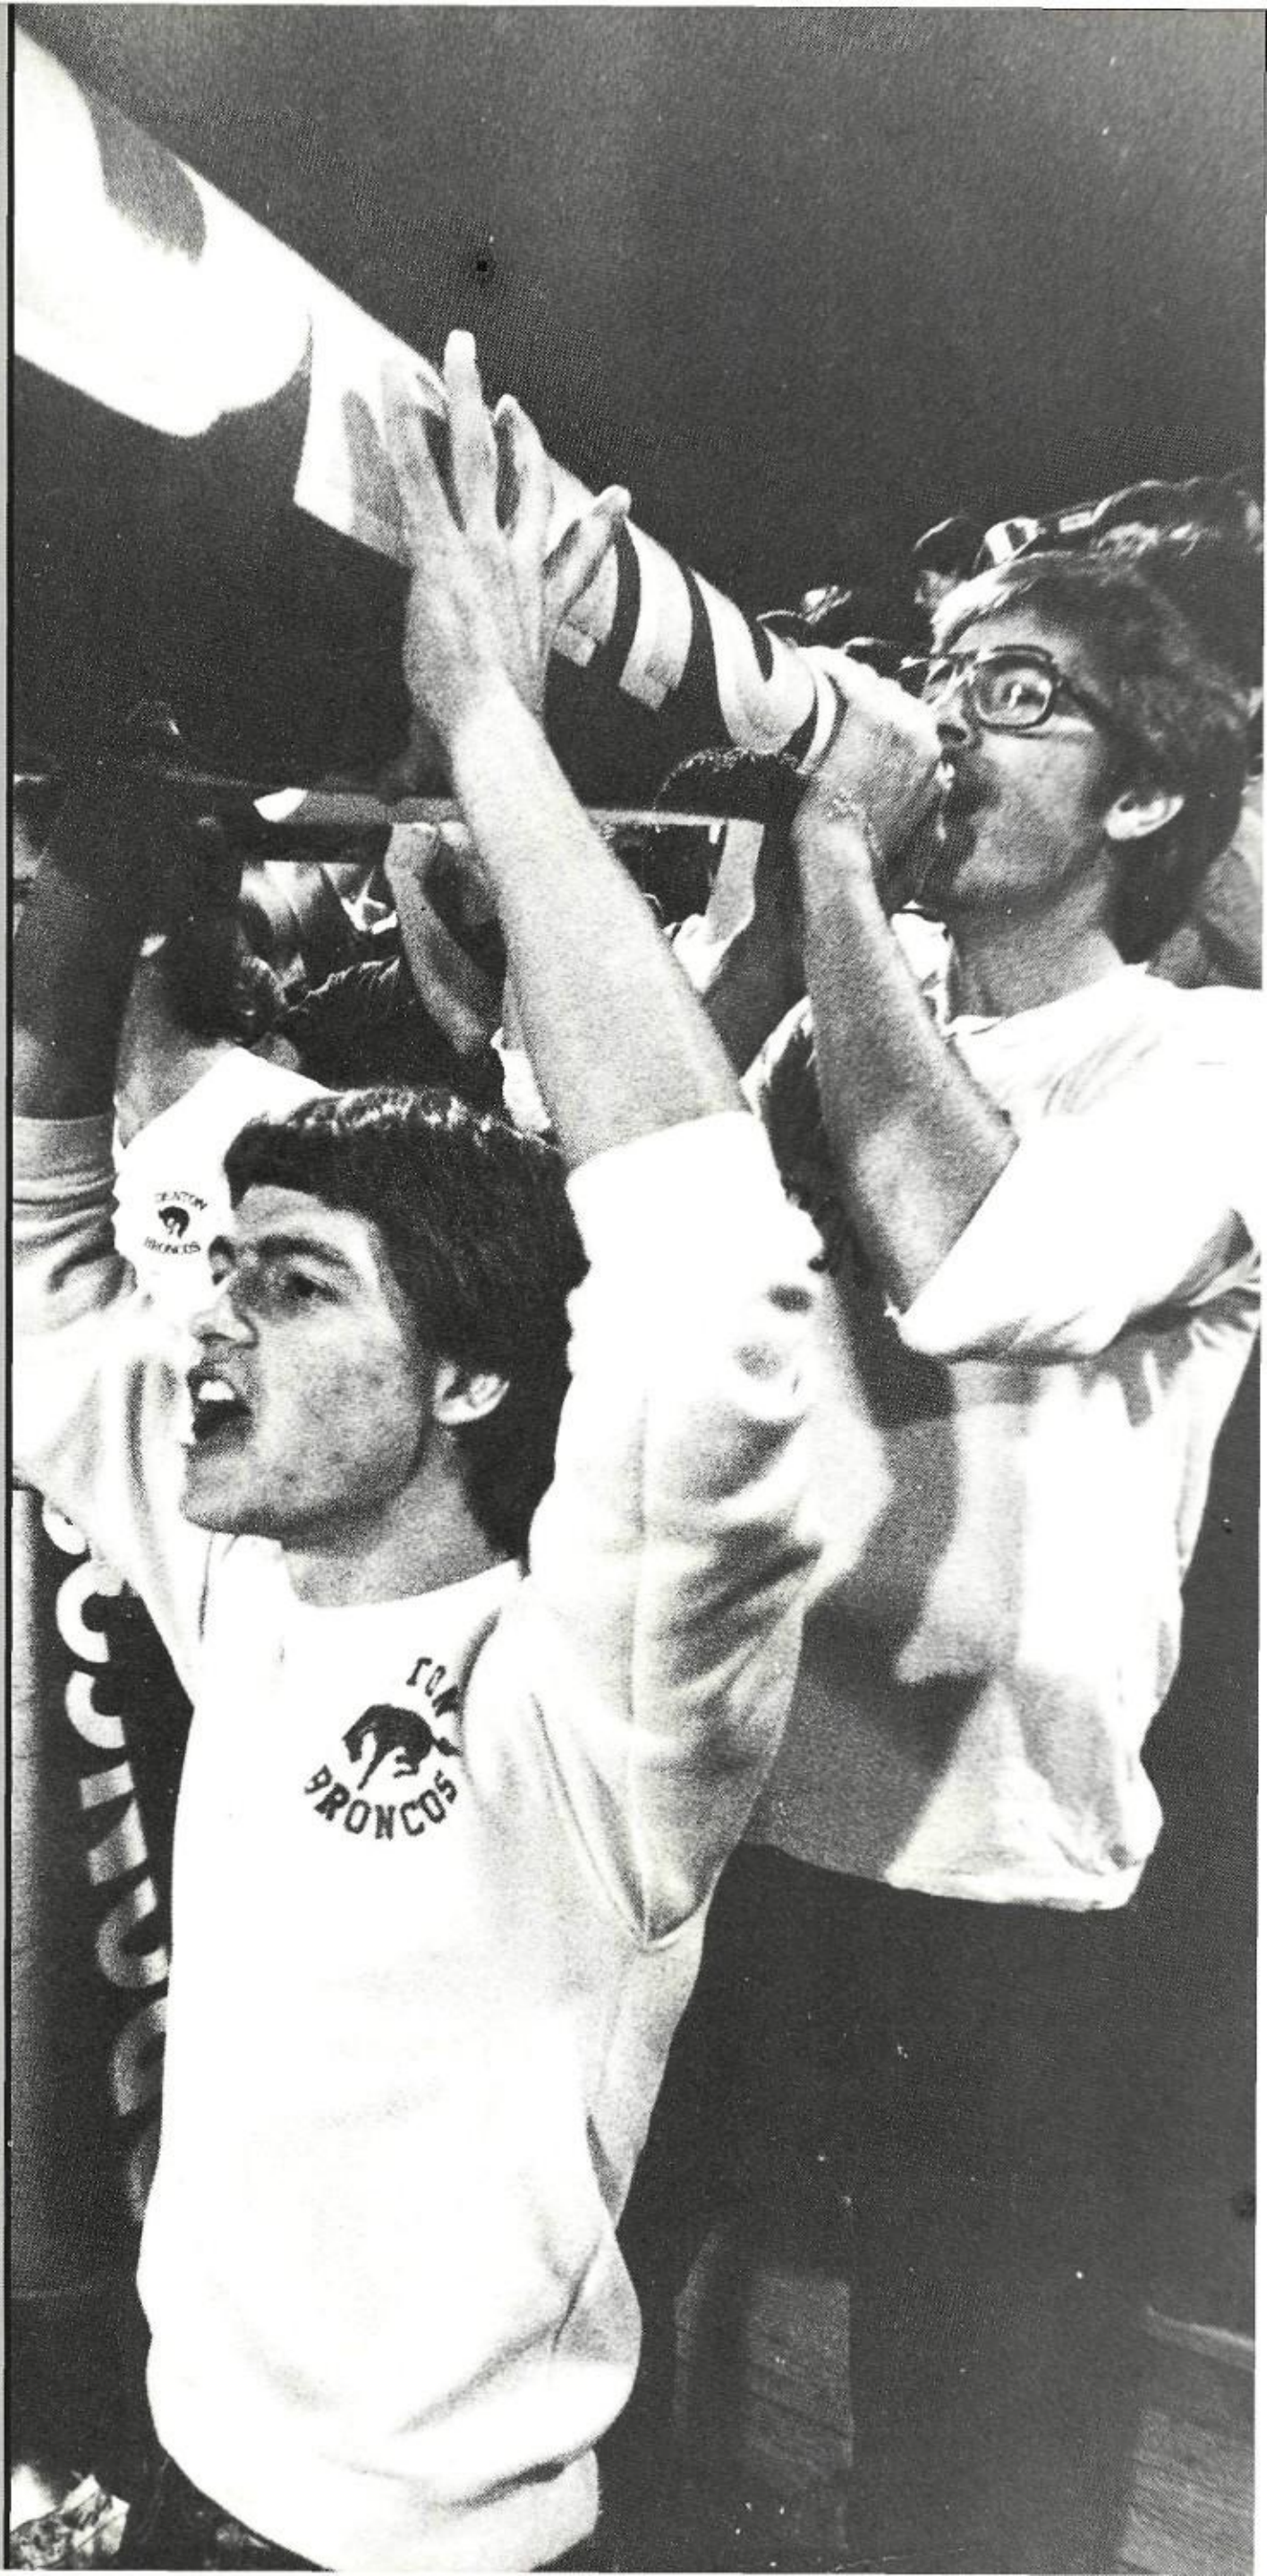

*Remember all the happy times,
Forget about the tears.
Remember friends you know and love,
Don't lose them through the years.*

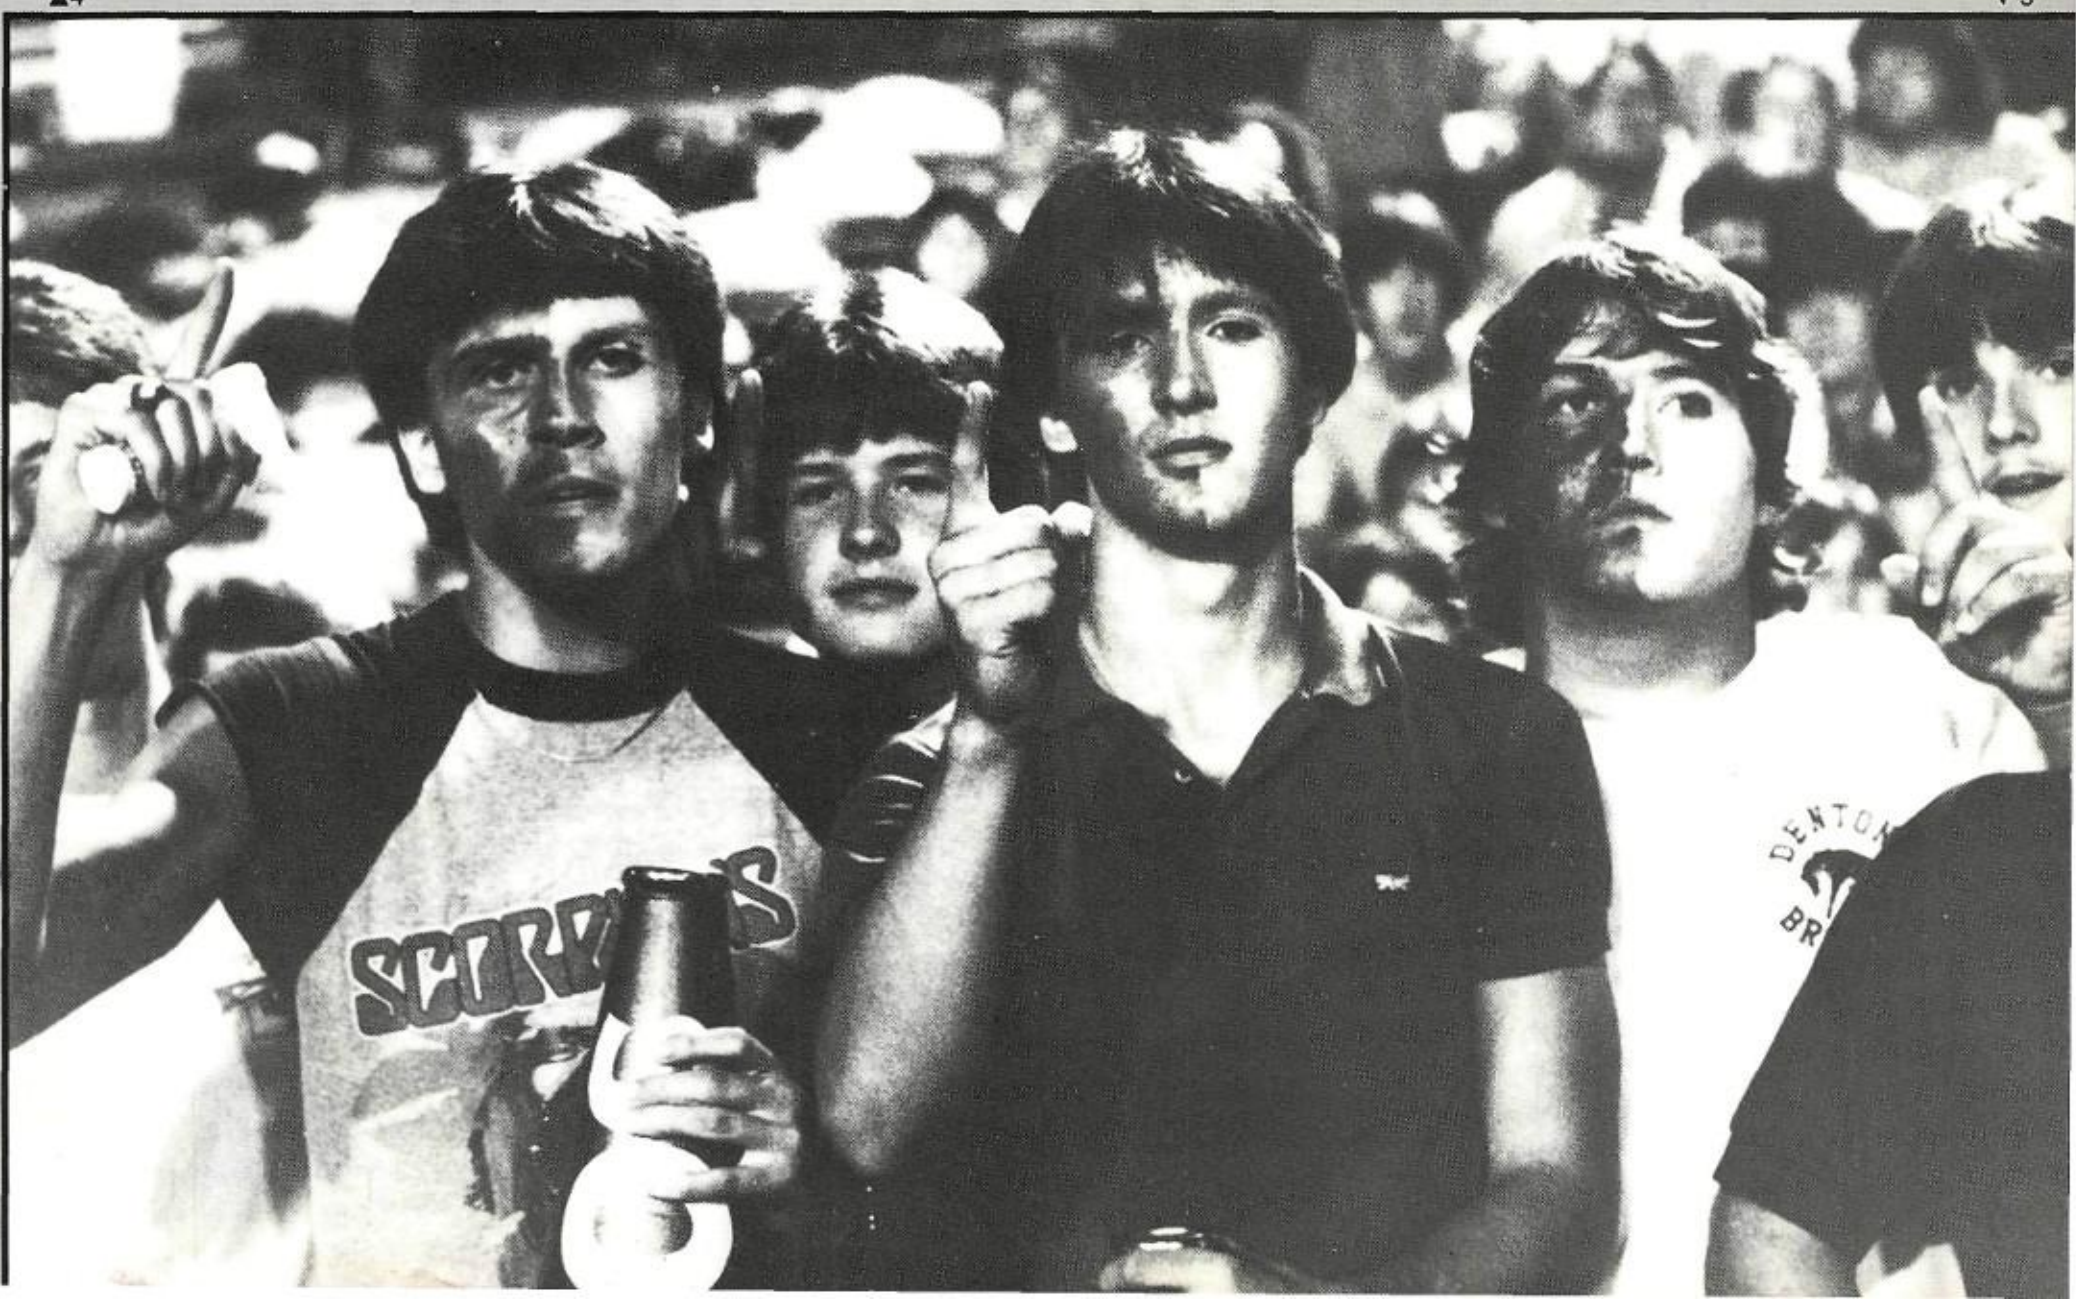

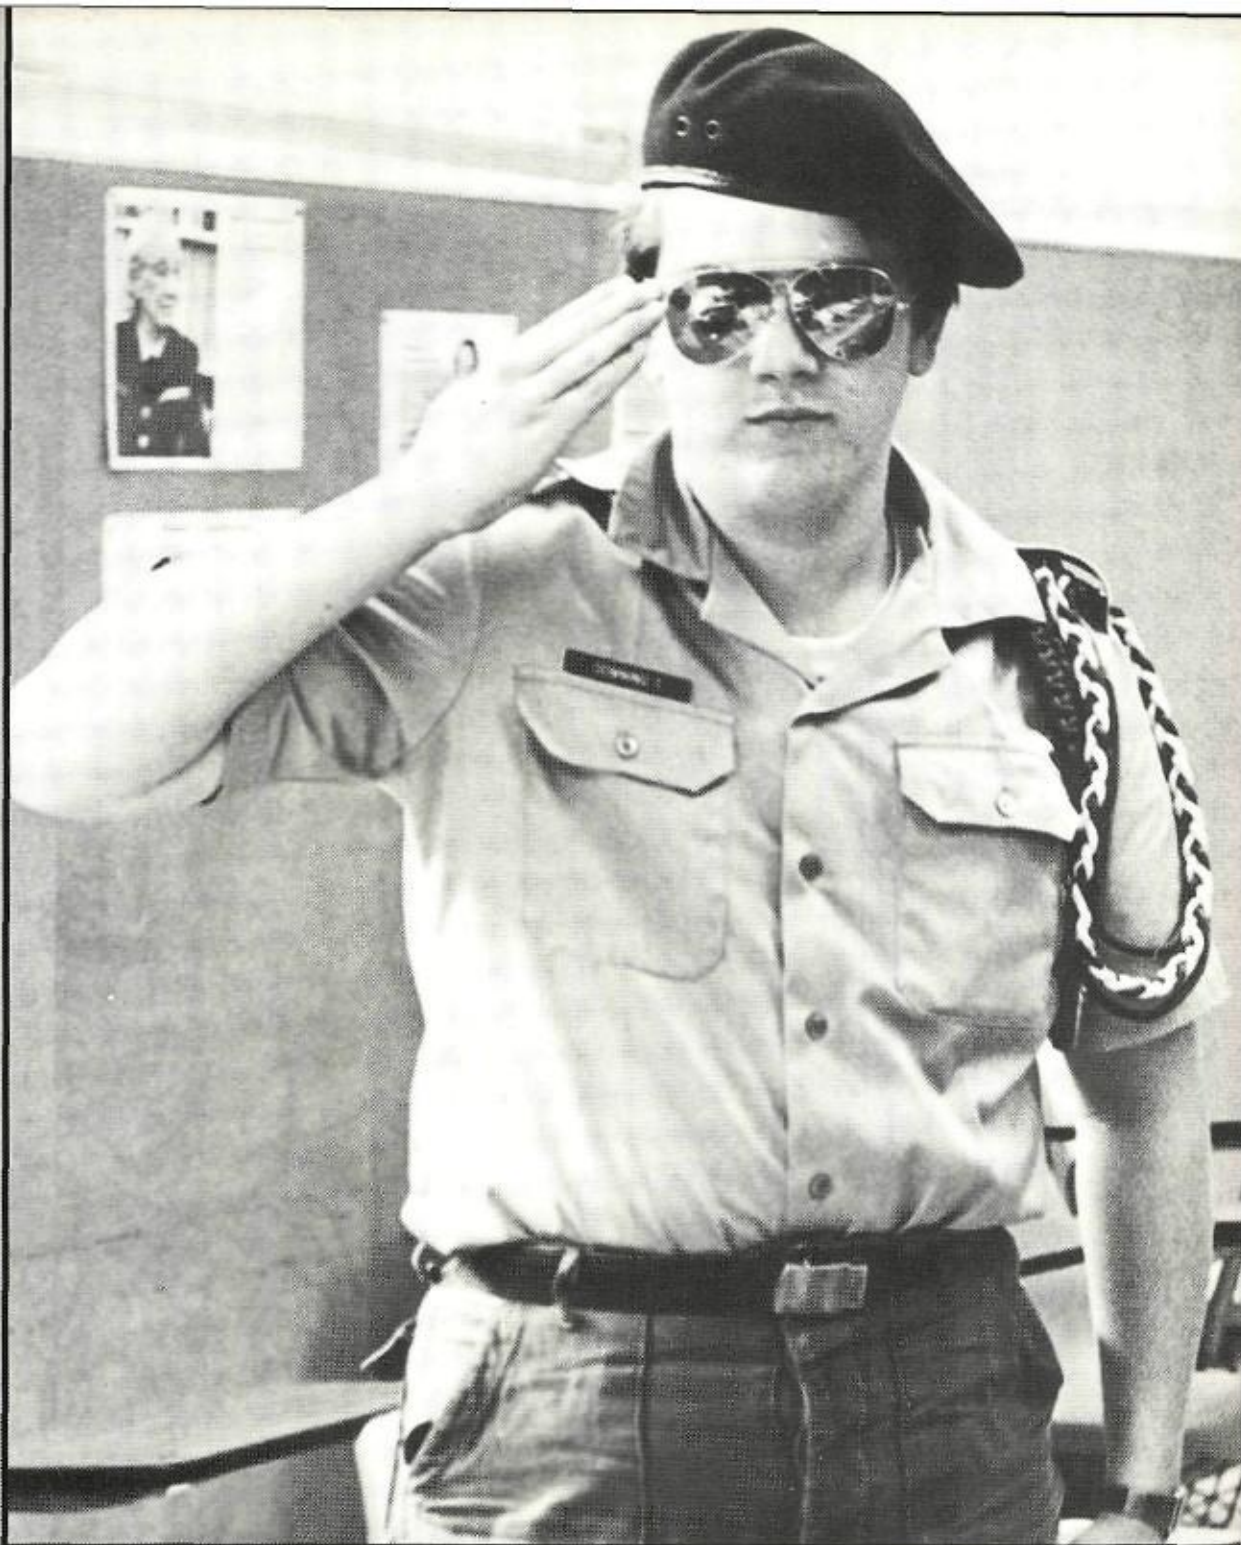

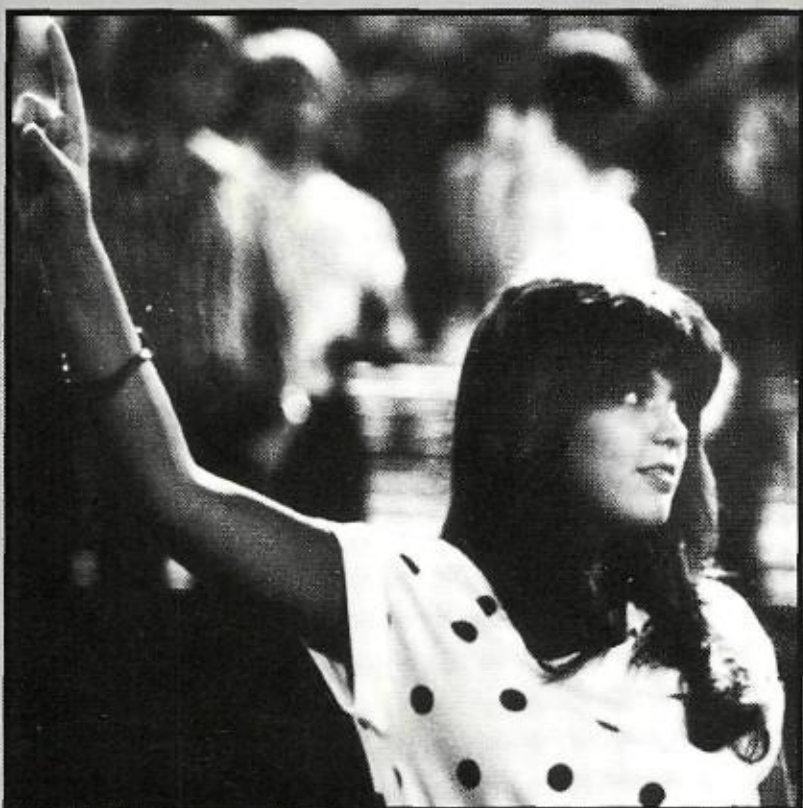

*Your influence has been felt here,
My life won't be the same.
Your friendship is so dear to me,
I wish you could remain.*

*But it is time for you to leave,
To go out on your own.
And though we may be far apart,
Please know you're not alone.*

Remember the good old days?

Nine months is a relatively short time compared to the years left after high school, but yet each school year is unbelievably jam-packed with so much excitement and so many memorable occurrences that those few months seem like an eternity.

It seemed as if there was never a second to spare in a normal day in the life of a Bronco. In just the short five minutes one is allowed between classes, a student had to finish up last night's homework, track down the book a friend of a friend borrowed last week, do a respectable amount of socializing, and still find time to sprint to class without being tardy. When the final bell rang and another school day was finished, a student's work wasn't. After hours were spent practicing sports, band, cheerleading, and other extracurricular activities, socializing a little more, studying mountains of endless homework, and still finding time to rush home without breaking curfew. This hectic pace is one aspect that won't be missed.

Just as a squirrel collects acorns for the hard winter months, a typical student collects paraphernalia and stores precious memories for a future date when one needs to recall the good old days. Homecoming mums; faded photographs; love letters; newspaper clippings; football ribbons; ticket stubs; Valentine carnations; basketball programs; and, of course, annuals are just a few of the things that are saved to capture the magic of our three fun-filled years.

1. Scott Stephens wipes off his purple and gold paint after the Broncos lost the Bi-district game. 2. Jeff Mulkey takes a breather on the sidelines. 3. David Hineman shows off one of his famous smiles. 4. Steve Yeager can't be caught without his camera. 5. Seniors gather at a pep rally for one last Alma Mater. 6. David Massey proves to be the perfect gentleman as he helps Elizabeth Parr out of his pick-up.

Pages of time

*The year is almost at its end.
We haven't got too long.
But look at faces from the past.
Before these days are gone.*

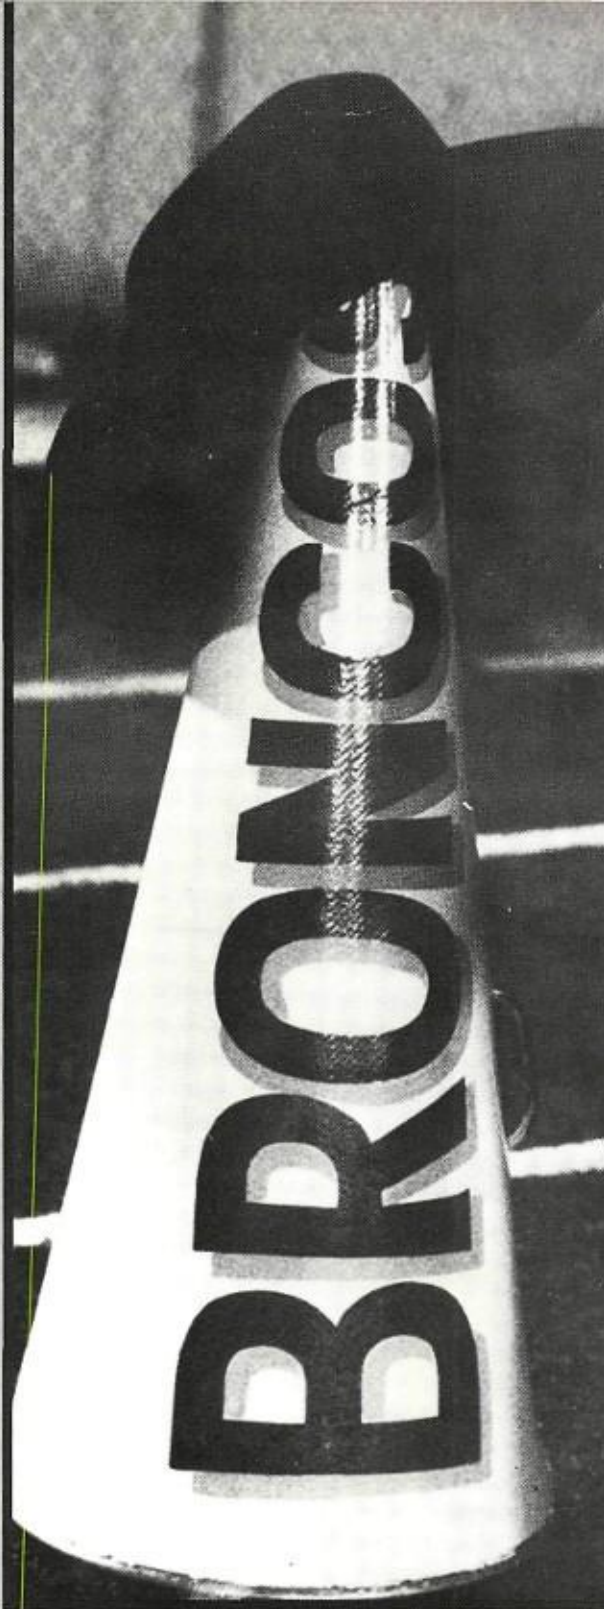

*These times and places long since past.
And friends whom we hold dear
Are held on pages in a book
By pictures from the year.*

*These faces words cannot describe,
They speak without a word.
Reflections of the heart and soul,
They're seen but never heard.*

*But now these memories start to fade.
We have but pictures now
And words that help us to recall
The whens and wheres and hows.*

— Anne Iverson

1. Even the megaphones get decked-out for a Bronco football game. 2. Felicia Taylor sneaks a drink at the Mardi-Gras dance. 3. Mrs. Virginia Sims congratulates Coach Sharon Sullivan on a victory. 4. Larry Wilson checks himself out one more time. 5. Stuart McCallister entertains at the Billy Sprague concert. 6. Despite a victory, Leslie Rezac and Lori Smith are far from happy to see their season come to a close. 7. Ray "Doc" Braswell can't keep his age a secret. 8. Barry Johnson excitedly tells the world how it is.

Without the financial support of various merchants in the area, there would be no yearbook. These advertisers show their appreciation to their student customers through their cooperation in making a successful yearbook. Senior Messages

For the first time at Denton High School, the parents of 1984 seniors were allowed to purchase space in the yearbook to give a special tribute to their favorite graduates. These parents showed their own school SPIRIT by making this section a tremendous success in its initial year. Their enthusiastic support of the school and its students demonstrated the extent of SPIRIT outside the school doors.

Human beings are changing all the time — hair, flesh, bones, blood, and the whole body are always changing. Which is true not only of the body, but also of the soul, whose habits, tempers, opinions, desires, pleasures, pains, fears, never remain the same in any one of us, but are always coming and going; and equally true of knowledge, and what is still more surprising to mortals, not only do the sciences in general spring up and decay, so that in respect of them we are never the same ...

A familiar man stands at the practice field,
District 5-5A Champs he strives to yield.
His dark hair tucked under a baseball cap,
Crowns a head full of knowledge to unwrap.

The whistle which hangs from a string at his neck,
Sounds as a warning that errors must be checked.
He leads and directs, and seldom will yell.
The team responds quickly in attempts to do well.

Each year is a challenge, he's put to the test,
But the staff that assists him is truly the best.
Not noted for possessing enormous stature nor size,
How can a small man look so big through a young man's eyes?

Victories and titles are just part of his scheme,
He also molds men from the boys on his team.
Coach Bateman personifies an admirable blend,
Of a teacher, a mentor, a coach, and a friend.

TO ALL PARENTS

"I'll lend you for a little while a child of Mine", He said,
"For you to love the while he lives and mourn for when he's dead.
It may be six or seven years or twenty-two or three;
But will you, 'til I call him back, take care of him for me?
He'll bring his charms to gladden you, and should his stay be brief,
You'll have his lovely memories as solace for your grief.

I cannot promise he will stay, since all
from earth return,
But there are lessons taught down there I want this child to learn.
I've searched the wide world over in My search for Teachers True,
And from the throngs that crowd life's lanes
I have selected you.
Now will you give him all your love, nor think the labor vain
Nor hate Me when I come to take him back again?"

I fancied that I heard them say: "Dear Lord
Thy will be done;
For all the joys this child shall bring, the risk of grief we'll run.
We'll shelter him with happiness; we'll love him while we may.
And for the happiness we've known, forever grateful stay;
But should the angels call for him much sooner than we'd planned,
We'll brave the bitter grief that comes and try to understand."

You can become it.*

In Memoriam

*My friends are little lamps to me,
Their radiance warms and cheers
my ways,
And all the pathway dark and lone
Is brightened by their rays.
I try to keep them bright by faith,
And never let them dim with doubt;
For every time I lose a friend
A little lamp goes out.*

I think it's great that after our playing together as little kids, we can actually have two classes together! Drama was fun - you're a wonderful actress! Soft Scarp could have been better, but what can we expect from Mrs Hall? You're a very nice person - keep in touch; I'll probably see you over the summer sometime. And now for the usual... Stay Sweet!!

Linda,
Hey you! We had a good time in Math this year, although Mrs. Ammons is a Space case sometimes. She made it fun to learn though. That was really fun. I was gone. Well, good luck in the future and next year as a Senior.

Go for it!
